Contributors

Carlos Albornoz holds a doctorate in education and MBA from Florida International University, USA. He also earned a degree in management from the School of Engineering at the University of Chile and a bachelor’s degree in organizational psychology from the Pontifical Catholic University of Valparaiso. He was awarded the 2008 Kauffman Foundation Scholarship to complete his doctoral dissertation in the United States. In Chile, he served as national coordinator of entrepreneurship and human capital for the Ministry of Economy public policies division. At the international level, he has designed entrepreneurship programmes for the Children Trust, Florida International University, the Barbara Bush Foundation and the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB). He is a full-time professor and researcher at Universidad del Desarrollo (UDD), Chile. Based on the América Economia Ranking, UDD has been the number 1 in entrepreneurship for the past seven years in Latin America. His research interests are related to the human capital impact on business creation and economic development.

José Ernesto Amorós is professor and doctoral programmes director at EGADE Business School, Tecnologico de Monterrey, Mexico. He is a member of the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor (GEM) board of directors. He is also visiting researcher at Universidad del Desarrollo, Chile. He holds a Ph.D. in management sciences from ESADE Business School, Spain. He has a bachelor’s degree in business administration and M.Sc. in marketing from Tecnologico de Monterrey, Mexico. He is a member of several academic organizations and vice-president of Iberoamerican Academy of Management. His research interests are entrepreneurship and competitiveness, high-growth new business, entrepreneurship and gender, and corporate entrepreneurship.

Ted Baker leads entrepreneurship efforts at Rutgers Business School – Newark and New Brunswick. He is also senior fellow at the Bertha Centre for Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship at the University of Cape Town Graduate School of Business. He spent much of the first half of his adult life building a variety of technology-rich entrepreneurial ventures. His research explores entrepreneurship under resource constraints and adversity (for example in the informal settlements around Cape Town, South Africa and in the US textile industry), focusing in particular on bricolage and improvisation as constructs useful for understanding resourceful behaviour and organizational resilience. His recent work builds on the social psychology of identity to explain founders’ responses to adversity, continuation of organizing efforts and choices of organizational structure. His research has been published in leading academic journals such as the Academy of Management Journal, Administrative Science Quarterly, Journal of Business Venturing and Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal.

Björn Bjerke is senior professor at Linnaeus University in Sweden, where he participates in running a master’s programme in leadership and management in an international context. He has been involved in entrepreneurship in theory as well as in practice for over 30 years. His recent research has focused on social entrepreneurship.

Mike Chiasson is a professor at the University of British Columbia (UBC), in the Faculty of Management, and an innovation fellow with the Advanced Institute for Management Research (AIM) in the UK. Before joining UBC, he was a professor at Lancaster University’s Management School, and an associate professor in the Haskayne School of Business at the University of Calgary. His research examines how the social and organizational context affects and is affected by technology development and implementation. His work has made various contributions to social theory (ANT, Habermas, pragmatism, structuration theory, entrepreneurial opportunities), action research, research methods and ethics. His research has appeared in such journals as MIS Quarterly, the Journal of Business Venturing, the Journal of the Association of Information Systems, the Information Systems Journal, the Journal of Information Technology, the European Journal of Information Systems, Information and Organization and several medical and medical informatics journals.

Johan Gaddefors is an associate professor at the Department of Economics, Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences in Uppsala, Sweden, where he is head of the Rural Entrepreneurship Group. His research focuses on rural entrepreneurship, in particular the interplay between entrepreneurial actions and the contexts in which they take place. Ongoing projects focus on embeddedness, growth, gender and the entrepreneurship marketing interface. He teaches on all levels: entrepreneurship marketing organization, leadership and ethics.

William B. Gartner holds a joint appointment with Copenhagen Business School as professor of entrepreneurship and the art of innovation, and California Lutheran University as professor of entrepreneurship. He is the 2005 winner of the Swedish Entrepreneurship Foundation International Award for outstanding contributions to entrepreneurship and small business research. His recent book Entrepreneurship as Organizing: Selected Papers of William B. Gartner (2016) was published by Edward Elgar. His current scholarship focuses on entrepreneurial behaviour, entrepreneurship as practice, the social construction of the future, and the hermeneutics of value, possibility and failure.

Aurore Haas is a lecturer at Paris-Dauphine University and Assistant Professor at SKEMA Business School. Her main research interests are strategy, organizational learning and inter-organizational relations. Her current work explores the micro-foundations of dynamic capabilities and inter-organizational relations in informal contexts. She is especially interested by the actors and practices that influence how firms leverage informal inter-organizational relations. Aurore Haas is author of several book chapters and journal articles. She is a graduate of HEC (Paris), Chicago Booth (MBA, University of Chicago) and Paris-Dauphine University (Ph.D.). She has extensive experience of teaching strategy as well as working in the private sector. She worked for ten years in firms including McKinsey & Company and General Electric.

