

---

Contributors

---

Dr Sam Adelman teaches law at the University of Warwick and is a Research Associate at Nelson Mandela University in South Africa. His main areas of research are climate change, international environmental law, development and human rights. He has degrees from Warwick, the University of the Witwatersrand in South Africa – from where he was exiled after being banned and detained by the apartheid regime – and Harvard University. His recent articles include geoeengineering, climate justice, human rights and climate change, and epistemologies of mastery. He is currently co-authoring a book on climate justice with Upendra Baxi.

Prof. Upendra Baxi is Emeritus Professor of Law at the University of Warwick and Delhi. He served as a professor of law at the University of Delhi (1973–96) and as its Vice Chancellor (1990–94.) He also served as Vice Chancellor of the University of South Gujarat, Surat (1982–85) and Honorary Director (Research) of the Indian Law Institute (1985–88.) He was the President of the Indian Society of International Law (1992–95). Professor Baxi graduated from Rajkot (Gujarat University), read law at the University of Bombay, and holds LLM degrees from the University of Bombay and the University of California at Berkeley, which also awarded him with a Doctorate in Juristic Sciences. Professor Baxi has taught various courses in law and science, comparative constitutionalism and social theory of human rights at the University of Sydney, Duke University, the American University, the New York University Law School Global Law Program, and the University of Toronto. Professor Baxi's areas of teaching and research include comparative constitutionalism, social theory of human rights, human rights responsibilities in corporate governance and business conduct, materiality of globalization, and Cold War and international law studies.

Dr Varsha Bhagat-Ganguly is a former professor at Nirma University and the Centre for Rural Studies, Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration (LBS-NAA), Mussoorie. She actively engages in conducting research and research-based activities – publications, teaching, public-policy framing and critique, awareness raising strategies and material on social and developmental issues. Her recent and upcoming publications include: Land Rights in India: Policies, Movements and Challenges (Routledge 2016, 2018); Journey towards Land Titling in India (LBSNAA 2017); India's Scheduled Areas: Untangling Governance, Law and Politics (e-book, Routledge, 2019) and Land Question in Neoliberal India: Socio-legal and Judicial Interpretations (forthcoming). Her research interests include discourses on rights perspectives, especially on land, processes of marginalization, people's knowledge and collective action for desired social change, and Gujarat. She has contributed to nationally and internationally refereed academic journals, and has edited three journals: Studies in Humanities and Social Sciences (2008, 2011), Journal of Land and Rural Studies (2015, 2016) and Nirma University Law Journal (2017).

Mr Saurabh Bhattacharjee is Assistant Professor at the West Bengal National University of Juridical Sciences (NUJS), Kolkata. Saurabh researches and teaches courses on Labour Law, Law and Impoverishment, Socio-Economic Rights, Nuclear Law and Sports Law.

Dr Lovleen Bhullar is Research Fellow in Regulation and Antimicrobial Resistance at the School of Law, University of Edinburgh. She holds an undergraduate degree in Law from the National Law School of India University, Bangalore, LLM in Environmental Law from SOAS University of London, and MSc in Environmental Policy and Regulation from the London School of Economics and Political Science. Her doctoral research at SOAS University of London examined the potential and limits of environmental rights litigation as a solution to the problem of water pollution in India. She is the co-editor of Water Governance: An Evaluation of Alternative Architectures (Edward Elgar Publishing 2013), Sanitation Law and Policy in India: An Introduction to Basic Instruments (Oxford University Press, 2015), and Right to Sanitation in India: Critical Perspectives (Oxford University Press, 2019).

Mr CR Bijoy works on forest rights with the Campaign for Survival and Dignity (www.forestrightsact.com), a national coalition of forest dwellers organizations that emerged in 2002, and researches natural resource and governance politics.

Prof. Philippe Cullet is Professor of International and Environmental Law at SOAS University of London and Senior Visiting Fellow at the Centre for Policy Research, New Delhi. His work focuses on law and the environment, natural resources law, socio-economic rights, environmental justice, with a specific focus on water and sanitation in India. He received his doctoral degree in Law from Stanford University, an MA in Development Studies from SOAS University of London, an LLM in International Law from King's College London and a law degree from the University of Geneva. He engages regularly with policymakers at the national and international levels and was a member of the Government of India's Committee drafting the Draft National Water Framework Bill, 2016 and the Model Groundwater (Sustainable Management) Act, 2017. His latest books are Right to Sanitation in India: Critical Perspectives (co-edited with S. Koonan and L. Bhullar, OUP 2019) and Groundwater and Climate Change: Multi-Level Law and Policy Perspectives (co-edited with RM Stephan, Routledge 2019).

