
Acknowledgements

Many people have contributed in one way or another to the long process of writing and editing this book.

We are indebted to Edward Elgar Publishing's staff, who approached us with the idea to prepare this handbook and showed us exemplary patience along the long journey. We are also grateful to Diana Rubanenko, who edited the entire manuscript, for excellent editorial work of the whole volume. Funding support for this research project was kindly provided by the Law Department of the London School of Economics and the Maria Von Hofmannsthal Chair in International Law in memory of Emilio Von Hofmannsthal (at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem), and their generous support is gratefully acknowledged.

Thanks also go to Ben Booth, Laura Mann, Harry Fabian, Sarah Brown and the production team at Edward Elgar Publishing for preparing the manuscript for publication.

And above all, we owe a debt of gratitude to each contributor to this volume who joined us in this challenging but rewarding project.
