

Index

- academic worldview 212–13, 219, 221
 tensions with the triple helix 213–16
- Alam, I. and Perry, C. (2002) 54, 167, 170
- Amenta, E. and Ramsey, K.M. (2010) 209
- assimilation approach to innovation processes 4
- Barabási, A.L. and Albert, R. (1999) 116
- Battaglio, R.P. and Scicchitano, M.J. (2013) 215
- Beesley, L. (2004) 208
- Bienkowska, D. (2010) 208
- Bitner, M.J. et al. (1990) 47
- blogs see social media data; idea generation
- Bracken, S. (2010) 208
- Breakey N.M. et al. (2009) 208
- Bricolage 5, 10, 52, 78, 119, 193, 194, 195, 204
- Burt, R.S. (1992, 2000) 115
- Business-to-Business (B2B) market 60, 72
- Business-to-Consumer (B2C) companies 60, 72
- Cagnin, C. et al. (2008) 156
- Chell, Elizabeth 49–53
- Chesbrough, H.W. (2003) 132
- Christensen, T. et al. (2009) 209
- Clarke, Adele 96
(2005) 100–101
- co-creation 7, 24, 26, 83, 89, 166, 190, 192, 193
 of knowledge 19
 of value 7, 24, 77–8, 88–9, 90, 92
- Cobern, W. (1991) 204
- communication and information technologies 7, 31, 96, 132, 149
 social media see social media data studies 133–5
- ‘Competencies on iPad’ innovation 31, 32
- Cope, J. (2011) 51–2, 53
- critical incident technique (CIT) 40–57 approaches and application 56
 ‘explicitation’ method 48
 Flanagan’s method 40–45 five stages 44–5
 flexible principles 44, 45
 limitations of 45–6 used for collecting subjective experiences 45 used in other contexts 43–4
- learning points and discussion topics 57
- phenomenological–interpretivist 49–53, 55, 56–7 case studies using 51–2
 interpretivist–hermeneutical approach and 52–3 limitations: heterogeneity and formalization 52–3 situated experience and social constructivism 49
- positivist–functional approach 47–9, 56 criticisms and limitations 47–9 presentation: usefulness 47
 reflexive process 52, 53–5, 56
 limitations 55
- service encounter research 45, 47, 56–7
- customer involvement 166
 new service development (NSD) 167 obtaining customer insight 89–90
 service encounter research 45, 47, 56–7, 78

- hotel case study in field experiments 189–94
 - see also* social media data
- customer-dominant logic (CDL) 78
- customer/market factors 27
- Darai, D. et al. (2010) 184
- Decker, M. and Ladikas, M. (2004) 152
- demarcation approach to innovation processes 4–5
- den Hertog, P. et al. (2010) 69
- educational institutions see universities
- employee-driven innovation 7, 13, 19, 23–4, 27, 32–3, 35, 78, 83, 167, 170–72, 176–8, 184
- see also* idea generation
- employee factors 26–7
- employee role, study examples 47, 189–97
- ‘Employment Indicators’ innovation 31, 32
- engaged research 12, 133, 140, 143–4, 168, 170, 171, 176–8, 181, 199
- methodology 138–9
- see also* idea generation
- entrepreneurship 51, 117
- festival network case study 120–24
- ethnographic methods 99, 132–3
- Etzkowitz, H. (2002) 205
- et al. (2000) 207
- Eubanks, C. and Gauthier, D.J. (2011) 211
- Eurostat’s CIS surveys 21–2
- European Innovation Union Scoreboard (2014) 22
- experience(s)
 - contemporary role of 6–7
 - of innovation 21, 40–57, 123–5, 136
 - of service 11, 68, 76–91, 182, 184–5, 190–96
 - New Innovative Customer Experience (NICE) Project 203–22 see also separate entry
- Ferguson, J.E. (2005) 208, 215
- festival network case study 120–24
- field experiments 181–99
 - case study (hotel) 189–94
 - bricolage and innovation 194
 - findings 194–7
 - generalised relevance 197–8
 - new knowledge of guests 193
 - phases (1–6) 190–93
 - service encounter focus 189–90
- data collection 188
- deductive logic 188
- ethical questions 197
- Hawthorne effects 188
- learning points and discussion topics 199
- phases (1–6) 185–8
 - analysing, evaluating and reporting 186, 187
 - case study: implications for field experiments 195
 - developing and designing 185–7
 - implementation and transformation 186, 187–8
 - initial case study 185, 186
 - relationship building 185, 186
 - running and monitoring 186, 187
- and service innovation research 184–5
- and social science ‘quasi-experiments’ 182–3
- studies on 184
- usefulness 181–2
 - breadth of application 183
 - limitations and benefits 188–9, 198–9
 - transferability 197–8
- see also* interpretivist social network analysis; social media data
- financial services innovation scenario analysis 159–60
- Flanagan, J. (1954) 40–45
- Franke, N. and Piller, F. (2004) 134
- Franklin, A. (2004) 211
- Frascati manual 21
- front-line employees 182, 189–92, 195, 196
- Fuglsang, Lars 10, 40 (2007) 40 (2010) 5, 52, 195 (2014) 7 et al. (2011) 21

