

Contributors

Dimitris Assimakopoulos is a Professor of Technology and Innovation Management at EM Lyon Business School in France and Director of its Global Executive DBA. He serves as the President of the European Doctoral Association in Management and Business Administration (EDAMBA). Dimitris is a faculty member at the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Management, an EU Marie Curie scholar and supervisor, and has twice been a visiting scholar in Economic Sociology at Stanford University. His research for the past 20 years has focused on socio-technical networks and the origins and evolution of technological communities in the context of emerging knowledge-based innovations in the EU, USA and China. Dimitris has led and/or participated in several multimillion-euro projects with world-class companies. He has published ten books and 70 chapters and articles in journals, such as Environment and Planning B, Organizational Dynamics, R&D Management, International Small Business Journal and Sloan Management Review.

Daniela Baglieri is Professor in Strategic Management at the University of Messina (Italy) where she serves as Vice-President for Innovation and Technology Transfer. Visiting scholar at Carlson Management School (University of Minnesota, USA), Grenoble Ecole de Management (France) and Texas A&M University (USA), she received her PhD in Business Administration from the University of Catania (Italy) and a Master of Science in Management of Innovation from Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies, Pisa (Italy). Her research interests include innovation management, new ventures and business models, university–industry collaboration and clusters dynamics.

Zhao Chen is a Professor and the Deputy Director of the China Center for Economic Studies, Fudan University, China. He is also a Research Fellow at Kansai University, Japan; a Visiting Scholar at UNU-WIDER, Finland; IDEI, University of Toulouse I, France; a Senior Associate Member, St. Antony's College, Oxford University, UK; and a consultant to the World Bank. His main areas of interest are Chinese economy, urban and regional economics, industrial economics, information and incentive theory. He publishes in Journal of Comparative Economics, Review of Income and Wealth, Journal of the Asia Pacific Economy, Economic Modelling, Social Sciences in China and Chinese Economy, among others.

Maria Cristina Cinici is Assistant Professor of Business Economics and Management at the University of Messina, Italy. She received her PhD from the University of Catania, Italy, and was postdoctoral research fellow at Grenoble Ecole de Management, France, and visiting scholar at New York University's Stern School of Business, USA. Her research interests revolve around managerial and entrepreneurial cognitions, cluster evolution and the contribution of semiotic approaches to strategic management research. She has been editor of a book on research methods. She has also authored a book, several book chapters and research papers published in national and international journals, such as Technovation.

Louis Daily, PhD, studied economics at La Salle University and social science at West Chester University and Bryn Mawr College, USA. He has taught research and statistics and social science subjects for more than 25 years at many Philadelphia-area colleges including Temple University, Holy Family College, Camden County Community College and the University of Phoenix. He was a data analyst and researcher for the City of Philadelphia Health Department and Department of Human Services for many years. His publications are varied, including non-verbal communication, emotions and quality control. He has a strong interest in the problems of developing economies and their relationships with international institutions such as the IMF and World Bank.

Tinghua Duan is a PhD candidate of Finance at the University of Edinburgh Business School, UK. He obtained his Bachelor's degree in Economics from China Agricultural University and Master of Science (MSc) in Economics and Finance from Durham University Business School, UK. His current research interests include corporate governance and entrepreneurship.

Tony Fang is the Honorary Dean in the School of Economics and Management at the Yunnan Normal University, China. He is the Stephen Jarislowsky Chair in Economic and Cultural Transformation at Memorial University of Newfoundland, Canada and an Adjunct Associate Professor with Monash University, Australia and the University of Toronto, Canada. Currently he holds the Beyster Faculty Fellowship at Rutgers University, USA and sits on a World Bank's Expert Advisory Committee on Migration and Development. He was the President of the Chinese Economists Society (2012–2013). He was a visiting professor at Harvard University and Wharton School of Business, USA. He has published in such journals as Strategic Management Journal, Industrial and Labor Relations Review, Industrial Relations, British Journal of Industrial Relations, Journal of World Business and International Journal of Human Resource Management, among others. He received nine research awards from the SSHRC and five research grants from HRSDC in Canada. Financial assistance from the National Natural Science Funds of China (NSFC, Number 71203143).

Wenxuan Hou is Reader in Finance at the University of Edinburgh, UK and acts as an associate editor of European Journal of Finance, and a guest co-editor of the special issues of International Small Business Journal and Journal of Business Ethics. His research focuses on corporate governance and emerging markets. He has published more than 20 articles in internationally excellent academic journals.

Andrew Isaak is PhD candidate at the Institute for SME Research and Entrepreneurship of the University of Mannheim, Germany and project manager for online websites at the Dean's Office of the University's Business School. He is co-founder of tommoko.com, a crowdfunding platform for academics and previously served as coordinator of the experimental economics lab at the Alfred-Weber-Institute for Economics at the University of Heidelberg, Germany.

