Figures

2.1 Planning process model
4.1 Champion article count vs change management article count by decade
4.2 Job analysis of three management role types associated with champions
4.3 A life-cycle staging model of the championship process
7.1 A climate-centric model for organizational creativity
9.1 Champions and promoters’ impact on creative performance
9.2 Schematic display of strong and weak tie combinations
10.1 Model for behaviors, areas for attention, and multi-level consideration
11.1 Illustration of the association between LMX balance and past creative performance/year for doctoral students and non-doctoral students
13.1 Linking respectful and caring leadership to individual meaningfulness, thriving, and creative work involvement
14.1 Summary of collective leadership framework
14.2 Three key collective leadership behaviors
15.1 The multiple stages of the creative process model
16.1 Roles for creativity in organizations
17.1 Style preferences across organizational levels
17.2 Comparison of low- and high-level positions for ideator preference across public and private sectors
17.3 Comparison of low- and high-level positions for implementer preference across public and private sectors
17.4 Problems leaders face
17.5 Interdependence among creativity, innovation, and leadership
21.1 A model of cross-functional cooperation
22.1 Leading by gaze: Monster, Tea Party, Family, and Elitist