Acknowledgements

First of all, we wish to thank our stellar group of distinguished contributors. Each of them has given up much time to make their contributions, and we are truly grateful to them. We consider ourselves very fortunate in having attracted such a high calibre and diverse group of scholars, which include academics, practitioners and current and former regulators. They have supported this project throughout the years with our same enthusiasm and have been a source of encouragement many times.

We are also privileged to have Andrew Bailey (who has made a big personal contribution to this subject) writing the foreword to this book.

We would like to thank our colleagues at the Institute for Regulation and Ethics of the Centre for Commercial Law Studies for the lively discussions and for all the assistance provided in organising the meetings that preceded this publication. We are also thankful to our students, especially those in the module on 'Law and Ethics in Finance' for their stimulating intellectual challenges throughout the years. Last but not least, we are greatly indebted to our publisher, Edward Elgar Publishing Ltd, for including the book in their successful Research Handbook series and particularly to Laura Mann, Iram Satti, Catherine Cumming and Stephanie Tytherleigh for their patience, enthusiasm and support for the project. We would also like to thank Clara Barbiani for valuable editorial assistance and Alvaro Castro Lora for his contribution.
