Contributors

Salvatore Alaimo, PhD, is Associate Professor of Public and Nonprofit Administration at Grand Valley State University, Grand Rapids, Michigan. He recently produced his first documentary on the concept of giving, entitled What is Philanthropy?

James Alm, PhD, is Chair of the Department of Economics at Tulane University. Previously, he was Regents’ Professor in the Department of Economics at the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University in Atlanta, Georgia, where he served as Chair of the Department and Dean of the School. He has also taught at Syracuse University and at the University of Colorado at Boulder. Much of his research has focused on public economics, in such areas as tax compliance, the tax treatment of the family, fiscal decentralization and tax reform. He has served as editor of Public Finance Review and as President of the Southern Economic Association.

Neil Bania, PhD, is Senior Research Advisor at the Washington State Institute for Public Policy. His research interests include program evaluation, benefit cost analysis and the economics of poverty and social programs.

Jon Bergdoll serves as Applied Statistician in the IUPUI Lilly Family School of Philanthropy, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Woods Bowman, PhD, was Professor of Public Service Management at DePaul University, Chicago, at the time of his death in 2015. Before joining the DePaul faculty, he served as Chief Financial Officer of Cook County and interim Executive Director of Goodwill Industries of Metropolitan Chicago.

Eleanor Brown, PhD, is the James Irvine Professor of Economics at Pomona College, and a co-editor of the Review of Economics of the Household. Her research interests include resource allocation in the absence of profit-maximizing behavior, through private philanthropy, volunteer labor, government, nonprofit organizations, and within the family.

Thad Calabrese, PhD, is Associate Professor of Public and Nonprofit Financial Management at the Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University. His research and teaching broadly focus on the management and governance of public and not-for-profit organizations, and the institutions and incentives that affect managerial decision-making.

Cyril F. Chang is Professor of Economics at the Fogelman College of Business and Economics where he is also the Director of the Methodist Le Bonheur Center for Healthcare Economics. In addition to his major appointment at the University of Memphis, he serves as an adjunct Professor of Economics in the Department of Preventive Medicine at the University of Tennessee Health Science Center.
Grace L. Chikoto-Schultz is an Assistant Professor at Portland State University. Her research interests include the financing of nonprofit organizations and nonprofit financial growth and stability.

Joseph J. Cordes, PhD, is Professor of Economics, Public Policy and Public Administration in the Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration at George Washington University, Washington, DC, and an Associate Scholar in the Center on Nonprofits and Philanthropy at the Urban Institute, Washington, DC.

Katherine Coventry is a Senior Policy Analyst at the DC Fiscal Policy Institute, Washington, DC.

Lewis Faulk is an Associate Professor of Public Administration and Policy in the School of Public Affairs at American University, where he is also a Faculty Fellow of American University’s Metropolitan Policy Center and an Affiliated Faculty of American University’s Center for Innovation. His research focuses on nonprofit management, nonprofit finance, and the intersection of nonprofit organizations and public policy.

Martin F. Grace, JD, PhD, is the Harry Cochran Professor of Risk Management at the Fox School of Business at Temple University. He was Regents Professor in the Insight Institute at the Robinson College of Business at Georgia State University. His research interests are in the law and economics of liability and the regulation and taxation of financial institutions. He is a former President of The Risk Theory Society and is a current associate editor of the Journal of Risk and Insurance.

Femida Handy, PhD, is Professor of Social Policy and Practice at the University of Pennsylvania. Her research interests include nonprofit entrepreneurship and volunteering, comparative and international aspects of the nonprofit and voluntary sector, and social accounting.

Teresa D. Harrison serves as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, and Associate Professor of Economics at Drexel University. She is an applied microeconomist with interests in nonprofit and hospital behavior and micro-econometrics. Her research on hospitals and nonprofits has mostly focused on dynamic issues within these industries, including location decisions, entry, exit, mergers and growth.

