Contributors

Michèle Akoorie is a Professor in the Department of Strategy and Human Resource Management at the University of Waikato Management School, New Zealand. She is a graduate of Auckland University, holds an MBA (with distinction) in Export Management and International Business from City University, London (now Cass Business School) and a DPhil from the University of Waikato. She has taught at the University of Auckland and has held visiting positions at ANU (Australia) Reims Management School, France, The University of Oregon, USA, and the University of the Americas at Puebla, Mexico. Her specialization is International Management: foreign direct investment, small firm internationalization and clusters.

Gry Agnete Alsos is Professor in Entrepreneurship and Innovation at the Nord University Business School, Norway. She conducts research within areas such as business start-up processes, portfolio entrepreneurship, rural entrepreneurship, gender perspectives to entrepreneurship and innovation, and entrepreneurship and innovation policies. She is particularly interested in how different types of entrepreneurs develop their ventures and how they acquire and utilize knowledge and other resources in these processes. Alsos has published in a variety of entrepreneurship journals and books within these areas, and she is an Editorial Board Member of Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice.

José Ernesto Amorós is Professor and Doctoral Programs Director at EGADE Business School, Tecnológico de Monterrey, Mexico, and Visiting Professor at Universidad del Desarrollo, Chile. He is a member of the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor (GEM) Board of Directors. He holds a PhD in Management Sciences from ESADE Business School. He has a Bachelor’s degree in Business Administration and MSc in Marketing from Monterrey’s Institute of Technology, Mexico. He is a member of several academic organizations and VP of Iberoamerican Academy of Management. His research interests are entrepreneurship and competitiveness, high-growth new business, entrepreneurship and gender and corporate entrepreneurship.
Candida G. Brush is the Vice Provost of Global Entrepreneurial Leadership, and holds the Franklin W. Olin Chair in Entrepreneurship at Babson College, USA. She holds an honorary doctorate from Jönköping University, Sweden, and she has a visiting adjunct appointment to Nord University, Bodo Graduate School of Business, Norway. Professor Brush is a founding member of the Diana Project International, winner of the 2007 Global Award for Entrepreneurship Research. Her research investigates women’s growth businesses, angel investing and strategies of emerging ventures. She has authored 11 books and journal articles. She serves as a Senior Editor for Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, is an angel investor and board member for several companies.

Susan Coleman is a Professor of Finance at the University of Hartford located in West Hartford, Connecticut, USA. She teaches courses in entrepreneurial and corporate finance at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Dr Coleman’s research interests include entrepreneurial and small business finance. She has published extensively on the topic of financing women-owned firms, and has co-authored three books: A Rising Tide: Financing Strategies for Women-owned Firms (Coleman and Robb (2012), Stanford University Press), The Next Wave: Financing Women’s Growth-oriented Firms (Coleman and Robb (2016), Stanford University Press), and Creating the Social Venture (Coleman and Kariv (2016), Routledge).

Dev K. Dutta is Associate Professor of Strategic Management and Entrepreneurship in the Management Department at the Peter T. Paul College of Business and Economics, University of New Hampshire, USA. He received his PhD in Business with dual specializations in Strategic Management and Entrepreneurship from the Ivey Business School, Western University, Canada. Dev brings with him 15 years of professional experience as a corporate strategist in high-tech companies and another 15 years of academic experience in entrepreneurship and strategy research, teaching, and pedagogy. His current area of research falls at the intersection of entrepreneurship and innovation, with a focus on technology generation and commercialization. He also has an interest in gender issues in entrepreneurship, especially in high-tech settings.

Linda F. Edelman is a Professor of Management at Bentley University, USA. She received her MBA and DBA from Boston University and studied at London Business School and was a research fellow at the Warwick Business School. Her research examines small firm internationalization and women and nascent entrepreneurs. She is currently a Research Fellow at Saint Petersburg State University, Russia. Linda is the author of over 50 scholarly articles and book chapters. She serves on three editorial boards, as an expert panel reviewer for the Belgium FWO, and she recently received a research grant from the Kauffman Foundation.
Contributors

Lene Foss (PhD) is a Professor of Innovation and Entrepreneurship at the School of Business and Economics, UiT The Arctic University of Norway. Her research concentrates on gender in innovation and entrepreneurship, university entrepreneurship/academic entrepreneurship, and entrepreneurial education. Professor Foss is an Associate Editor of the Journal of Small Business Management and editorial consultant for the International Journal of Gender and Entrepreneurship. She has been a visiting fellow at the Department of Sociology, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Cambridge Judge Business School, University of Cambridge, UK.