Thomas P. Kenworthy is an assistant professor in the Strategy and Entrepreneurship department at the University of Windsor. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Calgary in 2008. His research, which focuses primarily on theory testing across the management disciplines and entrepreneurial creativity, has been published in the Journal of International Business, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, European Management Journal and recently in Management Decision. He is also the co-author (with Edward W. McMullan) of a 2014 book entitled Creativity and Entrepreneurial Performance: A General Scientific Theory (Springer Scientific).

Steffen Korsgaard is associate professor in entrepreneurship at Aarhus University and affiliate associate professor at the University of Oslo. His research focuses on entrepreneurship theory, entrepreneurial opportunities and the interplay of entrepreneurship and context. His research questions and critiques some of the dominant perspectives on entrepreneurial opportunities and processes, and he seeks to integrate the social, temporal and spatial contexts into our understanding of entrepreneurship. His research has been published in several entrepreneurship journals, including Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, the International Small Business Journal and Entrepreneurship and Regional Development. He is also an active entrepreneurship educator, and with the research group iCARE he has developed new models and courses, which have been taught at his home university as well as internationally.
Agnieszka Kurczewska is a researcher in the field of entrepreneurship and entrepreneurship education. She holds a post-doctoral degree in economics (dr hab. in Polish). She is an associate professor at the Faculty of Economics and Sociology at the University of Lodz. From September 2010 until April 2011 she worked as an assistant professor in the Entrepreneurship Unit at Aalto University School of Economics in Helsinki, Finland. In 2014/2015 she received a grant from the Polish Ministry of Science and Higher Education and spent ten months at the University of Tampa, Florida, USA, conducting research on academic entrepreneurship education. She is a member of the board of directors of the European Council for Small Business and Entrepreneurship (ECSB). She was also a holder of the Polish Ministry of Science and Higher Education scholarship for young researchers.

Catherine Léger-Jarniou is associate professor of entrepreneurship at Université Paris-Dauphine PSL in France. She has been responsible for its entrepreneurship master’s programme for 11 years and is one of the founders and current vice-president for education of the Académie de l’Entrepreneuriat et de l’Innovation, the French entrepreneurship academy, and organized their Paris conferences in 2005 and 2011. Author of six published books and hundreds of papers and communications, she oversees the ‘Entrepreneurs’ collection at Dunod publishers. She also teaches in several countries. Her research interests are in the areas of entrepreneurial process and SMEs’ rapid growth, students’ entrepreneurship, women’s entrepreneurship, and education. She has helped around 50 companies to start up in France.

Francisco Liñán is associate professor in economics and entrepreneurship at the University of Seville. His main research areas are entrepreneurial cognitions (with a special focus on entrepreneurial intentions), entrepreneurship education and the economics of entrepreneurship. He has participated in several research projects funded by the OECD, the European Union and the Spanish national government, and is the main researcher in the ELITE project financed by the Spanish national government. He is a member of the ESU network in entrepreneurship. He has published several articles in scientific journals such as Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, Entrepreneurship and Regional Development, the International Small Business Journal, the Journal of Small Business Management and the International Entrepreneurship and Management Journal, as well as book chapters. He is regional editor of the Journal of Organizational Change Management. He is the director of the master’s programme in entrepreneurship development, and coordinator of the master’s programme in economics and development.
Michel Marchesnay, University of Montpellier, France, presided over two French-speaking international associations (AIMS and AIREPME) related to the academic fields of industrial economics, strategy and entrepreneurship. He is a member of the scientific committees of several academic reviews in these fields. He has written, alone or jointly, academic works and handbooks, and dozens of papers, contributions and communications. His research interests have successively dealt with costing and budgeting practices (1965), dynamic capacities (1968), dynamic theory of the firm (1970), ‘meso’ (intermediate) analysis (1975), SMEs, dependence and ‘hypofirms’ (1980), entrepreneurial strategy (1985), strategic grids (1990), typologies of entrepreneurs (1995), strategy of singularity (2000), hypermodernity (2005), pragmatism (2010), and managerial and entrepreneurial history. The Medal of the University of Quebec at Trois Rièvres, a biennial Julien–Marchesnay Prize, honours an eminent scholar in SME and entrepreneurship.