Barry T. Hirsch, PhD, is Professor of Economics and the W.J. Usery Chair of the American Workplace in the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University. His research examines wage and employment determination in US labor markets with a focus on unions, survey nonresponse and imputation, discrimination and area differentials. Hirsch is an IZA Research Fellow, past president of the Southern Economic Association and on editorial boards of several journals.

Patricia Hughes, PhD, is Professor of Economics at St Cloud State University (SCSU), Minnesota. She is currently Chair of the Economics Department and Director of the Graduate Certificate in Data Analytics at SCSU. Her research interests focus on efficiency, funding, and management of nonprofit and government organizations.

Renée A. Irvin, PhD, is Associate Professor in the School of Planning, Public Policy and Management at the University of Oregon, where she directs the university’s Master of Nonprofit Management Program. She is also president-elect of the Nonprofit Academic Centers Council. Her research centers on nonprofit economics and regulation, family foundations, and policy affecting wealth accumulation.

Marc Jegers is Professor of Managerial Economics at the Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium. His main research interests are managerial economics and financial economics of nonprofit organizations.

Laura Leete, PhD, is Associate Professor in the School of Planning, Public Policy and Management at the University of Oregon. Her research areas include labor markets, poverty, inequality and social policy.

William Luksetich, PhD, is Professor Emeritus of Economics at St Cloud State University, Minnesota. He has done research in the areas of the economics of nonprofits, cultural economics, the economics of crime, the measurement of economic freedom and its relation to economic welfare, and the efficiency of sports gaming markets.

David A. Macpherson, PhD, is the E.M. Stevens Professor of Economics and Chair of the Economics Department at Trinity University. Previously, he served as Vice-President of the Southern Economics Association. His research has focused on real estate, pensions, discrimination, industry deregulation, labor unions, and the minimum wage.

Laurie Mook, PhD, is Associate Professor in the School of Community Resources and Development at Arizona State University. She is also former co-director of the Social Economy Centre of the University of Toronto. Her research focuses on social and environmental accounting, the social economy, and volunteerism.

Daniel Gordon Neely, PhD, is Associate Professor of Accounting at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. His research focuses on nonprofit financial management.

Sharon M. Oster, PhD, is Frederic D. Wolfe Professor of Management and Entrepreneurship at the Yale School of Management. A specialist in competitive strategy, micro-economic theory, industrial organization, the economics of regulation and antitrust, and nonprofit strategy, she has written extensively on the regulation of business and competitive strategy.

Anne E. Preston, PhD, is Professor of Economics at Haverford College, Philadelphia. Her research interests include labor economics, applied econometrics, public policy, and experimental and behavioral economics.

Jack Quarter is a Professor at the University of Toronto in the Centre for Learning, Social Economy & Work (CLSEW). He was an organizer of the Association for Nonprofit and Social Economy Research (ANSER) and its president from 2008 to 2014.

Patrick Rooney is Executive Associate Dean for Academic Programs and Professor of Economics and Philanthropic Studies in the IUPUI Lilly Family School of Philanthropy, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Lester M. Salamon is an Emeritus Professor at the Johns Hopkins University and Director of the Johns Hopkins Center for Civil Society Studies. Dr Salamon also serves as a Senior Research Scientist at the National Research University Higher School of Economics in Moscow and was the senior contributor to the United Nations Statistics Division in the preparation of two recent United Nations handbooks designed to improve the visibility of the nonprofit, social economy, and volunteering sectors in official international statistical systems. His research focuses on the civil society sector and the tools of government globally.

Richard Sansing is the Associate Dean for the Faculty and the Benjamin Ames Kimball Professor of the Science of Administration at the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth. His research involves the development of analytical models to investigate the microeconomic effects of taxation. Professor Sansing teaches taxation and business policy and managerial accounting.