Patricia Gabaldón is currently an Assistant Professor of Economic Environment at IE Business School, Madrid, Spain. Within the Business School, she has been teaching in a wide range of graduate and executive management programs in Spain and abroad. She has developed her research around the role of women in the economy and its effects on economic growth and corporate sustainability. Patricia is a graduate in Economics from the University of Alcala, Spain, from where she also received her PhD in Economics. Her research has also been published in numerous book chapters and articles in both academic journals and press.

Jenny Gibb is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Strategy and Human Resource Management at the University of Waikato Management School, New Zealand. She teaches in the areas of strategic entrepreneurship, innovation and strategic management. Jenny is a behavioral strategist whose research explores new ways of organizing capability in goal-setting environments, particularly for entrepreneurs. These forms of organizing begin with understanding the cognitive drivers and interdependencies between self and others.

Daniela Giménez is currently a PhD candidate in Business Economics at the Family Business Institute at University of Witten/Herdecke, Germany. Her interests include entrepreneurship, gender, family business, new institutionalism, and methodologies.

Ulrike Guelich is Senior Researcher and Lecturer at the School of Entrepreneurship and Management, Bangkok University, Thailand. Ulrike is a GEM Thailand team member (since 2012). Prior to academia, she was an entrepreneur in Germany. Her 25 years of entrepreneurship experience include years as a business owner in a manufacturing family business in the fourth generation and leading an IT start-up as supplier to the automotive industry. She holds two MBAs and a PhD in Entrepreneurship. Her research interests evolve around women entrepreneurship, the use of entrepreneurial networks and their influence on innovation in entrepreneurial activities.

Atsede T. Hailemariam is a doctoral candidate at Tilburg University, the Netherlands. She is a Senior Lecturer at Addis Ababa University College of Business and Economics – School of Commerce, Ethiopia. She has a Master’s degree in mathematics from Addis Ababa University, Ethiopia and a Master of Business Administration from the Open University, UK.

Margrete Haugum is a Senior Researcher at the Trøndelag Research & Development Institute, Norway. She has a PhD from the Norwegian University of Science and Technology. Her research interests span from entrepreneurship and learning to the food supply chain. In the Norwegian Program for Regional R&D and Innovation (VRI), she took part in the establishment of the program in one of the regions. Later she became a part of the research group Geninno – gender and innovation in VRI.

Colette Henry is Head of School of Business and Humanities at the Dundalk Institute of Technology, Ireland, and Adjunct Professor of Entrepreneurship at UiT The Arctic University of Norway. She is also a Fellow of the Royal Society, Visiting Professor at Birmingham City University, and Visiting Fellow at CIMR, Birkbeck, London, UK. In 2015, Colette was awarded the prestigious Trailblazer award for her work on female entrepreneurship. She is the founding Editor-in-Chief of the International Journal of Gender and Entrepreneurship. Her research interests include: women’s entrepreneurship, entrepreneurship education and training, the creative industries, social enterprise and veterinary business.

Javed Ghulam Hussain is Professor of Entrepreneurial Finance and leads the Accounting and Finance Research Group at Birmingham City Business School, UK, where he specializes in corporate finance and entrepreneurship. Previously he worked at the Forward Trust Group (now a subsidiary of HSBC bank) and Birmingham City Council. He is an editorial member of the Journal of Entrepreneurship in Emerging Economies. Currently, he is working with colleagues from various universities in the UK on research linking entrepreneurial finance entrepreneurship and microfinance. He has provided a wide range of consultancy services to small, medium-sized and large organizations in the UK.

Luchien Karsten is a Professor Emeritus of Management, Organization and International Business at the Faculty of Economics and Business at the University of Groningen, the Netherlands. His research interests are globalization, time management, and small business. He has published research on Ubuntu, globalization and time, and management concepts.

Brigitte Kroon is a Senior Lecturer and Researcher at the Department of Human Resource Studies, School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Tilburg University, the Netherlands. Dr Brigitte's research focuses on extending Human Resource Management (HRM) systems theory to work contexts that are less standard in HRM research, such as temporary and flexible work, small organizations, low-skilled jobs and the self-employed.

Elisabet Ljunggren is a Professor at Nord University and Nordland Research Institute, Norway. Her research interests include gender aspects of entrepreneurship, innovation and business polices. She has published work on the entrepreneurial process, the household dimensions of entrepreneurship, and policy initiatives to enhance entrepreneurship and innovation (e.g. business incubators). She has conducted studies on entrepreneurship in agriculture and innovation in experience-based industries. Dr Ljunggren has published in Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice and Entrepreneurship and Regional Development, been guest editor of the International Journal of Gender and Entrepreneurship and edited several research books both in Norway and abroad. She has an extensive research portfolio and has experience from EU, international and national research projects.

