

Acknowledgements

A book project is the outcome of a process of co-creation and co-development. It is a journey of discovery. This edited collection emerged from a multi-disciplinary research project funded by the Institute of Advanced Studies (IAS), at the University of Birmingham. In particular, we thank Professor Malcolm Press, then Director of the IAS, Sue Gilligan, Deputy Director and Manager and Sarah Jeffery, then Institute Administrator. Malcolm awarded the funding that enabled us to develop a multi-disciplinary analysis of “Regeneration Economies: Transforming People, Place and Production”. Both Sue and Sarah ensured that we delivered that which we promised and provided splendid administrative support and encouragement. It is worth noting that this Research Agenda collection is the second edited book produced by the Regeneration Economies project. The first book, the Handbook of Manufacturing Industries in the World Economy (Bryson, Clark and Vanchan), was published by Edward Elgar in 2015.

The Regeneration Economies project brought together many people to discuss this topic. In particular, we would like to thank the following who have contributed to our thinking on this topic: Susan Christopherson, Jennifer Clark, Nicola Lowe, Mike Gregory, Julianne Stern, Vida Vanchan, Michael Grove, Kamel Hawwash, Michael Ward, Ian Gordon, Geoff Hewings, Mary O’Mahony, Paul Edwards, Stephen Gorard, Caroline Chapain, Lisa De Propriis, Yufeng Zhang, Lisa Dale, Julian Clark, Lee Chapman, Peter Lee, Phil Jones, Simon Pemberton, Oleg Golubchikov, Vlad Mykhnenko, Stephen Williams, Catherine Harris, Megan Ronayne, Chloe Billing, Rachel Mulhall, Duc Truong Pham, Stefan Dimov, Chris Rogers, Andrew Quinn, Moataz Attallah, Chris Good, Antonia Layard, Richard Clay, Francesca Carnevali, Gino Bellavia, Henry Chapman and Sabi Redwood, Aksel Ersoy and Steve Hollis.

We particularly would like to thank the authors who contributed to this collection. We appreciate their time, patience, expertise and commitment to the broader project of understanding city-region regeneration economies and in identifying a future research agenda.

Producing an edited collection is a partnership between many different individuals – the editors, chapter authors and their families, but also firms, employees and policy-makers who have given their time to discuss city-region regeneration economies. We thank David Bryson for providing technical assistance. Finally, we appreciate the work of our editor at Edward Elgar, Matthew Pitman, for encouraging us to develop this collection and in seeing the project through to completion. We also acknowledge the assistance of all involved in the production of this book including Jane Bayliss (Managing Editor), Sarah Cook (Copy Editor), Catherine Cumming (Desk Editor), Stephanie Hartley (Editorial Assistant), and Sue Sharp (Marketing Executive).