Dr Julia Dehm is Lecturer at the School of Law, La Trobe University, Australia. Prior to starting at La Trobe Julia was a postdoctoral fellow at the Rapoport Center for Human Rights and Justice at the University of Texas at Austin and a resident fellow at the Institute for Global Law and Policy at Harvard Law School. Her research addresses international climate change law and regulation, transnational carbon markets and the governance of natural resources as well as the intersections between human rights and environmental issues as well as human rights and economic inequality. Her work has appeared in the Leiden Journal of International Law, the European Journal of International Law, the Windsor Yearbook of Access to Justice, the Journal of Human Rights and the Environment, the London Review of International Law and the Macquarie Journal of International and Comparative Environmental Law as well as in climate justice-themed special editions of the Journal of Australian Political Economy and Local-Global Journal. She is the Co-Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Human Rights and the Environment and a member of the Global Network for the Study of Human Rights and the Environment. She holds a BA, LLB (Hons) and PhD from the University of Melbourne.

Dr Brightman Gebremichael studied Law (LLB, and LLM in Environmental and Natural Resource Law) at Bahir Dar University, Ethiopia and obtained his LLD at the University of Pretoria, South Africa. He is a former lecturer in Law and dean of the School of Law at Wollo University, Ethiopia. Currently, he is Assistant Professor of Law at the Institute of Land Administration, Bahir Dar University, Ethiopia. His area of research interest is land rights, property law and environmental law.

Dr Kavari Gill is an Associate Professor, Department of International Relations and Governance Studies, Shiv Nadar University. With a heterodox economics training, she completed a BA Tripos, MPhil, PhD and a Postdoctoral Fellowship at the University of Cambridge. Kavari has more than fifteen years work experience with a range of institutions, including academia, government, multilateral and bilateral donors, international organisations, and development consultancies. She has worked with the Planning Commission of India; UNICEF; the International Development Research Centre (IDRC) and Oxford Policy Management (OPM) in Delhi. Kavari has published widely, including a best-selling monograph with Oxford University Press, Of Poverty and Plastic: Scavenging and Scrap Trading Entrepreneurs in India's Urban Informal Economy (2010). Her research interests include the political economy of development, poverty, informality and the environment, especially in cities of the global South and social policy for development, with a focus on healthcare, in India.

Mr Shankar Gopalakrishnan is a researcher, writer and organiser. He is affiliated with Chetna Andolan, a state level social movement in Uttarakhand, and the Campaign for Survival and Dignity, a national platform of forest dwellers' organizations. He has previously written on natural resource policy, political economy, law, hate politics, workers' rights, political movements and other issues. He has also published four books on these topics, most recently Understanding the RSS and the Sangh Parivar, from Aakar Books (2017).

Ms Evadne Grant is Associate Head of Department of Law (PG Programmes) at the University of the West of England, Bristol. Her areas of research include human rights and the environment and, more generally, social and economic rights. She also has a particular interest in human dignity and the relationship between dignity and social and economic rights. Her publications include Thought, Law, Rights and Action in the Age of Environmental Crisis (edited with Anna Grear, Edward Elgar Publishing 2015). She is co-editor of the Journal of Human Rights and the Environment and series co-editor of the Critical Reflections on Human Rights and the Environment series (Edward Elgar Publishing). She also serves on the Global Network for Human Rights and the Environment Core Team.

Ms Malvika Gupta is presently a doctoral candidate at the Department of International Development, Oxford University, for which she is doing fieldwork and research on indigenous politics in Ecuador and India. She did her BA in Philosophy at Delhi University, switching to Social Work for her MA. She then moved to Jawaharlal Nehru University for an MPhil in Sociology, but left this and worked for several years with UN agencies, social movements and NGOs on issues of indigenous education, indigenous rights and extractivism in central India. She then did her MPhil in Education Studies at Delhi University, writing her thesis on India's tribal education policy. She has published several articles on tribal issues in India, with many focused on repression of indigenous knowledge systems.

