

Contributors

---

Tiffany Andrade Roche is Standards and Assurance Officer for Cocoa and Hazelnut at UTZ. Previously she was advisor to the Market Transformation Initiative of the WWF. She has studied production engineering at the Universidad Simón Bolívar, strategic environmental management at the Università degli Studi di Padova and environment and resource management at the VU University Amsterdam.

Donal Casey is a lecturer at Kent Law School where he teaches European Union law and consumer law. Empirically, his research addresses the policy areas of food safety and gambling. Analytically, Donal's research examines transnational regulation, legitimacy and the role that law, standards and other norms play in shaping regulatory regimes.

Elena Fagotto is Director of Research at Harvard Kennedy School's Transparency Policy Project. Her research focuses on food safety, transparency and transnational governance. She has published on these topics in peer-reviewed journals and has authored several book chapters. She holds an MPA from Harvard Kennedy School and a PhD from Erasmus University Rotterdam.

Michael Faure is Professor of Comparative and International Environmental Law at Maastricht University and Professor of Comparative Private Law and Economics at Erasmus School of Law (Rotterdam), both in the Netherlands.

Andrew Fearn is Professor of Value Chain Management at Norwich Business School, University of East Anglia. His research is focussed on the coordination of value chains, from field to fork. He is the founding editor of the International Journal of Supply Chain Management, author of over 100 articles, the 14th Adelaide Thinker in Residence and son of a Kentish pig farmer.

Marian Garcia Martinez is Professor in Marketing and Innovation at Kent Business School, University of Kent. Her primary research interests relate to New Product Development and Innovation Management, in particular how SMEs use consumer insights to enhance innovation outputs.

Tetty Havinga is Associate Professor in Sociology of Law at the Radboud University, Nijmegen, the Netherlands. She has published on the private regulation of food safety and official controls on the food industry, policy implementation and law enforcement, specialized business courts, equal opportunities law, and migration.

Mohamud Hussein is an independent research economist based in the United Kingdom. Mohamud has previously worked for the Food and Environment Research Agency (Fera) where he conducted extensive research related to the impact of food safety and quality regulation on industry and consumer behaviour.

Agni Kalfagianni is Assistant Professor at the Copernicus Institute for Sustainable Development, Utrecht University. She specializes in the development of rules and standards for sustainability by non-state actors, such as businesses and civil society organizations, and examines the effectiveness, legitimacy, and ethical considerations of private and transnational forms of governance.

Kévine Kindji, PhD is Postdoc researcher at the Maastricht European Institute of Transnational Legal Research (METRO) (the Netherlands).

Klementina Kireziova worked as a researcher and pursued a doctoral degree in Food Quality Management at Wageningen University, the Netherlands. Her PhD thesis and relevant publications concern the socio-economic factors affecting food safety management on a company and policy level. At present Klementina is working as a Food Safety, Quality and Regulatory manager at Cargill Animal Nutrition.

Kai Kottenstede is a communication consultant and a PhD candidate at the Institute of Political Science, University of Tübingen.

Pieterneel Luning is Associate Professor at Wageningen University. Current research projects (on average 8 PhDs) are about quality management systems, risk-based auditing, food safety culture, and food handler behaviour in production (company) and consumption systems (domestic level). The common research focus is on understanding the relation between the socio-technical systems, context characteristics, and food quality.

Timothy D. Lytton is Distinguished University Professor and Professor of Law at Georgia State University. His work on food regulation includes Kosher: Private Regulation in the Age of Industrial Food (Harvard University Press 2013), and he is currently writing a book on the US food safety system.

Lesley K. McAllister is Professor of Law at the University of California at Davis. She is a member scholar of the Center for Progressive Reform, and she has served as a consultant to the Administrative Conference of the United States.

Fritz Sager, PhD, is a Professor of Political Science at the KPM Center for Public Management at the University of Bern. He specializes in administrative studies and theory, policy research and evaluation, organizational analysis, and Swiss politics.

Eva Thomann is a post-doctoral researcher at Heidelberg University. She specializes in public policy and public administration, with a focus on multi-level and frontline policy implementation. She studied Political Science at the University of Zurich and completed her PhD in Public Administration at the University of Bern.

Bernd M.J. van der Meulen is Professor of Food Law at Wageningen University; President and co-founder of the Dutch Food Law Association (Nederlandse Vereniging voor Levensmiddelenrecht www.NVLR.nl), member of the editorial board of the European Food and Feed Law Review (www.lexxion.eu/effl) and board member of the Global Harmonization Initiative (www.globalharmonization.net). For his books on food law see: <http://www.wageningenacademic.com/eifl>.

Paul Verbruggen is Assistant Professor of Global and Comparative Private Law at Tilburg Law School, Tilburg University, the Netherlands. He writes on the design and operation of regulatory regimes (both public and private), focusing on questions of legitimacy, accountability and enforcement. His research interests concern European private law, regulatory policy and risk regulation. He is the author of the monograph Enforcing Transnational Private Regulation: A Comparative Analysis of Advertising and Food Safety (Edward Elgar 2014).