Contributors

Mercédeh Azeredo da Silveira is an attorney specialising in international arbitration, and a member of the Geneva (Switzerland) and Paris (France) Bars. She represents corporate entities and governments before arbitral tribunals in both commercial and investment arbitration proceedings. She holds an LLM from Columbia Law School and a PhD from the University of Geneva Faculty of Law. Dr Azeredo da Silveira is the author of Trade Sanctions and International Sales – An Inquiry into International Arbitration and Commercial Litigation, which was published by Kluwer Law International in 2014 and was awarded the Professor Walther Hug Prize in 2015. She is also the author of a series of publications in the areas of international arbitration, international trade, contracts, economic sanctions and mediation. She is regularly invited to speak at conferences and has given guest lectures at the University of Geneva Faculty of Law, Columbia Law School and Fordham School of Law.

Kristen E. Boon is a Professor of Law at Seton Hall Law School and specialises in public international law and international organisations. Professor Boon acted as Senior Adviser to the Mission of Jordan at the UN during the 2014–2015 UN High Level Sanctions Review. She was also a Senior Visiting Adviser at the International Peace Institute in 2013, when she coordinated the publication of an implementation manual on WMD sanctions (available at [https://www.ipinst.org/2014/04/united-nations-sanctions-on-iran-and-north-korea-an-implementation-manual]) and wrote a policy report on terminating UN sanctions. Professor Boon is co-rapporteur for the ILA study group on UN sanctions.

Professor Boon holds a doctorate in law from Columbia Law School, and obtained a JD from New York University School of Law in 2000, an MA in Political Science from McGill University in 1996, and a BA with honours in Political Science and History from McGill University in 1994. Prior to joining Seton Hall she served as a clerk to Supreme Court of Canada Justice Ian Binnie and as a litigation associate with Debevoise & Plimpton in New York. She is a member of the Bar of New York (2002), the Law Society of Upper Canada (2003) and the US Supreme Court Bar (2008).

Amelia Broodryk joined the Institute for Security Studies (ISS) in 2007 and is currently a Communication officer in the Pretoria office. Prior to joining the Communication department, she worked as a Senior Researcher in ISS’ Transnational Threats and International Crime Division. She has extensive knowledge in the field of Africa and weapons of mass destruction disarmament and non-proliferation and has a Master’s degree in international studies from the University of Pretoria, South Africa.

Congyan Cai is a Professor of International Law at Xiamen University School of Law in China. He was a Fulbright Scholar and Global Research Fellow at New York University School of Law and Visiting Professor at Columbia Law School in the US.
viii Research handbook on UN sanctions and international law

Senior Research Fellow at Humboldt University School of Law in Germany, and Visiting Professor at Kobe University School of Law in Japan. His articles have been extensively published in Chinese and English journals, including the European Journal of International Law and the American Journal of International Law. He is working on a book entitled The Rise of China and International Law, which is forthcoming with Oxford University Press.

Daniëlla Dam-de Jong is Assistant Professor at the Department of Public International Law and the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies at Leiden University. She defended her PhD at the same university on a dissertation entitled International Law and Governance of Natural Resources in Conflict and Post-Conflict Situations for which she received a research prize by the Foundation Praemium Erasmianum and an honorary mention by the Max van der Stoel Human Rights Award. The dissertation has been published as a monograph by Cambridge University Press (2015). She is currently conducting a research project on the contribution of the UN Security Council to enforcing intra-state peace agreements. More generally, she is interested in questions relating to the fields of sustainable development, and peace and security, with a focus on the work of the UN Security Council. She is also a member of the ILA study group on UN sanctions and international law.

Professor Dam-de Jong has studied law at the Free University Amsterdam, specialising in public international and European law. In addition, she has studied French language and culture at the University of Lausanne and the Free University Amsterdam. She has previously worked as a policy officer at Campus The Hague of Leiden University and as a PhD candidate at the Department of Public International Law of Leiden University.

