About the editors

Professor Adrian Wilkinson Adrian Wilkinson is Professor of Employment Relations, Griffith University, Australia. He holds a Visiting Professorship at Loughborough University, UK and is an Academic Fellow at the Centre for International Human Resource Management at the Judge Institute, University of Cambridge, UK.

Adrian was appointed as a British Academy of Management Fellow in 2010. In 2011 he was elected as an Academician of the Academy of Social Sciences as recognition of his contribution to the field. In 2012 he was shortlisted by HR magazine for the award of ‘HR Most Influential International Thinker’ (http://www.hrmostinfluential.co.uk/results/hrmost-influential-2012-shortlist-international-thinkers).

Dr Donald Hislop Donald is a Reader in the School of Business and Economics at Loughborough University, UK. He is Head of the Human Resource Management and Organisational Behaviour Discipline (HRMOB) Group, and Deputy Director of the Centre for Professional Work and Society. Donald’s areas of interest are the socio-cultural aspects of knowledge management and mobile working and the use of mobile information technologies.

Professor Christine Coupland After working for a number of years in personnel and staff development Christine completed a PhD in the area of careers, identity and graduate trainees in 2001 at Nottingham University Business School, UK. She recently joined the School of Business and Economics at Loughborough University, UK as a Chair in Organisational Behaviour, from Hull University Business School, UK. She currently holds an Honorary Chair position in the School of Management, St Andrews University, UK.

Christine has published in a wide range of international journals, including Human Relations, Organization Studies, Organization, Journal of Management Studies and Journal of Vocational Behaviour.

Her current academic roles include: Senior Editor for Organization Studies, British Academy of Management (BAM) member, and co-founder of the Special Interest Group ‘Identity’. She regularly convenes research streams at the BAM conferences.

Christine’s research interests centre on issues of identity and language drawing upon theoretical perspectives from organization studies and constructionist social psychology. More specifically, the individual in interaction with the institution of work and organizations in intersection with their various audiences have been the foci of her past research. Her published work is broadly an exploration of identities, career and corporate web pages. More recently, in keeping with an interest in theorizing the processes of organizing career, she has been working in the area of the ageing working population. Current research interests include exploring professional sports people’s lives, and embodied careers in constant transition.