Irene M. Lugalla is a PhD student at the Faculty of Economics and Business, University of Groningen, the Netherlands. She is also a Lecturer in Entrepreneurship, Gender and Development at the University of Iringa, Tanzania. Her research interests concern entrepreneurship, women and small business growth, gender and development in Africa.

Clemens Lutz is an Associate Professor in Small Business Economics at the Faculty of Economics and Business, University of Groningen, the Netherlands. His research interests concern small business and small-holders in developing countries. The research focuses on insights from the literature on industrial organization and strategic management and has been published in the Journal of Development Economics, Regional Science, the Journal of African Economies, the Journal of Development Studies, the International Marketing Review, the International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Small Business Economics, among others.

Vesna Mandakovic is the Academic Director of the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor in Chile. She is an Assistant Professor in the Entrepreneurship Institute of Universidad del Desarrollo, Chile. She holds a PhD in Economics from the Pontificia Universidad Católica of Chile. Her research interests lie in the study of entrepreneurial activity, analyzing how public policy and programs influence the creation of new business ventures in developing economies, and trying to identify which policies are actually successful in stimulating rates of entrepreneurship from an empirical perspective.
Entrepreneurial ecosystems and growth of women’s entrepreneurship

Tatiana S. Manolova is an Associate Professor of Management at Bentley University, USA. Her research interests include strategic management, international entrepreneurship, and management in emerging economies. She is currently a Research Fellow at Saint Petersburg State University, Russia, and is affiliated with Diana International, an international research project which explores the growth strategies of women business owners worldwide. Tatiana is the author of over 50 scholarly articles and book chapters. She serves on the editorial boards of Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, Journal of Business Venturing and the Babson College Entrepreneurship Research Conference Board of Reviewers (2015–17).

Xaver Neumeyer is an Assistant Professor of Entrepreneurship at University of North Dakota’s School of Entrepreneurship, USA. His current research interests include entrepreneurial ecosystems (formation, interaction effects, and measurement), as well as how these ecosystems shape or are shaped by entrepreneurs. He received his PhD in mechanical engineering from Northwestern University in 2014 and his MSc in mechanical and aerospace engineering from the Illinois Institute of Technology in 2006. He also completed a Post-doctoral Bridge Program at the University of Florida.

Barbara Orser is Full/Deloitte Professor in the Management of Growth Enterprises, Telfer School of Management, University of Ottawa, Canada. She is the co-author of Feminine Capital “Unlocking the Power of Women Entrepreneurs” (with C. Elliott (2015), Stanford University Press), two small business finance books, and the primary investigator of over 100 academic/trade studies. Barbara’s research interests focus on entrepreneurial decision-making, gender and enterprise growth and small business policy. She is the Founder and Chair of the Canadian Taskforce for Women’s Enterprise Growth (2011) and recipient of several awards that recognize her support for women’s enterprise, including the Women’s Executive Network “100 Most Powerful Women in Canada” and The International Alliance of Women “World of Difference 100 Award”.

Julia Poncela-Casasnovas is a postdoctoral fellow at the Northwestern Institute on Complex Systems, USA. She has worked on a variety of topics related to complex systems, ranging from the adoption of innovation to weight loss. Her current interests revolve around strategic interactions among humans using a game theoretical perspective. She received her PhD in Physics from the University of Zaragoza, Spain in 2010 and her MSc in Physics from the University of Zaragoza in 2007.

Alicia Robb is a Senior Fellow with the Ewing Marion Kauffman Foundation, USA. She has previously worked with the Office of Economic Research in the Small Business Administration and the Federal Reserve Board of Governors. She is also a prolific author on the topic of entrepreneurship. In addition to numerous journal articles and book chapters, she is the co-author of Race and Entrepreneurial Success (MIT Press), as well as A Rising Tide and The Next Wave (Stanford University Press). She is Founder and CEO of Next Wave Ventures, an active angel investor, a mentor to start-ups around the world, on the Advisory Board for Global Entrepreneurship Week and the Deming Center Venture Fund, and is a guest contributor to outlets such as Huffington Post and Forbes.