Eric De Brabandere is Professor of International Dispute Settlement at the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies. He is also Attorney-at-Law at the Brussels Bar practising in international law and arbitration, Editor-in-Chief of the Leiden Journal of International Law, Visiting Professor of International Investment Law at the University of Trento in Italy, a member of the Board of Editors of the Journal of World Investment & Trade, the Revue belge de droit international (Belgian Review of International Law), and the Martinus Nijhoff Investment Law Book series. Professor De Brabandere is a general international lawyer, with special expertise in international investment law and arbitration, and international dispute settlement. He is the author of several publications, including the book Investment Treaty Arbitration as Public International Law: Procedural Aspects and Implications (Cambridge University Press, 2014).

Anton du Plessis is the Executive Director of the ISS. He has worked on human security, international criminal justice and rule of law issues in over 20 African countries, with a focus on delivering training and technical assistance to senior law enforcement and criminal justice officials. Anton has three law degrees and is an admitted advocate of the High Court of South Africa with more than 14 years of legal and management experience. He has worked as a consultant and expert adviser to various UN entities and other intergovernmental organisations, including the UNSC’s Counter-Terrorism Executive Directorate and the UN Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force. He is a World Economic Forum Young Global Leader (2014–2020). He is also vice-chair of the Forum’s Global Agenda Council on Terrorism. Before assuming his current positions, Anton was head of the Transnational Threats and International Crimes Division (TTIC) at the ISS. Prior to joining the ISS to found TTIC in early 2008, he was a criminal justice and counter-terrorism legal expert for the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) in Vienna. Before that he was head of the Crime and Justice Programme at the ISS where he worked on a broad range of crime and criminal justice policy, research and technical assistance projects. Anton du Plessis has also worked as a Senior State Advocate at the National Prosecuting Authority of South Africa where he specialised in the prosecution of serious and violent offences, including rape and gang-related crimes. He has published numerous articles, book chapters and training guides, and is the co-author of Counter-Terrorism Law and Practice: A Practitioners’ Handbook published by Oxford University Press.

Pierre-Emmanuel Dupont is the Director of the Public International Law Advisory Group. He has advised a number of governments, as well as public and private entities and corporations, on public international law matters. He is currently serving as legal adviser to the UN Special Rapporteur on unilateral sanctions (unilateral coercive measures). He is a Senior Lecturer at the Free Faculty of Law, Economics and Management of Paris (FACO), where he teaches investment treaty arbitration and commercial arbitration. He is a member of the International Law Association’s (ILA) French Branch and the Board of Experts of the Hague Centre for Law and Arbitration. He holds a postgraduate degree in International Dispute Resolution from the University of Paris XII and a Master’s degree in Private Law from the University of Nantes.

The Honorable Sue E. Eckert is an Adjunct Senior Fellow at the Center for a New American Security, where she focuses on issues at the intersection of economics and national security. Research interests include economic statecraft, sanctions, terrorism and proliferation financing, and cybersecurity. She also is an Adjunct Professor of Law at Case Western Reserve Law School, teaching in the first Master’s degree programme in financial integrity.

She was appointed by President Clinton and confirmed by the US Senate as Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Export Administration (1993–1997), responsible for dual-use export control policy and defence industrial base programmes. Previously, she was a member of the professional staff of the US House of Representatives’ Committee on Foreign Affairs, where she oversaw national security/non-proliferation, international trade, and technology transfer issues.

From 1998 to 2016, Ms Eckert was Senior Fellow at Brown University’s Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs where she directed projects on UN targeted sanctions, terrorist financing and economic security. Recent publications include: Targeted Sanctions: The Impacts and Effectiveness of UN Action (Cambridge University Press, 2016); The Compendium of the High Level Review of UN Sanctions (resulting from the 2014–2015 initiative supported by five Member States and led by Ms Eckert and colleagues to strengthen the implementation of UN sanctions); and the ‘The Role of Sanctions’ in The UN Security Council in the 21st Century. She also collaborates with the US Naval War College, hosting biannual cybersecurity workshops and forming a new political economy of security initiative of scholars.

She co-led an international research initiative (Targeted Sanctions Consortium) of more than 50 scholars and practitioners examining the impacts and effectiveness of UN targeted sanctions, resulting in the creation of two new databases and a new online tool, SanctionsApp. Working extensively with national governments and UN bodies to enhance instruments of collective security, Ms Eckert co-authored Targeted Financial Sanctions: A Manual for Design and Implementation and the series of “Watson Reports” to address due process concerns in sanctions designations, and has participated in multilateral initiatives (the Interlaken, Bonn-Berlin and Stockholm Processes) and organised workshops, simulations and training for the Security Council and Member States, among others.