Robert Isaak is the author or co-author of 11 books including Brave New World Economy (with economist Wilhelm Hankel), The Globalization Gap, Managing World Economic Change, Green Logic: Ecopreneurship, Theory and Ethics and Modern Inflation (with Wilhelm Hankel). Included in Who's Who in Finance and Business, he has taught as Henry George Professor of International Management at Pace University in New York, USA (courses in international management, comparative management, creativity and entrepreneurship across cultures, and venture initiation). He has consulted for global enterprises including Siemens, Technicon, Prudential Intercultural and Global Intercultural, and has taught at many places in the world including the University of Heidelberg, Germany, the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies in Bologna, Italy, Groupe École Supérieure de Commerce de Grenoble, SKEMA European Graduate School of Management in Sophia Antipolis, France and Franklin College in Lugano, Switzerland. He holds a BA from Stanford University and a PhD from New York University, USA. He continues to teach at Pace University and Franklin College, USA as well as at the University of Mannheim, Germany.

Kent Wickstrøm Jensen, PhD, is Associate Professor in the Department of Entrepreneurship and Relationship Management at the Faculty of Social Science, University of Southern Denmark. He is a member of the Danish Global Entrepreneurship Monitor team and a member of the Sino-Danish

Center for Education and Research. His research focuses on knowledge and networks in business and entrepreneurship. Recent areas of interest have centered on entrepreneurial effects of the institutional embedding of networks. He has published several articles in international journals including Knowledge Management Research & Practice, Estudios de Economía, International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Small Business and Journal of Chinese Economic and Business Studies.

Ki-Chan Kim, PhD, is a full Professor of Business Administration at the Catholic University of Korea and Research Professor in the Center for Corporate Longevity of Seoul National University, Korea. He is President-Elect of the International Council for Small Business and Editor of the Journal of Small Business Management. He has held many other offices in academia and in academic publishing and has been the recipient of many awards. Dr. Kim has been an advisor to giants such as Samsung Electronics and Hyundai Motor Company. He is the author of Look at the World Through the Eyes of a Platform, and is renowned in the field of platform management. Dr. Kim earned his PhD at Seoul National University. He has been a visiting scholar at MIT, USA and Tokyo University, Japan.

Xiaohui Liu is Professor of International Business and Strategy at the School of Business and Economics, Loughborough University, UK. She received her PhD from the University of Birmingham, UK and has published in various journals, including Strategic Management Journal, Journal of International Business Studies, Research Policy, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, Journal of World Business, Management International Review, International Business Review and Management and Organization Review. Her main research interests include knowledge spillovers, human mobility, innovation and the internationalization strategies of firms from emerging economies. She is Senior Editor of Management and Organization Review and Advisory Editor of Research Policy.

Dimitris Mavridis has studied economics in Greece, France, the USA and Hungary. He is currently finishing a doctoral thesis at the University of Luxembourg. His research interests focus on the areas of economic theory, the economics of innovation and growth, and industrial organization. His current research is part of an ongoing program concerning the formation of R&D collaborations and innovation networks.

Mabel Lu Miao is Executive Secretary-General of the Center for China and Globalization (CCG), Deputy Secretary General of the China Global Talent Society and Deputy Director-General of the International Writing Centre of Beijing Normal University, China. She obtained her PhD on Contemporary Chinese Studies from Beijing Normal University in 2012 and she had been a visiting scholar at China House of New York University and at Fairbank Center of Harvard University, USA in 2010–2011. She has participated in a number of research projects for the Chinese government and the Social Science Foundation, and she has published many research papers and books, such as Global Talent Blue Book: The Chinese Overseas Students Development Report 2013 and Global Talent Blue Book: The Chinese Overseas Returnees Development Report 2013.

Alan Moore is an IT manager and risk professional who completed an international MBA from Vlerick Ghent School of Management at the University of Leuven, Belgium. He has been a doctoral Marie Curie fellow as part of the EU FP7 Management of Emerging Technologies for Economic Impact initial training network at the GEM LINC Lab, France. He also has work experience from and has studied in the UK, Ireland, Belgium and the Vatican, among others.

Yin Mon Myint currently serves as a Program Director of IGNITE as well as a Director of International Development at the Centre for Entrepreneurial Learning, Cambridge Judge Business School, University of Cambridge, UK. She takes a special interest in entrepreneurship, especially, building the practical skills necessary for bringing innovations to market in high growth sectors. Myint was previously a Program Director at the European Forum for Entrepreneurship Research (EFER), the Netherlands, managing the EC-funded EFER European Entrepreneurship Colloquium (EEC) to train European professors and educators in teaching entrepreneurship. She has a particular interest in understanding the people aspects – the social capital effect – of business formation in entrepreneurial cluster development. Her research on ‘social capital of the Cambridge cluster’ was awarded one of the top 50 articles in the Emerald Management Review 2005.