Sean Patrick Sassmannshausen is professor for business studies and entrepreneurship and head of the Start-up Center at the Technical University OTH Regensburg, Bavaria, Germany. He was previously interim professor for management of SMEs and entrepreneurship at the University of Siegen, Germany. Before this he was managing director of the Entrepreneurship and Innovation Research Institute at the Schumpeter School of Business and Economics, University of Wuppertal, Germany. He has had visiting professorships for entrepreneurship at Aarhus University, Denmark (2013–14) and at Thunderbird School of Global Management, Phoenix, Arizona, USA (2007). He is a guest lecturer on entrepreneurship at various universities and business schools across Europe. His focus is on new venture creation and on the development of entrepreneurship as a field of research. He has furthermore conducted studies in entrepreneurship education, strategy and entrepreneurship, entrepreneurial management and leadership, ethics, corporate entrepreneurship and innovation, Austrian economics, evolutionary economics and entrepreneurship, and family business.

Frederic Sautet holds a doctorate in economics from the University of Paris. He attended the Ecole des Sciences Politiques in Paris and also did a post-doctoral programme at New York University, where he worked under the auspices of Israel Kirzner. Before coming back to academia, he was an economic adviser at the New Zealand Treasury and a senior economist at the New Zealand Commerce Commission. He has taught economics at the University of Paris, New York University, George Mason University, and the Catholic University of America, where he currently teaches as an associate professor. His publications include An Entrepreneurial Theory of the Firm (Routledge, 2000), as well as several academic articles published in journals such as Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, the International Entrepreneurship Management Journal, the Review of Austrian Economics and Small Business Economics: An Entrepreneurship Journal. He is also a contributor to the Handbook of Research on Innovation and Clusters (Edward Elgar, 2008) and The Palgrave Encyclopedia of Strategic Management (Macmillan, 2013). With Peter Boettke, he is the co-editor of the Collected Works of Israel Kirzner, published by Liberty Fund in ten volumes.

Bruce T. Teague is associate professor of management and director of the Center for Entrepreneurship at Eastern Washington University. He spent 2013–14 as a visiting associate professor with Copenhagen Business School in the Management, Politics and Philosophy department. His research explores the nature and measurement of entrepreneurial behaviour, the concept of opportunity, the nature of entrepreneurship as practice, and narrative methods in entrepreneurship, and generally attempts to shed light on ‘how’ entrepreneurship happens. His research has been presented at the Academy of Management, USASBE and RENT, and has appeared in the Journal of Business Ethics, the Journal of Human Values and ENTER, among other outlets. In his director’s role, he has been active in developing the new entrepreneurship programme at Eastern Washington University, and in growing the Center for Entrepreneurship.

Silke Tegtmeier is associate professor of entrepreneurship at the Mads Clausen Institute, University of Southern Denmark. She has been working as a post-doctoral researcher at Leuphana University of Lüneburg, Germany. From May to July 2015, she was assigned professor for management and entrepreneurship for regional companies at the Leuphana Graduate School innovator incubator. Since July 2013, she has worked on the project ‘EXIST IV – Entrepreneurship Culture’, granted by the German Federal Ministry of Economics and Technology. She leads the Leuphana Conference on Entrepreneurship, an international forum for researchers, educators, entrepreneurs and students. She co-led the research project ‘Herself – Self-employment in the Professional Career of Female Graduates’, granted by the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research. She is also president-elect of the board of directors at the European Council for Small Business and Entrepreneurship. Her research interests are in the areas of entrepreneurial intentions and opportunities, women’s entrepreneurship, and education.

Spyros J. Vliamos is professor of political economy specializing in institutional economics and entrepreneurship at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. Recently, he was appointed dean of the Business School of Neapolis University Pafos in Cyprus. He holds a Ph.D. in economics from the University of London, an MA in economics from Manchester University, and a B.Sc. in economics from the University of Athens. He has also been a member of the Senate and head of the Departments of Economics and of Regional and Urban Planning at the University of Thessaly. He has taught as visiting professor at the Graduate Institute of Regional Development of the Panteion University, at the National University of Nagoya-Japan and at the Economics University of Prague. He was national expert with the JRC of the European Commission in Ispra, Italy and secretary-general for the management of European funds at the Greek Ministry of Employment. He has also been a member of the board of directors of the Athens Stock Exchange and the Hellenic Telecommunications Organization.

R. Daniel Wadhwani is Fletcher Jones Professor of Entrepreneurship and associate professor of management at the University of the Pacific. He also holds appointments as a visiting professor in the Department of Management, Politics and Philosophy at Copenhagen Business School and the Department of Economics at Kyoto University. A historian by training, he uses historical sources, methods and reasoning to examine the foundations of entrepreneurial action and the origins and evolution of organizations and markets. He has published in leading journals in both management (Academy of Management Journal) and business history (Business History Review, Business History). Most recently, he co-edited Organizations in Time: History, Theory, Methods (Oxford University Press, 2014), which examines the epistemic, theoretical and methodological opportunities and challenges of integrating historical research and reasoning into management and organizational research.