Dr Thoko Kaime is Senior Lecturer in Law in the School of Law at the University of Essex and Deputy Dean for Postgraduate Research Education for the University. Thoko is a public international lawyer and maintains research and teaching interests in human rights and international environmental law. His work is an ongoing socio-legal critique of international legal arrangements which he expresses through a consideration of a number of critical issues in children's rights and sustainability governance. He has written extensively on these subjects, focusing on the intersection between law, legitimacy and public participation in international rule-making and policy implementation. His publications include Cultural Legitimacy and the International Law and Policy on Climate Change (Routledge 2013) and The Convention on the Rights of the Child: A Cultural Legitimacy Critique (Europa Law Publishing 2011). Prior to joining Essex, Thoko served as lecturer in International Environmental Law at the University of Leicester; deputy director of the Environmental Regulatory Research Group at the University of Surrey and as a corporate consultant for risk management firm Exclusive Analysis Limited, where he was Head of Africa Division.

Prof. Patricia Kameri-Mbote is Professor of Law and former dean at the School of Law, University of Nairobi. She is also Senior Counsel in the Kenyan bar. She has served as chair of the Department of Private Law at the School of Law, University of Nairobi. She has also served as the director of Research and Policy Outreach and acting executive director at the African Centre for Technology Studies, Nairobi. She was a member of the Committee of Eminent Persons appointed by His Excellency the President of Kenya in February 2006 to advise the government on the way forward for the stalled constitution review process. She has also been identified as a renowned thinker in the global environment and sustainable development field by the World Conservation Union (IUCN); as a renowned and innovative thinker and researcher by the International Development Research Centre (IDRC) on land rights and served as a Policy scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. Prof. Kameri-Mbote earned her doctorate from Stanford University in 1999 specializing in property rights and environmental law. She had earlier studied law in Nairobi, Warwick and Zimbabwe. She currently teaches Women, Access to Resources and the Law at the Southern and Eastern Africa Research Centre on Women's Law (SEARCWL) and Property Law at the School of Law, University of Nairobi. Her research interests include environmental law and policy, land law, human rights, women's rights, intellectual property, biotechnology and judicial and legal education institutional reforms. She has published widely in these areas.

Dr Adil Hasan Khan is currently a McKenzie Fellow at the Melbourne Law School, where his research seeks to explore the intersections between international law and disasters, with a focus on South Asia. He completed his PhD in International Studies, with a specialization in international law and a minor in anthropology and sociology of development, at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies in Geneva. His doctoral dissertation, titled 'Inheriting Persona: Narrating the Conduct of Third World International Lawyers', narrates the conduct of two generations of Third World international lawyers in their struggles to reimagine, refund, and alternatively authorize international law, and identifies the defining struggle of the Third World in international law as being over temporal transmissions or inheritance. He was a residential institute fellow at the Institute for Global Law and Policy, Harvard Law School in 2016–17 and a junior visiting fellow at the Institute for Human Sciences (IWM), Vienna in 2015–16.

Prof. Michael Kidd is Professor of Law at the University of KwaZulu-Natal in Pietermaritzburg, South Africa. His research interests include environmental law, water law and administrative law and he has published extensively in these fields. He holds a Bachelor of Commerce (BCom) degree, a Bachelor of Laws (LLB) degree, a Master of Laws (LLM) and a PhD from the University of Natal. He is the author of a leading text Environmental Law (2nd edn, Juta 2011) and has written numerous academic articles. He is the Chair of one of South Africa's largest environmental NGOs, the Wildlife and Environment Society of South Africa.

Ms Kanchi Kohli is a researcher working on environment, forest and biodiversity governance in India. Her work explores the links between law, industrialization and environment justice. She seeks to draw empirical evidence from sites of conflict and locates it within the legal and policy processes. Other than her independent work, Kanchi is presently a Senior Researcher at the Centre for Policy Research. She has individually and in teams authored various publications, including the book Business Interests and the Environmental Crisis (SAGE-India 2016). Her writings also include several research papers and popular articles. Kanchi regularly teaches at universities and law schools in India on subjects related to biodiversity, environment and community development.

