
Contributors

Rachel J. Anderson is a Professor of Law at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, William S. Boyd School of Law. Her research focuses on international business, regulation, policy and human rights. Professor Anderson earned her Juris Doctor at the University of California, Berkeley, her MA (International Policy Studies) from Stanford University and her Zwischenpruefung (British and American Studies) from the Humboldt University of Berlin. She also worked on international development projects and business transactions at MVV Consulting GmbH in Berlin, Germany, and Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom (UK) LLP, respectively. Professor Anderson has published a book chapter on international trade and articles in reputed general and specialty law journals, as well as publications for legal practitioners. Her work is widely cited in law reviews, books and other publications. Professor Anderson is a Director of the American Society of Comparative Law, and a member of the Advisory Board of the Guinn Center for Policy Priorities and the investment committee of Nevada's evergreen venture capital program. She is the recipient of numerous honors and awards, including from several members of the US Congress, Lawyers of Color Magazine, The National Jurist, pre-Law Magazine, the Urban Chamber of Commerce, the Progressive Leadership Alliance of Nevada and the National Bar Association's Law Professors Division.

Megan Bowman is currently a Lecturer in the Dickson Poon School of Law at King's College London. She is also a climate finance consultant and qualified barrister and solicitor of the High Court of Australia and Supreme Court of Victoria with a PhD from the Australian National University, an LLM from McGill University, and a double degree in Arts and Law (with Honours) from Monash University. Dr. Bowman's research focuses on the intersections between commercial, financial and environmental regulation with emphasis on corporate actors in transnational contexts. She has presented on this work at Tsinghua and Cambridge Universities and also at Stanford and Harvard Law Schools. Her first book, Banking on Climate Change: How Finance Actors and Transnational Regulatory Regimes Are Responding (Wolters Kluwer, 2015), combines empirical and theoretical insights to inform best practice in regulating socially responsible finance and investment across key market economies and China. Dr. Bowman's teaching portfolios have included Commercial Law, Finance for International Trade, Environmental Law, and Public International Law. She has taught previously in Australia and Canada and received a Vice Chancellor's Teaching Excellence Award.

Larry Catá Backer is the W. Richard and Mary Eshelman Faculty Scholar and Professor of Law and International Affairs at the Pennsylvania State University (BA Brandeis University; MPP Harvard University Kennedy School of Government; JD Columbia University). His research focuses on governance-related issues of globalization and the constitutional theories of public and private governance, with a focus on multinational corporations, production chains and the institutional frameworks where public and private law systems converge. He teaches courses in constitutional law, corporate law (including multinational corporations), transnational law, and international organizations. His publications include Lawyers Making Meaning: The Semiotics of Law in Legal Education (Springer, 2013), and Signs in Law: A Source Book (Springer, 2014) (both with Jan Broekman), casebooks, Comparative Corporate Law (Carolina Academic Press, 2002) and Law and Religion: Cases, Materials and Readings (West, 2015, with Frank S. Ravitch), an edited collection of essays, Harmonizing Law in an Era of Globalization (Carolina Academic Press, 2007) and a number of articles and contributions to published collections of essays. Shorter essays on various aspects of globalization and governance appear on his essay site, 'Law at the End of the Day', <http://lcbackerblog.blogspot.com>. His publications and other work are available on his personal website: <http://www.backerinlaw.com/Site/> or through the Social Science Research Network: <http://ssrn.com/author=259226>.

Anna Chou earned a BA in Ethics, Economics, and Politics from Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey. This individualized course of study was designed with an emphasis on examining pressing issues with different perspectives, encouraging a holistic evaluation and effective decision-making relevant to the current world. Her research interests focus on corporate social responsibility, especially as related to the food industry, access and policy. Currently, she is a management consultant, working with health industry players in operations strategy and improvement. Originally from New Jersey, Anna now resides in southern California.

Alice de Jonge is a Senior Lecturer in law at Monash Business School, Monash University. Her post-graduate qualifications include an SJD and a Graduate Diploma in Asian Law from the University of Melbourne Law School, and a post-graduate certificate from Fudan University, Shanghai, China. She is the author of three books, including Transnational Corporations and International Law: Accountability in the Global Business Environment (Edward Elgar, 2011), as well as various book chapters and journal articles. Alice lectures in the post-graduate subjects international law and policy and comparative Asian business law, and has taught in Singapore, South Africa and China.