Bruce A. Seaman, PhD, is Associate Professor of Economics and on the core faculty of the Nonprofit Studies Program and the Center for State and Local Finance of the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, Georgia State University. He is Past-President of the Association for Cultural Economics, International, and a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Cultural Economics and Estudios de Economía Aplicada. He is a consultant on local economic development projects, and commercial, antitrust and civil litigation.

Elizabeth Searing, PhD, CNP, is an Assistant Professor in the Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy at University at Albany (SUNY). She is also the Director of the Institute of Nonprofit Leadership and Community Development at the University at Albany (SUNY). Her primary research focus is financial management in nonprofit organizations and the social sector, but she also conducts work in nonprofit management more broadly, evidence-based policy, the role of social and psychological factors in economic development and policy effectiveness, and applied ethics for the social sciences.

David L. Sjoquist, PhD, is Professor of Economics and Founding Holder of the Dan E. Sweat Chair in Educational and Community Policy in the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University. He has published widely on the areas of public finance, particularly state and local public finance, urban economics and educational policy.

Al Slivinski is Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Western Ontario. His research interests include the behavior of nonprofit organizations as well as the political economy of taxation and industrial policy.

Richard Steinberg is Professor of Economics, Philanthropic Studies, and (by courtesy) Public Affairs at IUPUI. He is the coeditor of The Nonprofit Sector: A Research Handbook (2nd edn, with Walter W. Powell), and coauthor of Economics for Nonprofit Managers (with Dennis R. Young). His research concerns public policy towards nonprofit organizations and donations, the managerial economics of nonprofits, and the three-failures theory of the role of nonprofit organizations in a mixed economy. He is an enthusiastic actor in community theater, building social capital through his appearances as Friar Laurence in Romeo and Juliet, Father Finegan in Harold and Maude, Jonathan Brewster in Arsenic and Old Lace and Mr Dussel in The Diary of Anne Frank.

Rayna Stoycheva, PhD, is Lecturer in the Department of Political Science at the University of Miami. Her research interests are in the areas of public budgeting and finance, and social policy analysis.
Daniel Teles, PhD, is a Research Associate in the Metropolitan Housing and Communities Policy Center at the Urban Institute, Washington, DC. His research focuses on the effects of public policies on the nonprofit sector, poverty and inequality.

Daniel Tinkelman, PhD, is a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) with a doctorate in Accounting from the Stern School of Business at New York University. He currently lives in Brooklyn, New York, and teaches accounting at Brooklyn College of the City University of New York.

Stefan Toepler, PhD, is Associate Professor of Nonprofit Studies in the Schar School of Policy and Government of George Mason University, Arlington, Virginia. He is also a Lead Research Fellow at the Centre for Studies of Civil Society and the Nonprofit Sector at the National Research University Higher School of Economics, Moscow, Russian Federation.

Ermanno C. Tortia is Associate Professor at the University of Trento. His research focuses on the theory of the firm, business economics, labor economics, human resources and organizational behavior as applied to third-sector research and the organizational forms in the social economy (cooperative and social enterprises, and nonprofit organizations). He works with EuRICSE (European Research Institute on Cooperative and Social Enterprises, Trento, Italy); is a member of the scientific committee of the Journal of Entrepreneurial and Organizational Diversity, and a member of the teaching committee of the PhD program in Development Economics and Local Systems (DELoS) at the School of Social Science, Trento University.

Howard P. Tuckman was a Professor of Finance and Economics and holder of the George Jean Chair, Fordham University Graduate Business School, at the time of his passing in 2010.

Vladislav Valentinov, PhD, is a Research Associate at the Leibniz Institute of Agricultural Development in Transition Economies in Halle, Germany. His research interests include the institutional economics of the nonprofit sector and the nonprofit sector’s role in rural development.

Dennis R. Young, PhD, is Professor Emeritus at Georgia State University and Editor of the journal Nonprofit Policy Forum. He is former president of the Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA). His most recent book is Financing Nonprofits and Other Social Enterprises: A Benefits Approach (Edward Elgar, 2017).