Tea Petrin is Emeritus Professor of Economics and Entrepreneurship and Coordinator of Study Programmes in South Eastern Europe in the Faculty of Economics, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. Dr. Petrin is a founding member of GEA College, a private school of entrepreneurship, in Yugoslavia in 1990, and in 1991 she introduced a Master’s program on entrepreneurship in the Faculty of Economics, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia and became its first program director. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Academic Industrial Research Network and a member of the Academic Advisors of the European Forum on Entrepreneurship Research and the UN Committee for Development Policy. Her main research interests include competitiveness, clusters, high-tech spin-off processes, entrepreneurship, entrepreneurial ecosystems and innovation-fueled growth. In terms of policy domains, she focuses on industrial and competitiveness policy, entrepreneurship policy and infrastructure development, entrepreneurship education, cluster policy and global governance.

Fei Qin is an Assistant Professor in Management at LSE, UK. Her research focuses on international entrepreneurship, business model innovation and global production networks. She has led research projects in China, India, Italy, the UK and the USA on entrepreneurship and global value chains. Her papers have appeared in leading academic journals such as Research Policy and Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal. One of her papers was selected by Emerald as among the top 50 academic articles in management worldwide in 2007. Dr. Qin holds a PhD from the Sloan School of Management at MIT, USA. She was Phelan Fellow at the International Labour Organization in Geneva, Switzerland in 2005.

Shahamak Rezaei, Ph.D., is Associate Professor at the Department of Society and Globalisation, Roskilde University, Denmark. He is a member of the Danish Global Entrepreneurship Monitor (GEM) Team and also affiliated with the Sino-Danish Research & Education Center (SDC) in the Innovation Management research group. His research has focused on migration, global entrepreneurship, migrant entrepreneurship, transnational entrepreneurship, the economic consequences of migration, industrial relations and comparative welfare state analysis. He has published extensively in various international peer-reviewed scientific journals. In 2014 he was appointed as Project Coordinator for the EU-funded Horizon2020–RISE Program entitled DiasporaLink, which covers 24 research activities between research institutions in the EU, Asia, Africa and the Americas.

Thomas Schøtt is Professor of Organization, Entrepreneurship and Social Network Analysis at the University of Southern Denmark. He teaches and researches entrepreneurs' networks, enterprises' business relations and the inclusion of youth in entrepreneurship. He gives workshops on entrepreneurship, organizations, methodology and networks, and consults to international organizations on entrepreneurship, organizing and development. He has published numerous monographs and articles, recently in International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Small Business, International Journal of Business and Globalization, Journal of Chinese Economics and Business Studies, Journal of Business and Entrepreneurship, Small Business Economics and International Journal of Gender and Entrepreneurship.

Fiona Sussan, MBA, PhD, is currently the founder of the Center for Global Business Research, School of Advanced Studies, University of Phoenix, USA. Her research has won awards from the Association for Consumer Research (ACR), American Marketing Association (AMA), Emerald, National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency and AMA American Collegiate Retailing Association, among others. Her work has been published in Journal of Business Research, International Marketing Review, Corporate Communications and Journal of Intellectual Capital, among others. She was recently a keynote speaker for the ASEAN-Korean Forum in Seoul, Korea. She serves on the editorial boards of various journals.

Maria Tsouri is a doctoral student of local economic development and global dynamics at the University of Trento, Italy. She studied Management and Informatics at the Universities of Staffordshire, UK and Macedonia, Thessaloniki, Greece. Her research interests include innovation management, knowledge transfer, social network analysis and local economic development.

Bin Wu is a Senior Research Fellow in the School of Contemporary Chinese Studies, and a founder and convener of the Centre for Chinese Migration Studies (CCMS), University of Nottingham. With an interdisciplinary training background, his research interests include: globalization, social justice and higher education reform in China and beyond, Chinese student migration, integration and diasporic Chinese community development in the UK and Europe. His recent publications include: Nottingham Chinese Community in Transition: A Survey of Community Cohesion, Integration and University Engagement (2013); Chinese Immigration into the EU: New Trends, Dynamics and Implications (ECRAN Paper, 2013 with Kevin Latham); Bringing Class Back In: Class Consciousness and Solidarity Amongst Chinese Migrant Workers in Italy and the UK (Ethnic and Racial Studies, 2014, with Hong Liu); Chinese Higher Education Reform and Social Justice (Routledge, 2016, edited volume with John Morgan). He is a co-editor of the International Journal of Diasporic Chinese Studies (in Chinese).

Wenxian Zhang is a Professor in the College of Arts and Sciences, research associate of the Rollins China Center and Arthur Vining Davis Fellow at Rollins College in Winter Park, Florida, USA. In addition to many articles on information studies, historical research and Chinese business management, his recent book publications include Biographical Dictionary of New Chinese Entrepreneurs and Business Leaders (Edward Elgar, 2009), A Guide to the Top 100 Companies in China (World Scientific, 2010), The Entrepreneurial and Business Elites of China: The Chinese Returnees Who Have Shaped Modern China (Emerald, 2011) and A Winter in Sunshine (Shanghai University Press, 2012).

Jan Zybura is a researcher in the fields of entrepreneurship, family business and leadership transition at the Institute for SME Research of the University of Mannheim, Germany. He is a Management PhD fellow at the Graduate School of Economics and Social Sciences and project manager at the Mannheim Center for Entrepreneurship and Innovation.