

Preface

The idea for this volume emanated from an international research conference, and Nils Klim seminar, entitled “Challenges for European Science”, held at Uppsala University in 2009, where several of the contributors to this volume participated. The conference was co-hosted with the Holberg Prize, University of Bergen, Norway and with additional financial support from the Jan Wallander and Tom Hedelius Foundation and the Swedish Research Council (VR). Some of the research work for the conference and for this volume was carried out (by Linda Wedlin) in relation to a research project financed by RJ (P2005-1189:1).

We are grateful for this financial and organisational support, which created a starting point for this collaborative work. We are equally grateful to all the participants at the conference, who made us see the importance of the European developments in science and research policy and its many implications. We would also like to extend our sincere gratitude to all our contributors, without whose work and patience this volume would not have been.