Dr Sujith Koonan is Assistant Professor at the Campus Law Centre, Faculty of Law, University of Delhi. He completed his PhD from SOAS University of London where he was a recipient of the SOAS Doctoral Research Scholarship (2013–16). He holds an MPhil in International Law from Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi and LLM in Environmental Law and Human Rights from Cochin University of Science and Technology, Kochi. He is a member of the Editorial Board of the Law, Environment and Development Journal (LEAD), a joint publication of SOAS University of London and the International Environmental Law Research Centre, Geneva. His main areas of interest are environmental law, water and sanitation, law and natural resources, human rights and public international law. His publications can be accessed at http://ielrc.org/about\_koonan.php.

Mr Ashish Kothari is a founder member of Indian environmental group Kalpavriksh. He has taught at the Indian Institute of Public Administration, coordinated India's National Biodiversity Strategy and Action Plan process, served on Greenpeace International and India Boards, helped initiate the global ICCA Consortium, and chaired an IUCN (International Union for Conservation of Nature) network dealing with protected areas and communities. He has been guest lecturer in several universities around the world. He helps coordinate the Vikalp Sangam and Global Tapestry of Alternatives processes in search of alternative well-being pathways to globalized development. Ashish has (co)authored or (co)edited over 30 books, including Churning the Earth: Making of Global India (with Aseem Shrivastava, Viking 2012), Alternative Futures: India Unshackled (with KJ Joy eds, AuthorsUpFront 2017), and Pluriverse: A Post-Development Dictionary (with Ariel Salleh, Arturo Escobar, Federico Demaria and Alberto Acosta eds, Tulika & AuthorsUpFront 2019).

Professor Louis J. Kotzé is Research Professor of Law at the Faculty of Law, North-West University, South Africa, and Visiting Professor of Environmental Law at the University of Lincoln, UK. His research focuses on the Anthropocene, environmental constitutionalism, human rights, and Earth system law. He has over 130 publications on these themes. He has published Global Environmental Constitutionalism in the Anthropocene (Hart 2016); Research Handbook on Human Rights and the Environment (with Anna Grear, Edward Elgar Publishing 2015); Environmental Law and Governance for the Anthropocene (Hart 2017); and Sustainable Development Goals: Law, Theory and Implementation (with Duncan French, Edward Elgar Publishing 2018). He is co-editor of the Journal of Human Rights and the Environment and assistant editor of Earth System Governance. In 2016 he obtained a second PhD at Tilburg University, Netherlands, and has been awarded a European Commission Horizon 2020 Marie Curie Fellowship to lead a research project during 2018–19 at the University of Lincoln entitled: Global Ecological Custodianship-Innovative International Environmental Law for the Anthropocene.

Dr Feja Lesniewska is Postdoctoral Research Fellow in the Department for Science, Technology, Engineering and Public Policy (STeAPP), University College London and a Senior Teaching Fellow in the School of Law at SOAS University of London. She currently a researcher on the ESPRC funded PETRAS project focusing on cyber physical systems, critical infrastructure and security issues. Feja's previous research has primarily focused on international and comparative climate change law, sustainable development, energy and ecosystems law (forests, land, water). Her PhD at SOAS University of London was in international law-making processes in relation to forests based on fieldwork in China. Feja has also undertaken fieldwork in West Africa, East Asia and Russia on a range of forest-related issues including the illegal timber trade, community tenure rights and REDD+ whilst working as a consultant with leading NGOs and on forest-related law and policy.

Mr Larry Lohmann works with The Corner House, a British-based solidarity and research organization. He is a founding member of the Durban Group for Climate Justice and has been associated with the World Rainforest Movement for 25 years. He spent much of the 1980s working with NGOs in Thailand and has also lived in the US and Ecuador. Among his books are Pulping the South: Industrial Tree Plantations in the Global Paper Economy (with Ricardo Carrere, Zed Books 1996), Mercados de Carbono: La Neoliberalización del Clima (Abya-Yala 2012) and Energy, Work and Finance (with Nicholas Hildyard, The Corner House 2014). His articles have appeared in journals of Asian studies, politics, accounting, science studies, law, development, environment and politics, and have been translated into many languages. Most of his publications are available at www.thecornerhouse.org.uk.