George Gilligan is a Senior Research Fellow in the Centre for Corporate Law and Securities Regulation at the Melbourne Law School at the University of Melbourne. His post-graduate qualifications include a PhD and MPhil from the University of Cambridge and an MA from La Trobe University. He has taught at the University of Cambridge, Exeter University and Middlesex University in the United Kingdom, and La Trobe University, the University of Melbourne and Monash University in Australia. His research interests centre on: governance and regulatory theory and practice, especially in relation to the financial sector; white-collar crime; organized crime and corruption. He has published extensively in these areas and conducted numerous field research projects (which have included commissions from government agencies as well as competitive research grants), examining the praxis of regulation, resulting in numerous appearances as an expert witness before parliamentary committees.

Deborah Gleeson holds a Bachelor of Applied Science, a Graduate Diploma in Health Promotion, a Master of Public Health and a PhD in Health Policy. She is a Lecturer in Public Health in La Trobe University's School of Psychology and Public Health and an Associate of La Trobe University's Centre for Health Law and Society. Her primary research interest centres on the intersection between trade policy and public health. She convenes the Political Economy of Health Special Interest Group of the Public Health Association of Australia (PHAA) and represents PHAA on matters related to trade agreements. Her publications include over 20 peer-reviewed articles on trade and health, invited editorials in the Medical Journal of Australia and the New Zealand Medical Journal, many submissions to government departments and inquiries and over 30 opinion pieces published in Australian and international media outlets. A frequent media commentator, she has been interviewed on ABC Radio and quoted in the New York Times, the Sydney Morning Herald and the Guardian. She received a President's Award 2015 from the Public Health Association of Australia for public health leadership, engagement and commitment on the impact of international trade issues on health.

Maria Alejandra Gonzalez-Perez (PhD, MBS, Psy) is Full Professor of Management at Universidad EAFIT (Colombia). Maria Alejandra is the Vice-President of the Academy of International Business (AIB) (from 2015 until 2018), coordinator of the Colombian universities in the virtual institute of the United Nations Conference for Trade and Development (UNCTAD) (2009–present), and Editor-in-Chief of the business journal AD-minister. Prof. Gonzalez-Perez is the past Head of the Department of International Business (2009–2013) and former Director of the International Studies Research Group (2008–2013) at Universidad EAFIT (Colombia). Prior to her positions in Colombia, she worked as a researcher in various organisations such as the Centre for Innovation and Structural Change (CISC), Irish Chambers of Commerce, and the Economics of Social Policy Research Unit (ESPRU) in Ireland.

Virginia Harper Ho is a Professor of Law at the University of Kansas School of Law. Her recent scholarship has focused on shareholder activism, the boundaries and governance of transnational corporations and the intersections of corporate governance, legal compliance and sustainability in mainland China and the United States. Her work has been published by the Journal of Corporation Law, by leading international and comparative law journals, and by the University of California-Berkeley's Institute for East Asian Studies, among others. She received her JD, cum laude, from Harvard Law School and spent nearly a decade representing global companies in cross-border transactions and related compliance matters.

Jodie A. Kirshner is a research professor at New York University. Previously, she served as a technical advisor to the Bank for International Settlements and a visiting scholar and lecturer at Columbia Law School, teaching international bankruptcy law. Until 2014, she was on the law faculty at Cambridge University and also served as the deputy director of the Cambridge LLM program, the deputy director of the Cambridge Centre for Corporate and Commercial Law, and as a fellow of Peterhouse College, Cambridge. She is a senior research associate of the Cambridge Centre for Business Research, a fellow of the Columbia Center for Law and Economics, the Salzburg Global Seminar, and the Center for Law Economics and Finance in Washington, and has been a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations. Kirshner received her undergraduate degree from Harvard University, graduate degrees in law and in journalism from Columbia University, and studied in the UK as a Fulbright Scholar. Her book on international corporate bankruptcy law will be published by the University of Chicago Press in 2016.

Diane Kraal is a Senior Lecturer in tax law at the Monash Business School, Monash University, Australia. Her research areas include natural resource taxation.

