

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Introduction Patrik Wikström and Robert DeFillippi	1
PART I MUSIC INDUSTRY TRANSFORMATION IN CONTEXT
1 From record selling to cultural entrepreneurship: the music economy in the digital paradigm shift Peter Tschmuck	13
2 Back in black: rethinking core competencies of the recorded music industry Holly Tessler	33
3 Crisis and creative destruction: new modes of appropriation in the twenty-first century music industry Jim Rogers and Paschal Preston	53
4 The fallacy of composition and disruption in the music industry Robert G. Hammond	73
PART II CHANGING BUSINESS MODELS
5 Digital disruption and recording studio diversification: changing business models for the digital age Allan Watson	95
6 The influence of disruptive technologies on radio promotion strategies in the music industry: a case study of one micro-firm's decision-making practice David Schreiber	114
7 The Chinese music industries: top down in the bottom-up age Guy Morrow and Fangjun Li	133

PART III STREAMING MUSIC SERVICES AND THE FUTURE OF MUSIC

8	Slicing the pie: the search for an equitable recorded music economy Aram Sinnreich	153
9	Lessons from the world's most advanced market for music streaming services Daniel Nordgård	175
10	More music is better music Pelle Snickars	191
11	You have 24 hours to invent the future of music: music hacks, playful research and creative innovation Andrew Dubber	211
	Index	229