
Acknowledgments

We wish to thank our executive editor Alan Sturmer for his steadfast support of this Handbook and his encouragement to produce a second edition. We also acknowledge the efforts of Erin Vokes and Stuart Mendel in organizing the Wise Economic Decision Making meeting on 17 March 2017 in Cleveland, which provided the opportunity for many of our authors to compare notes, dialogue with nonprofit and other community leaders and provide guidance to each other for revising their chapters or writing new ones. That event, hosted by the Maxine Goodman Levin College of Urban Affairs at Cleveland State University, was produced in partnership with Edward Elgar Publishing, the National Center on Nonprofit Enterprise and Business Volunteers Unlimited, and financially supported by United Way of Cleveland, Richard W. Pogue, Buckingham, Doolittle & Burroughs, The Center for Nonprofit Policy & Practice of Cleveland State University, Mario Morino and the Nonprofit Academic Centers Council. We are grateful for the support of these partners and sponsors, and to the outstanding group of nonprofit scholars who came together to produce this volume.