Ms Eckert has served as a consultant and member of numerous working groups and committees addressing security and technology issues, including the National Academy of Sciences Committee on Deterring Cyberattacks, and the Resource Group advising the United Nations High Level Panel on Threats, Challenges, and Change. She has testified before the US Congress and Canadian Parliament (2016), United Nations and European committees, and participated in numerous other international fora and is a frequent commentator on international security issues.

Ward Ferdinandusse is a Professor (by special appointment) of International Criminal Law at the University of Groningen and a senior Prosecutor in the National Division of the Dutch Department of Prosecutions. He studied law at the University of Amsterdam, Columbia University and New York University. He has authored a book entitled Direct Application of International Criminal Law in National Courts and has published extensively on international criminal law in various Dutch and international law journals. As a Public Prosecutor, he has worked on a number of prosecutions and extraditions concerning genocide, war crimes, torture, terrorism, maritime piracy, sanctions violations and organised crime. Among these prosecutions were cases concerning violations of sanctions imposed on Liberia, Iraq and the Tamil Tigers (LTTE).

Lisa Ginsborg is a Post-Doctoral Researcher at University College Dublin (UCD). She holds a PhD in Public International Law from the European University Institute (EUI) in Florence, Italy. She recently worked as a researcher at the EUI-based Centre for Media Pluralism and Media Freedom, and as a Teaching Fellow at the European Inter-University Centre for Human Rights and Democratisation. She was a visiting doctoral researcher at New York University School of Law and at the Sydney Centre for International Law at the University of Sydney. Before starting her doctoral studies, she worked in the legal department of the International Secretariat of Amnesty International (2006–2009) and in the NGO Liaison Office of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (2005–2006).

Matthew Happold is Professor of Public International Law at the University of Luxembourg. He is co-editor (with Paul Eden) and a contributor to Economic Sanctions and International Law (Hart Publishing, 2016). Since 2014, he has been a member of the Luxembourg Commission consultative des droits de l’homme, Luxembourg’s national human rights institution. Matthew also practises as a barrister from 3 Hare Court, London, including on sanctions issues.

David Holloway graduated with an MA in Law from Cambridge University and subsequently completed the European Masters degree in Law and Economics at Erasmus University Rotterdam. He was called to the English Bar by Gray’s Inn in London and practises as a barrister and arbitrator at Number 5 Chambers in London. He has considerable experience of international arbitration (both commercial and investment) and has been involved in several disputes concerning the applicability of international economic sanctions.

David Holloway is also a full-time member of the School of Law at City University of Hong Kong and Visiting Professor at Jiaotong University in Xi’an, PRC. His research focuses on international arbitration law and the law of international trade. He is co-author of Schmitthoff: The Law and Practice of International Trade, and General Editor of International Arbitration Law Review.

Devika Hovell is an Associate Professor in the Department of Law at the London School of Economics. Her book The Power of Process: The Value of Due Process in Security Council Sanctions Decision-making (2016) is published by Oxford University Press.

Daniel H. Joyner received a BA in Japanese from Brigham Young University, his JD from Duke University School of Law, an MA in Political Science from the University of Georgia, and a PhD in law from the University of Warwick School of Law in the United Kingdom. Prior to joining the Alabama Law faculty in 2007, Professor Joyner taught for four years on the faculty of the University of Warwick School of Law. During Michaelmas Term 2005, he was also a Senior Associate Member of St. Antony’s College, Oxford University. Professor Joyner is the author of International Law and the Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction (2009); Interpreting the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty (2011); and Iran’s Nuclear Program and International Law: From Confrontation to Accord (2016).

