
Figures

2.1	Planning process model	23
4.1	Champion article count vs change management article count by decade	62
4.2	Job analysis of three management role types associated with champions	71
4.3	A life-cycle staging model of the championship process	73
7.1	A climate-centric model for organizational creativity	133
9.1	Champions and promoters' impact on creative performance	194
9.2	Schematic display of strong and weak tie combinations	195
10.1	Model for behaviors, areas for attention, and multi-level consideration	209
11.1	Illustration of the association between LMX balance and past creative performance/year for doctoral students and non-doctoral students	241
13.1	Linking respectful and caring leadership to individual meaningfulness, thriving, and creative work involvement	275
14.1	Summary of collective leadership framework	300
14.2	Three key collective leadership behaviors	301
15.1	The multiple stages of the creative process model	319
16.1	Roles for creativity in organizations	347
17.1	Style preferences across organizational levels	364
17.2	Comparison of low- and high-level positions for ideator preference across public and private sectors	365
17.3	Comparison of low- and high-level positions for implementer preference across public and private sectors	365
17.4	Problems leaders face	367
17.5	Interdependence among creativity, innovation, and leadership	377
21.1	A model of cross-functional cooperation	440
22.1	Leading by gaze: Monster, Tea Party, Family, and Elitist	451