

Contributors

---

Henrik P. Bang is Professor of Governance at the Institute for Governance and Policy Analysis (IGPA), the University of Canberra, Australia. He mainly publishes within the fields of political participation and political theory.

Koen P.R. Bartels is Lecturer in Management Studies at the Business School, Bangor University, UK. His research explores how public professionals and citizens communicate, relate and change in their encounters, and how social justice, power inequalities, welfare and democracy are affected.

Victor Bekkers is a Professor in the Department of Public Administration of the Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. His research has been focused on numerous aspects of Public Administration (policy development, e-government, legitimacy of public organizations).

Tony Bovaird is Emeritus Professor of Public Management and Policy at INLOGOV, University of Birmingham, UK. He is also a non-executive director of Governance International. His research interests are public sector strategy, outcome-based commissioning and contracting, partnership working and user and community co-production.

Taco Brandsen is Professor of Public Administration at Radboud University Nijmegen, the Netherlands. His research interests include co-production, civil society and innovation in public services.

Arwin van Buuren is Associate Professor at the Department of Public Administration of the Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. His research interests are about collaborative governance and innovation in the field of water and climate adaptation.

Ellen Czaika is doing post-doctoral research on the water rights conflict among riparian nations in the Nile River Basin. She received her PhD in Engineering Systems: Technology, Policy, and Management from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, USA. Her research studies the use of data and models in sustainability negotiations and decision-making processes.

Bas Denters is Professor of Public Governance in the Department of Public Administration at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. He is Scientific Director of the Netherlands Institute for Government (NIG).

Mike Duijn is Senior Researcher at the Department of Public Administration of the Erasmus University Rotterdam and TNO, the Netherlands. His research is about the governance of innovation with regard to water, energy and soil issues.

Mary Duniam is a PhD Candidate within the Institute for Regional Development (University of Tasmania, Australia) whose focus is on the value proposition of relationships between local government in Tasmania and local social enterprises.

Jurian Edelenbos is Professor of Interactive Governance in the fields of urban affairs and water management at the Department of Public Administration and Sociology, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. His research areas are: trust, public participation, civic self-organization, network management, democracy and legitimacy.

Gerald Jan Ellen is Senior Researcher / Consultant Public Administration at Deltares, the Netherlands. His work focuses on the subject of innovation in policy making and decision making, especially with regard to soil and water management and spatial planning.

Robyn Eversole is Associate Professor and Director of the Institute for Regional Development at the University of Tasmania, Australia. She is an anthropologist who studies local development.

Sandra Groeneveld is a Professor in Public Management at the Institute of Public Administration of Leiden University, the Netherlands. Her research interests include the structure and management of public organizations.

Erik Hans Klijn is Professor at the Department of Public Administration and Sociology, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. He has published on governance networks, complex decision-making and media attention and branding.

Jan Kooiman was Emeritus Professor of Public Organizations and Management at the Erasmus University Rotterdam and was Guest Scholar at the University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands. In his research he concentrated on the study of interactive governance and governability theoretically and its application to fisheries world-wide.

Elke Loeffler is Chief Executive of Governance International and a Research Associate of INLOGOV, University of Birmingham, UK. Her research interests are user and community co-production, quality management in public services, and the evaluation of public governance and public management reforms.

Ingmar van Meerkerk is Postdoctoral Researcher at the Department of Public Administration and Sociology, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. His research fields are self-organization, boundary spanning and trust in interactive governance and he specifically focuses on new forms of community engagements and public service delivery.

Stéphane Moyson is a Postdoctoral Fellow in Public Management and Policy at the Department of Public Administration of Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. He conducts public management research on the public service motivation and organizational socialization of public employees.

Bouke Ottow is Senior Consultant at Deltares, the Netherlands. His main field of expertise is water management. He is a professional facilitator of stakeholder processes in the field of water and wetland management and irrigation.

Yannis Papadopoulos is a Professor of Public Policy at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland. His research focuses on governance, accountability and democracy. He is currently co-editor of the European Journal of Political Research.

Kelly L. Patterson is an Associate Professor in the School of Social Work at the University at Buffalo, USA. Her research focuses on housing policy, social welfare and race relations.

B. Guy Peters is Maurice Falk Professor of American Government at the University of Pittsburgh, USA. He is currently Associate Editor of the Journal of Comparative Policy.

Jon Pierre is Professor of Political Science at the University of Gothenburg and Professor of Public Governance at the Melbourne School of Government, University of Melbourne, Australia.

Molly Ranahan is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Urban and Regional Planning at the University at Buffalo, USA. Her research focuses on ageing and housing needs in LGBT communities.

Asbjørn Røiseland is Professor in Political Science at Nord University, Norway. His research interests include hybrid forms of governance and democracy.

Danya Rumore is the Associate Director of the Wallace Stegner Center's Environmental Dispute Resolution Program and a Research Assistant Professor in the S.J. Quinney College of Law and the Department of City and Metropolitan Planning at the University of Utah, USA. Her research focuses on collaborative decision making in the context of science-intensive environmental planning and management.

Michal Russo is a PhD candidate at Tufts University and a Water Diplomacy IGERT fellow, USA. Her research focuses on resilience and collective risk management for flooding in coastal communities.

Todd Schenk is an Assistant Professor in the Urban Affairs and Planning Program of the School of Public and International Affairs at Virginia Tech, USA. His research focuses on collaborative governance, particularly in areas with significant complexity and uncertainty.

Robert Mark Silverman is a Professor in the Department of Urban and Regional Planning at the University at Buffalo, USA. His research focuses on community development, housing and education.

Jonathan Sobels is Adjunct, Barbara Hardy Institute, University of South Australia. His research interests are governance of natural resources especially common pool resources, local organizations, cooperative behaviour and social capital.

Tina Søndergård Madsen has a Master's in Public Administration from Roskilde University and currently works within the field of international development in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Eva Sørensen is Professor of Public Administration and Democracy at the Department of Society and Globalization, Roskilde University, Denmark and Vice-Director of the Roskilde School of Governance. Her research interests include governance networks, democracy, political leadership and public innovation.

Jacob Torfing is Professor of Politics and Institutions at the Department of Society and Globalization, Roskilde University, Denmark and Director of the Roskilde School of Governance. His research interests include governance reform, interactive forms of governance, collaborative innovation and public management.

Peter Triantafillou is a Professor of Public Policy and Performance Management at the Department of Society and Globalisation, Roskilde University, Denmark. He currently researches power/knowledge relations within public health policies and performance management schemes.

Signy Irene Vabo is Professor of Political Science at the University of Oslo, Norway. Her research interests are local governance and democracy and multilevel governance.

William Voorberg is a PhD candidate at the Department of Public Administration at the Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. His research is focused on the effects and outcome of co-creation between citizens and public organizations.

Hendrik Wagenaar is Professor in the Department of Urban Studies and Planning at the University of Sheffield, UK. He is also Associate Director of the Crick Centre for Understanding Politics at that university.

Steven van de Walle is a Professor of Public Management at the Department of Public Administration of Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. His research focuses on bureaucratic encounters and public sector reform.

Li Yin is an Associate Professor in the Department of Urban and Regional Planning at the University at Buffalo, USA. Her research focuses on spatial modelling, GIS and urban morphology.