Diane has worked in the financial services sector as the taxation manager with Australia's largest administrator of industry superannuation funds. Diane has also worked in the minerals resource sector with Conzinc Rio Tinto, Australia (CRA) Ltd.

In 2014 the National Research Institute of Papua New Guinea appointed Dr Kraal and Dr Craig Emerson (former Federal Minister with the Rudd and Gillard governments) to work on a petroleum and mining tax reform project, 'Analysis of Taxation Policies and Reforms Affecting Individuals and Businesses in PNG'. Tax reform in Papua New Guinea has the support of the International Monetary Fund (IMF). In 2015 Diane received a grant from the Government of Papua New Guinea to continue work on tax reform in the PNG mining sector, and the recommendations were included in the PNG Tax Review Committee's Final Report to Government. In 2015 Diane was awarded a Visiting Fellowship to the Australian National University to research about the impact of resource commodity prices on tax revenues. In 2016 Diane is visiting the extractive industry research team at the IMF, Washington DC.

Liam Leonard (BA; M Phil; PhD) is a researcher and international academic consultant based in University of California, Los Angeles USA. He is also an Adjunct Professor at West Virginia University, USA. Previously, Liam has been Chair of the Criminology Association of Ireland and a former Member Secretary and President of the Sociology Association of Ireland. He lectures in Sociology and Criminology.

Dr. Leonard was the senior academic and primary instructor on the award-winning Custodial Care Program, which trained over 1,000 recruits in a humane approach to prison and corrections for the Irish Prison Service. The author/editor of over 20 books and numerous journal articles, he is Senior Editor of the Ecopolitics Books Series, the Advances in Sustainability and Environmental Justice Book Series (both with Emerald UK) and founding editor of the CRIMSOC Journal of Social Criminology. Dr. Leonard has edited the 2011 Irish issue of the Prison Journal, as well as special issues of Environmental Politics and the Irish Journal of Sociology. Dr. Leonard was awarded the Sage Publishing Research Excellence Award in New York as well as the NAIRTL Research and Teaching Award in 2012, and he has over 12 years' experience as an academic and lecturer in the National University of Ireland and the Irish Institute of Technology sectors. He has given papers at the European Sociology Association, European Criminology Association, the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences, the European Group for Crime and Deviance and the Irish Sociology and Irish Criminology Conferences. Dr. Leonard sits on the editorial boards of several academic journals, including the Prison Journal and the Journal of Criminal Psychology.

Ruth Lopert (BMed, MMedSc, FAFPHM) is a public health physician and pharmacoeconomist, and is currently an adjunct professor in the Department of Health Policy and Management in the Milken Institute School of Public Health, and Adjunct Professor of Clinical Research and Leadership in the School of Medicine and Health Sciences at George Washington University in Washington DC. A 2006–2007 Commonwealth Fund Harkness Fellow, she was the Principal Medical Adviser in the Australian drug regulatory agency, the Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA) from 2008 to 2011, and in 2005–2006 established and directed the Pharmaceutical Policy Taskforce in the federal Department of Health. In 2003–2004 she was primary negotiator of the pharmaceutical provisions of the Australia–US Free Trade Agreement. She has worked as a consultant in pharmaceutical policy in several low- and middle-income countries for the World Bank and NICE-International and is the author of over 40 peer-reviewed journal articles and book chapters, in major journals such as the Lancet, Health Policy, Health Affairs and Milbank Quarterly. Her research interests include comparative health policy; pharmaceutical policy and pricing; health technology assessment (HTA); therapeutics regulation; intellectual property (IP); and issues at the intersections of trade, IP, and access to care.

Erik Monasterio (MB ChB, FRANZCP) is a Consultant in Forensic Psychiatry and Clinical Director, with the Canterbury District Health Board's Regional Forensic Service, and Senior Clinical Lecturer in psychological medicine, University of Otago, Christchurch. Dr Monasterio has research interests and publications in personality characteristics, accidents and physiologic stress responses of extreme athletes, off-label use of antipsychotic medications, impact of trade agreements on access and equity in healthcare and health policy. He is also a founding member of Doctors for the Protection of Health in Trade Agreements ('Drs for Healthy Trade'), a New Zealand network of doctors and other health professionals committed to ensuring that trade agreements do not compromise effective and equitable health policy.