Ms Manju Menon is Senior Fellow at the Centre for Policy Research, New Delhi. Her main areas of work are resource politics, environmental law and regulatory decision-making. She has researched and published popular articles and papers on environment, law and development for over two decades. She collaborates with community organisations in India and regional and global networks working on decentralized resource governance and environmental compliance. She is currently completing her doctoral thesis on participatory environmental governance in Northeast India.

Dr Felix Padel is an anthropologist trained at Oxford and the Delhi School of Economics, author of three books on tribal and environmental issues in India: Sacrificing People: Invasions of a Tribal Landscape (Orient BlackSwan 2011), Out of This Earth: East India Adivasis and the Aluminium Cartel (with Samarendra Das, Orient BlackSwan 2010) and Ecology, Economy: Quest for a Socially Informed Connection (with Ajay Dandekar and Jeemol Unni, Orient BlackSwan 2013). He read Classics at Exeter College, Oxford, and after doing a diploma in Social Anthropology, did an MPhil in Sociology at the Delhi School of Economics and received his DPhil from Oxford University. He has held various appointments in India, including professor of Rural Management at the Indian Institute of Health Management Research, Jaipur, has written and given talks on a large range of anthropological issues, and has been connected with a large range of social movements.

Dr Usha Ramanathan is an internationally recognized expert on the jurisprudence of law, poverty and rights. Her doctorate is from the University of Delhi. Her research interests include mass displacement, civil liberties, torts and the environment. She has published extensively in India and abroad. In particular, she has devoted her attention to issues including the Bhopal gas disaster, the Narmada valley dams, slum eviction in Delhi, manual scavenging, poverty and, in recent years, the unique identification project and law and technology.

Prof. Jona Razzaque is Professor of Environmental Law at the University of the West of England, Bristol (UWE). She holds a PhD in Law from the University of London.

Prior to joining the UWE, she worked as a staff lawyer with the Foundation for International Environmental Law and Development. She previously taught at the University College London, SOAS University of London and Queen Mary University of London. She has held visiting fellowships at Wuhan University, China. She is a member of the Advisory Board of the Journal of Environmental Law and serves as a member of the IUCN World Commission on Environmental Law. Her areas of interest include international environmental law, natural resources law, environmental governance, EU environmental law and policy, environmental law in developing countries, water law and policy. She has published Public Interest Environmental Litigation in India, Pakistan and Bangladesh (Kluwer 2004), Globalisation and Natural Resources Law (with Elena Blanco, Edward Elgar Publishing 2011) and Environmental Governance in Europe and Asia (Routledge 2012) and co-edited Natural Resources and the Green Economy (with Elena Blanco, Brill 2012), International Environmental Law and the Global South (with Shawkat Alam, Sumudu Atapattu and Carmen G. Gonzalez, Cambridge University Press 2015), International Natural Resources Law, Investment and Sustainability (with Shawkat Alam and Jahid Hossain Bhuiyan, Routledge 2017) and Biodiversity and Nature Protection Law (with Elisa Morgera, Edward Elgar Publishing 2017).

Dr Geetanjoy Sahu is Associate Professor at the Centre for Science, Technology and Society, School of Habitat Studies, Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai. He earlier served as post-doctoral associate at the Centre for Interdisciplinary Studies in Environment and Development, Bengaluru. He holds a PhD in Political Science from the Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bengaluru and MPhil from the Hyderabad Central University, Hyderabad. His research and teaching interests include environmental policy and governance, analysis of judicial behaviour on environmental litigation and politics of interaction between state and forest rights groups over forest resource management. He is the author of Environmental Jurisprudence and the Indian Supreme Court: Litigation, Interpretation and Implementation (Orient BlackSwan 2014).

Dr Preeti Sampat is Assistant Professor in Sociology at Ambedkar University Delhi. She received her PhD in Anthropology from the Graduate Center, City University of New York. She works on land struggles in relation with urbanization and infrastructure projects in India, and is currently developing a book manuscript along these themes. Her research interests include legal anthropology; the anthropology of infrastructure; urbanization; land; capital; state; social movements; and democracy.