PANEL MEMBERS

Lowell W. Busenitz (Ph.D. Texas A&M University) is the academic director of the Center for Entrepreneurship at the University of Oklahoma and is the holder of the Michael F. Price Chair in Entrepreneurship. He teaches entrepreneurship and venture development courses at the undergraduate, master’s and Ph.D. student levels. He has coached and mentored many student and founding teams in their development of business plans for new start-ups. His research focuses on how entrepreneurs think, make decisions, develop new ideas for new ventures and garner resources. He is among a select group of researchers who have an established reputation in the area of entrepreneurship and is one of the top ten most cited entrepreneurship scholars. His research has appeared in the leading journals in management and entrepreneurship, such as the Journal of Business Venturing, the Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal, the Academy of Management Review and the Academy of Management Journal among others.

Dimo Dimov is professor of innovation and entrepreneurship at the University of Bath School of Management, where he also serves as associate dean for finance and planning. Previously, he was on the faculty at Newcastle University, the University of Connecticut and IE Business School. He received a Ph.D. in entrepreneurship from London Business School in 2004. Prior to entering academia, he was a finance director with Marriott International in Hungary. His research focuses on the entrepreneurial process, from initial idea to viable venture. An evolving entrepreneurial opportunity is central in this process: obvious in retrospect, but uncertain, nebulous and ambiguous in prospect. He is interested in how potential entrepreneurs and investors think, act and interact in the face of such uncertainty and how these interactions give rise to exciting new phenomena. This research has been published in numerous top academic journals. His teaching focuses on the development of entrepreneurial opportunities as a process of business model design.

James O. Fiet holds the Brown–Forman Chair in Entrepreneurship at the University of Louisville. He is the founder and director of its entrepreneurship Ph.D. programme. His research has been presented in more than 200 forums, including research articles, refereed publications, books, book chapters, colloquia at numerous universities, and scholarly presentations at research conferences. He has also published two books: The Systematic Search for Entrepreneurial Discoveries (Praeger Press, 2002) and Prescriptive Entrepreneurship (Edward Elgar, 2008), both of which report on the testing of methods for improving entrepreneurial performance. He was ranked as the 5th most productive entrepreneurship researcher in the United States and the 8th most productive internationally. He has also received numerous awards for his research, including ones from the United States Association for Small Business and Entrepreneurship, the entrepreneurship division of the Academy of Management and the Babson research conference. He serves as an editor of Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice.

Denis Grégoire obtained his Ph.D. from the University of Colorado at Boulder (2005), and then worked for several years in the USA before returning to his native Canada. He now works at HEC Montréal, but he is also teaching doctoral courses at the University of St Gallen, Switzerland and at Technische Universität München, Germany. His research centres... on the cognitive processes supporting the identification of entrepreneurial opportunities, entrepreneurs’ decision to expand their firm’s activities abroad, and the evaluation of new venture funding presentations by bankers, angels and venture capitalists. His research mobilizes a variety of research designs, quantitative and qualitative methods, and analytical techniques. He serves on the editorial board of the Academy of Management Journal, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, the Journal of Business Venturing, the Journal of International Business Studies, the Journal of Management Studies and the Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal.

Jeffery S. McMullen is Editor-in-Chief of Journal of Business Venturing, Dale M. Coleman Chair in Management, and Professor of Entrepreneurship at the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University, USA. He studies entrepreneurship as both a process of self-discovery and socioeconomic change, investigating entrepreneurial cognition, motivation, action, and opportunity in the contexts of conventional, social, sustainable, and development entrepreneurship. His research has received numerous awards and honors and has appeared in premier journals, including Academy of Management Review, Strategic Management Journal, Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of Business Venturing, and Journal of Management Studies. An award-winning teacher, Dr. McMullen currently serves on several editorial boards and is the outgoing Editor-in-Chief of Business Horizons.

Mike Wright is professor of entrepreneurship at Imperial College Business School, UK and director of the Centre for Management Buy-out Research. He is visiting professor at the University of Ghent and chair of the Society for the Advancement of Management Studies. He has published over 50 books and over 400 articles on entrepreneurship ownership mobility in leading journals such as the Academy of Management Journal, the Academy of Management Review, the Strategic Management Journal, the Review of Economics and Statistics, the Journal of Management Studies, the Journal of Management, Research Policy and the Journal of Business Venturing. His latest books include The Chicago Handbook of Technology Transfer and Academic Entrepreneurship (with Al Link and Donald Siegel, University of Chicago Press, 2014) and How to Get Published in the Best Management Journals (with Timothy Clark and Dave Ketchen, Edward Elgar, 2016). He was recently ranked number 1 worldwide for publications in entrepreneurship. He is an editor of the Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal and the Academy of Management Perspectives and a past chair of the Academy of Management Entrepreneurship Division.