Pat Neuwelt (PhD, FNZCPHM, FRNZCGP) is a Senior Lecturer in public health and health systems at the University of Auckland. Pat's clinical experience includes general practice (in both Canada and New Zealand), palliative care and public health medicine. Her research focuses on addressing inequities in access to primary care in New Zealand and, more recently, on the health implications of international trade agreements. She was a co-author on the Feb/15 'international call' on the TPPA and health in The Lancet and has published on the potential implications of the TPPA for access to medicines. She is a founding member of Doctors for the Protection of Health in Trade Agreements ('Drs for Healthy Trade'), a New Zealand network of doctors and other health professionals committed to ensuring that trade agreements do not compromise effective and equitable health policy. She is a co-author of the Policy on Trade and Health of the Public Health Association of New Zealand.

Justin O'Brien is a specialist in the dynamics of financial regulation, with particular reference to capital market governance. He is the author of a trilogy of books on regulatory politics: Wall Street on Trial (2003), Redesigning Financial Regulation (2007) and Engineering a Financial Bloodbath (2009). He has recently published a political biography of the founder of capital market regulation in the United States, The Triumph, Tragedy and Lost Legacy of James M. Landis: A Life on Fire (2014). Professor O'Brien holds visiting positions at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University and UNSW Law in Sydney. He is a former recipient of the prestigious Australian Research Council Future Fellowship, a four-year research only position.

Roman Tomasic is a Professor of Law at the University of South Australia Business School and a Visiting Professor of Company Law at the Durham Law School in the UK. He holds doctorates in law and in sociology and has published widely in the areas of corporate law and regulation. He also has a scholarly interest in comparative corporate law and in the use of empirical methods in the study of large corporate groups and corporate law. In recent times, he has written on the limits of legal regulation of international financial markets. He has undertaken major empirical studies of listed companies in Australia and China and is currently looking at the globalisation of Chinese companies and the governance of Chinese companies in Australia.

Andreas Rühmkorf is a Lecturer in Commercial Law at the University of Sheffield (UK). He completed his Law Degree at the Westfälische Wilhelms-Universität in Münster, Germany and obtained his PhD Degree in Law from the University of Sheffield in 2013. Andreas sat for his Second State Exam in law at North Rhine Westphalia, Germany, and was admitted to practice as a German lawyer (Rechtsanwalt) in 2007.

Andreas' research focuses on the legal aspects of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR), responsible supply chains as well as corporate governance and company law. At the University of Sheffield, Andreas teaches both at undergraduate (LLB) and postgraduate (LLM) level in, inter alia, the areas of corporate law, comparative corporate governance, E-Commerce law and internet privacy. He has also been a visiting lecturer in company law at the Westfälische Wilhelms-Universität, Münster since 2012.

Andreas is the author of the monograph Corporate Social Responsibility, Private Law and Global Supply Chains, published by Edward Elgar

Publishing in June 2015. He has published several articles and chapters in his areas of research interest and he has also been a contributing editor of the loose-leaf commentary D. McClean et al. (eds), Shawcross and Beaumont on Air Law (LexisNexis), an international commentary on aviation law which is updated twice a year, since 2013.

Manuel Wörsdörfer is currently a research fellow (Privatdozent) at the Cluster of Excellence 'The Formation of Normative Orders' and associate member of the Centre for Business Ethics at Goethe University, Frankfurt. He has also been working as a visiting research fellow at Beijing University, Carnegie Mellon University, the University of Pittsburgh, the University of Toronto and York University.

Manuel's research interests in business ethics include business and human rights, political CSR, corporate citizenship and governance, multi-stakeholder CSR-initiatives and sustainable finance. In his habilitation thesis, he analyzed the Equator Principles, a voluntary and soft law CSR-initiative in the project finance sector, from a business and human rights perspective.

Most of Manuel's research has been presented at prestigious international conferences, such as the annual conferences of the Australasian Business Ethics Network, the European Business Ethics Network and the Society for Business Ethics, and has been published in peer-reviewed journals, such as Business and Society Review, European Journal of the History of Economic Thought, Journal of Business Ethics Education, Journal of the History of Economic Thought, OEconomia, Philosophy of Management, Transnational Legal Theory and Journal for Business, Economics and Ethics.