Machiko Kanetake is Assistant Professor of Public International Law at Utrecht University. She received her PhD from Kyoto University, LLM at the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), and an MA in Law from the University of Sheffield. During 2011–2014, she was a post-doctoral researcher at the University of Amsterdam. She was also appointed as a Hauser Visiting Doctoral Researcher of the Global Fellows Program at New York University School of Law in 2010–2011, a Visiting Researcher at the University of Sydney in 2012, a Visiting Fellow at the Human Rights Program at Harvard Law School in 2014–2015, and a Visiting Fellow at the Transnational Law Institute of the Dickson Poon School of Law, King’s College London in 2015.

Jeremy I. Levitt is Distinguished Professor of International Law at Florida A&M University College of Law and former Dean of Law and Vice Chancellor’s Chair at the...
University of New Brunswick (UNB) Law School in Fredericton, New Brunswick (Canada). Professor Levitt has served as a Professor of law at Florida International University and DePaul University. He is one of the nation’s leading scholars on the international law and politics of Africa with noted expertise in international human rights law, the international law of the use of force and armed conflict, conflict prevention, management and resolution, peace construction and peace-building and transitional justice. Professor Levitt is also an expert in counter-terrorism, women’s rights and race politics. In 2012–2013, he served as Fulbright Research Chair in Human Rights and Social Justice at the University of Ottawa.

Professor Levitt has travelled, researched and worked in 37 countries in Africa, and travelled extensively in Asia, Europe, the Caribbean and Latin America. He has held a variety of global-orientated positions in the public and private sectors. For example, Professor Levitt formerly served as Head of the International Technical Advisory Committee (ITAC) of the Liberia Truth and Reconciliation Commission of the Republic of Liberia (LTRC), Senior Legal Consultant to the Principal Defender’s Office of the Special Court for Sierra Leone (Sierra Leone war crimes tribunal), Senior Legal Adviser to The Carter Center’s rule of law projects in Liberia, Special Assistant to the Managing Director for Global Human and Social Development at The World Bank Group in Washington, DC, and as a Legal Aide to the Constitutional Assembly of the Parliament of the Republic of South Africa during the country’s constitution-making process. During the summer of 2005, Professor Levitt was a Visiting Fellow at the world-renowned Lauterpacht Research Centre for International Law at Cambridge University.

Professor Levitt is an elected member of the American Law Institute (ALI), fellow of the American Bar Foundation (ABF) and Patron of the American Society of International Law (ASIL). Between 2002 and 2007, he was a Term Member of the New York-based Council on Foreign Relations (CFOR), the US’ premier think tank on world affairs. He is a regular contributor to the Orlando Sentinel and has been a frequent source for the national and international media. Professor Levitt is a sought-after speaker in the US and abroad. He earned his Doctor of Philosophy in politics and international studies from the University of Cambridge (St John’s College), Doctor of Law from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, and Bachelor of Arts degree in political science from Arizona State University.

Andrew D. Mitchell is Professor at Melbourne Law School, Director of the Global Economic Law Network, a member of the Indicative List of Panelists to hear WTO disputes, and a member of the Energy Charter Roster of Panelists. He has previously practised law with Allens Arthur Robinson (now Allens Linklaters) and consults for States, international organisations and the private sector. Andrew has taught law in Australia, Canada and the US and is the recipient of three major current grants from the Australian Research Council and the Australian National Preventive Health Agency. He has published approximately 100 academic books and journal articles and is a Series Editor of the Oxford University Press International Economic Law Series, an Editorial Board Member of the Journal of International Economic Law and a General Editor on the Journal of International Dispute Settlement. He has law degrees from Melbourne, Harvard and Cambridge and is a Barrister and Solicitor of the Supreme Court of Victoria.

Penelope Nevill is a barrister at 20 Essex Street in London. Her practice covers international and domestic litigation and advisory work in the field of public international law, including investment arbitration, law of the sea, territory, delimitation, immunities and jurisdiction, recognition, environment and wildlife law, sanctions and human rights, and EU law. Her work includes commercial and public law cases raising elements of public international law and EU law. She has a particular focus on the interrelationship between the international, EU and domestic legal systems. Penelope has appeared as counsel before the International Court of Justice, the European Court of Human Rights and a Permanent Court of Arbitration tribunal under UNCLOS Annex VII, as well as the English courts. She is a Senior Research Fellow and Affiliated Lecturer at the Transnational Law Institute, King’s College London. She has also been a visiting lecturer at the University of Auckland in International Dispute Settlement and the University of Cambridge in the Law of Armed Conflict, having previously been a College Lecturer and Fellow at Downing College and the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law.

