

Acknowledgements

This book is the outcome of an ILO research project on labour market institutions and inequality. I would like to thank the contributors of this volume, for taking the time out of their busy schedules to be part of the project, for the high quality of their work, and for their commitment to social justice. Many of them are my colleagues at the ILO; it is a pleasure and honour to work with them.

The initial drafts of the chapter were presented at a two-day technical workshop held in ILO headquarters in February 2013. I would like to thank the participants of the seminar, particularly Sukti Dasgupta, Marzia Fontana, Hansjörg Herr, Frank Hoffer, David Howell, Rolph van der Hoeven, David Kucera, Robert Kyloh, Massimiliano La Marca, Roxana Maurizio and Kirsten Sehnbruch, for providing helpful feedback and for contributing to an engaging and lively discussion.

I would like to thank Stephen Pursey, Director of the ILO Multilaterals Department, who gave me the time to work on the project and arranged financial resources to support it, as well as Philippe Marcadent, Director of the Inclusive Labour Markets, Labour Relations and Working Conditions (INWORK) branch of the ILO, for his support.

The completed manuscript benefitted from the detailed and extremely helpful comments of four anonymous reviewers. We hope that our revised drafts assuage any concerns they may have had.

Finally, I would like to thank ILO Publications, particularly Chris Edgar, for the helpful advice and support provided during the course of the project.