Navjot Sandhu is a Senior Lecturer in Finance at Birmingham City University, UK. She has expertise in the area of bank lending decisions for small and medium farmers; an important area of research that has potential to impact on government policy and the agricultural sector at large and, specifically in emerging economies. She has experience of working on European Union-funded projects on the work-life balance issues that impact on productivity among the employees. She is a peer reviewer for a number of international journals and an assistant editor of the Journal of Small Business and Enterprise Development.

Susana C. Santos is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the Entrepreneurship and Innovation Center at the University of Florida, USA. She holds a PhD in Human Resources Management and Organizational Behavior from Instituto Universitário de Lisboa (ISCTE-IUL), Portugal. Her main research interests are on the cognitive and psychosocial processes of entrepreneurship, at individual and team levels. Susana has published in the Journal of Business Research, the International Journal of Entrepreneurial Behavior and Research, Creativity and Innovation Management, the Journal of Career Assessment, the Journal of Small Business and Entrepreneurship and the International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Innovation.

Jonathan M. Scott is Associate Professor in International Business and Economics at Newcastle Business School, Northumbria University, UK. He has recently been a Visiting Research Fellow at the Entrepreneurship Unit, University of Turku, Finland, and at Waikato Management School, New Zealand. He is co-author of Thompson et al.’s textbook Strategic Management Awareness and Change, 7th edn (Cengage, 2014), and co-editor of Hussain and Scott’s *Research Handbook on Entrepreneurial
Entrepreneurial ecosystems and growth of women’s entrepreneurship

Finance (Edward Elgar, 2015). His collaborative research focuses on entrepreneurial finance, business support and policy, and international comparative differences.

Cathrine Seierstad is a Lecturer in International Human Resource Management at Queen Mary, University of London, UK. Cathrine’s research interests fall largely within the fields of gender, leadership, diversity management, women on boards, equality, diversity and inclusion, corporate governance and corporate social responsibility. Her work is published in a wide range of journals and books internationally.

Paresha Sinha is a Senior Lecturer in International Management at the University of Waikato Management School, New Zealand. She obtained her PhD in Management from the Victoria University of Wellington. She has worked as a consultant and corporate trainer to Indian public sector firms and multinational corporations in the manufacturing and chemical industries. Her research interests cover the broad topic of organizational leadership and focus on CEO image and identity and the co-construction of charismatic and destructive leader-follower relationships. She also researching international entrepreneurship in family firms and the strategies and legitimation during national mergers and acquisitions.

Marc van Veldhoven is Professor of Work, Health and Well-being and Chairman of the Department of Human Resources Studies in School of Social and Behavioral Sciences at Tilburg University, the Netherlands. His research focuses on HRM, industrial and organizational psychology, as well as occupational health. He has a special interest in the development and application of questionnaires in the three applied research fields mentioned.

Friederike Welter leads the IfM Bonn (Institut für Mittelstandsforschung) and has held a professorship at the University of Siegen, Germany since February 2013. Prior to that, she worked at Jönköping International Business School, Sweden (2008–13). Friederike has broad experience in applied and policy-related research on entrepreneurship and small business, much of it in an international context. Her main research interests are the nature of entrepreneurship and entrepreneurial behavior in different contexts, women entrepreneurship and entrepreneurship/small and medium-sized enterprises (SME) policies. She has published widely in international journals and also is Senior Editor of Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice.

Siri Roland Xavier is Associate Professor, Deputy Dean and Programme Director for Entrepreneurship at Bank Rakyat School of Business and Entrepreneurship, University Tun Abdul Razak, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. He is National Team leader for GEM, a board member of the Global Entrepreneurship Research Association, founding member of the Babson Collaborative for Entrepreneurship Educators, editorial board member of the Journal of Global Entrepreneurship Research and reviewer of Emerald Emerging Markets Case Studies. Prior to entering academia he was an entrepreneur and business consultant to SMEs. He holds an LLB (Hons), MBA and a DBA (Entrepreneurship). His research interests include innovation management and entrepreneurship policy development.

R. Isil Yavuz is an Assistant Professor of Entrepreneurship at the Ozyegin University, Istanbul, Turkey. She received her PhD in Strategic Management and Entrepreneurship from the University of Minnesota, USA. She has a Master’s degree in Social Psychology, and Bachelor’s degree in Business Administration (as a valedictorian) from METU, Ankara, Turkey. Her research focuses on new business creation, early internationalization, and new venture survival and growth. Her research has been published in the Journal of Business Venturing and Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice. Isil Yavuz serves in AOM Entrepreneurship Division’s Global Scholar Development Committee and is a Kauffman Dissertation Fellow in Entrepreneurship.