Kimberly Prost worked for the Canadian Department of Justice for 18 years, including as Director of the International Assistance Group responsible for extradition and mutual legal assistance. In that role she participated in the negotiation of over 40 bilateral treaties and was a member of the Canadian delegation for the negotiation of the ICC Statute and its Rules, and the UN Conventions against Transnational Organized Crime and against Corruption. She has also held positions as Head of the Criminal Law Section at the Commonwealth Secretariat and as Chief of the Legal Advisory Section of the UNODC. After election by the General Assembly, in July 2006 she was appointed to sit as an ad litem judge of the ICTY. She served for four years on a multi-accused trial in which judgment was delivered in June 2010. In that same month, she was appointed by the UN Secretary General to serve as the first Ombudsperson for the Security Council Al Qaeda Sanctions Committee in New York. After a five-year term as Ombudsperson, in 2016 Ms Prost returned to the Hague as Chef du Cabinet for the President of the International Criminal Court.

Pieter Rademakers is a legal officer in the National Division of the Dutch Department of Prosecutions. He has both worked and published on cases concerning terrorism, maritime piracy and sanctions violations.

Alejandro Rodiles is an Associate Professor of International Law at ITAM, in Mexico City. He earned his law degree (LLB) from the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM). He completed his doctoral studies (summa cum laude) at Humboldt University, Berlin. He was the Legal Adviser of the Permanent Mission of Mexico to the United Nations, in New York, during his country’s past non-permanent membership of the Security Council. In that capacity, he dealt with sanctions, counter-terrorism and non-proliferation issues. He took part in the negotiations that led to the adoption of Resolution 1904 (2009), establishing the Office of the Ombudsperson. He is a member of the International Law Association (ILA, Mexican Branch), and currently participates in the ILA’s study group on UN sanctions. He is also a member of the Latin American Society of International Law (SLADI), and of the scientific advisory board of the Mexican Yearbook of International Law (AMDI).

Tom Ruys is a Professor of International Law at Ghent University, where he founded the Ghent Rolin-Jaequemyns International Law Institute (GRILI). He is also a member of the Brussels Bar and acts as Of Counsel for Stibbe. He studied law and international relations at the universities of Ghent (Master of Laws, 2003; BA Political science, 2004), Nottingham (LLM, 2004) and Leuven (Master of Conflict and Sustainable Peace Studies, 2008). He holds a doctoral degree from the University of Leuven (2009). He was a visiting researcher at Yale Law School in 2008 and a Visiting Fellow of Cambridge’s Lauterpacht Centre for International Law in 2016.

Prof Dr Ruys’ research covers a variety of fields within the domain of public international law, including international dispute settlement, State responsibility, sanctions law and the law on the use of force. He was awarded the Francis Lieber Prize (2015 article prize and 2011 book prize) as well as the Francis Deák Prize of the American Society of International Law. His writings have appeared inter alia in the American Journal of International Law, the International and Comparative Quarterly, the Chinese Journal of International Law and the Leiden Journal of International Law. He is a member of the International Law Association’s Study Group on Sanctions and the International Law Association’s Committee on the Use of Force. He is co-editor-in-chief of the Journal on the Use of Force and International Law (JUFIL, Routledge).

Mirko Sossai is Associate Professor of International Law at the Law Department, University ‘Roma Tre’, Italy. He holds a PhD in international law from the University of Sienna. He is co-rapporteur of the ILA study group on ‘UN Sanctions and International Law’.

Larissa van den Herik is Vice Dean of Leiden Law School and Professor of Public International Law at the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies, Leiden University. She is chair of the ILA Study Group on UN Sanctions and International Law. She also holds the position of vice-chair of the Advisory Committee on Public International Law Issues to the Netherlands government and has advised the government in that capacity, inter alia, on drones, cyber warfare, humanitarian assistance, and autonomous weapons systems. Professor Van den Herik is General Editor of the Cambridge Studies in International and Comparative Law series. She also serves as general editor of the Leiden Journal of International Law (former Editor-in-Chief 2005–2013).