

About the editors and contributors

EDITORS

Dennis R. Young is Executive in Residence in the Maxine Goodman Levin College of Urban Affairs of Cleveland State University and Professor Emeritus, Georgia State University. His research interests include non-profit economics and finance, social enterprise and entrepreneurship, and management and governance of nonprofit organizations. He is the founding editor of Nonprofit Policy Forum, a journal devoted to the interface between nonprofit organizations and public policy.

Elizabeth A.M. Searing is an Assistant Professor of Public Administration and Policy at the Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy, University at Albany, State University of New York. Dr. Searing's primary research focus is in nonprofit and social enterprise ecology, but she also conducts work in financial management, evidence-based policy, the role of social and psychological factors in economic development and policy effectiveness, and applied ethics for the social sciences.

Cassady V. ("Cass") Brewer is an Associate Professor at Georgia State University College of Law in Atlanta, Georgia. Professor Brewer teaches courses in basic federal income taxation, corporate taxation, partnership taxation, the law of nonprofit organizations, and the law of social enterprise. He researches and writes extensively on the legal and tax aspects of nonprofit organizations, business organizations, and social enterprise organizations. He also is a frequent speaker at conferences and workshops concerning tax, nonprofit, and social enterprise topics.

CONTRIBUTORS

Fredrik O. Andersson is an Assistant Professor of Nonprofit Administration with the Helen Bader Institute for Nonprofit Management at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. His primary research focus is in nonprofit entrepreneurship, but his research interests also include nonprofit governance, nonprofit start-up finance, and voucher schools.

Francesca Calò joined the Yunus Centre for Social Business and Health at Glasgow Caledonian University in October 2013. She is currently undertaking a PhD aiming at understanding the contribution of community-based social enterprises to publicly funded healthcare systems. Her primary research focus is on exploring the role of social enterprise as a public health intervention but she also conducts work in evidence-based policy, non-profit management research, and policy analysis.

Janelle A. Kerlin is an Associate Professor of Public Management and Policy in the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University in Atlanta, Georgia, USA. Her research interests include the comparative study of social enterprise across countries, social enterprise incubators, nonprofit commercial revenue, and international NGOs. She is an associate editor of the Social Enterprise Journal.

Jesse D. Lecy is an Assistant Professor in Public Administration at the Maxwell School of Syracuse University. He teaches classes on public and nonprofit management, urban policy, program evaluation, and data science. His research examines competition and performance of nongovernmental organizations in the social sector.

Wesley Longhofer is an Assistant Professor of Organization and Management in the Goizueta Business School at Emory University, USA, where he teaches courses in corporate social responsibility and social entrepreneurship. His research examines the role of global institutions in policy adoption and organizational diffusion in a number of domains, including environmental protection and human rights.

Thema Monroe-White is the Director of Research and Evaluation at VentureWell. She publishes in the fields of social enterprise and social innovation, science policy and STEM education. Thema holds a Ph.D. in Science, Technology and Innovation Policy from the Georgia Institute of Technology, and an M.S. in Developmental Neuropsychology from Howard University.

Dana Brakman Reiser is Professor of Law and former Vice Dean at Brooklyn Law School in New York City. She teaches courses in nonprofit law, social enterprise, corporations, property, and trusts and estates. Her recent scholarship focuses on law and finance for businesses that pursue a social mission, as well as nonprofit accountability and governance.

Jung-In Soh is a doctoral candidate in Public Policy at Georgia State University. Concentrating on nonprofit management, she is interested in nonprofit financial management, financial health, and effectiveness.

Simon Teasdale is Professor of Public Policy and Organisations at Glasgow Caledonian University. His research focuses on the intersection between public policy and organizational behavior, with a particular focus on how social enterprises negotiate policy discourses.

John E. Tyler III is the General Counsel, Secretary, and Chief Ethics Officer for the Ewing Marion Kauffman Foundation. In addition, he actively bridges scholar and practitioner experiences in social enterprise as a researcher and author, policy advocate, speaker, and advisor.

Sandy Zook is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Public Management and Policy at the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, Georgia State University. She conducts research on social entrepreneurship, civil society, and cross-sector collaboration from both domestic and international perspectives.