- and Sørensen, Flemming (2011) 4, 5, 40, 52, 119, 182, 183, 184, 194, 195, 204
- Future Workshops 166–78
- case study 171–6
 - context, purpose and application (phases) 171–2
 - findings 176–7
 - implementation guidelines 174–6
 - organization of generated ideas 172–4
 - participants details 173
 - preparatory phase 172
 - record keeping 174
 - discussion: balance, depth and length 177
 - engaged research context 176–7
 - learning points and discussion topics 178
 - new service development (NSD) 167, 170
 - phases (critique/fantasy/implementation) 169 and ‘realistic suggestions phase’ 169, 172–3, 177
 - subject scope 177
 - usefulness and potential 168–9, 177–8
 - in service innovation research 170 see also idea generation
 - future-oriented technology analysis 148, 152–3, 159, 161
 - fuzzy front-end 91, 137, 195–6
- Georghiou, L. 156
- (1996) 152
 - government worldview 209–10
 - tensions with the triple helix 213–16
- Granovetter, M.S. (1973) 115
- Gremler, D.D. (2004) 48–9
- Grönroos, C. and Voima, P. (2013) 88
- Grünbaum, Niels Nolsøe 11, 60 and Stenger, M. (2015) 65, 67, 70–72
- Gutman, J. (1982) 60, 63
- Hagen, R. (2002) 207–8
- Hansen, Anne Vorre 11, 76
- Hawthorne effects 188
- healthcare services 48
- Heinonen, K. et al. (2013) 78
- Helkkula, A. and Pihlström, M. (2010) 48, 80
- Hernes, T. (2014) 76
- Hodgson, G.M. (2006) 209
- hospitality and tourism sectors 207–8, 210–11
- hotel case study in field experiments 189–94
- iceberg analogy 61
- idea generation
 - methods 80
 - storytelling and story creation 87–9, 91
 - phase, of service innovation process 6, 12, 117, 167–8, 170, 185, 195–6, 212
 - application of blogs in 133–45
 - in Future Workshops 166–78 see also separate entry
- income and growth 26
- individualization and self-actualization 6
 - customers see customer involvement
- information and communication technologies 7, 96, 132, 149
- social media see social media data studies 31–3, 133–5
- innovation
 - as growth creator 20–21, 40
 - bricolage 119, 194
 - service marketing 78
 - uses of the term 3–4
- innovation scoreboards 22
- institutions 209 see also organizational studies
- interpretivist social network analysis (SNA) 112–28
 - case study example 120–24
 - cohesion/common goals 122
 - description of network actors 120–21
 - development and expansion 123
 - local and non-local networks 122–3
 - mobilization 122
 - participatory character of network 121

- varied perceptions of network
 - 123, 125
- variety of actors 123
- concepts of 113–14
 - mathematical approach 112
- contribution of SNA in innovation
 - studies 114–17
- collaboration networks 114–15
- communication networks 115
- information distribution/
 - knowledge development 115–16
- networks as sustaining innovation 115
- networks' dynamism 116–17
- technologies and sectors 115
- learning points and discussion topics 128
- nodes and ties 113–14, 115
- qualitative approach to 117–20
 - heterogeneous actors 119
 - identification of networks 119
 - overall relevance and usefulness 126–7
 - service innovation variety 118
 - specificity/complexity of information 124–5
 - subjective focus, benefits of 125–6
- see also* field experiments
- interpretivist–hermeneutical approach 52–3
- interpretivist–social-constructivist approach 49–53
- Jungk, Robert and Müllert, Norbert (1987) 168, 169, 172
- Kaplan, A.M. and Haenlein, M. (2010) 134–5, 137
- knowledge economy 205–8
- Kozinets, R.V. (2002) 132–3
- Kreibich, R. et al. (2011) 150
- Kuhn, M. (2007) 137
- laddering method 60–73
 - application in service innovation 69, 72
 - as qualitative technique 60
 - content codes 65
 - data collection and analysis 65–6
 - hierarchical value map 66
 - implication matrix 65
 - learning points and discussion topics 73
 - and means–end theory 60
 - attribute, consequence and value levels 63–5
 - streams of research 62–3
 - uncovering consumers' mental maps 63, 66
 - soft laddering and hard laddering 62
 - values 66–8
 - and consumer choice 61–2
 - iceburg analogy 61
 - individual or collective interests 68
 - instrumental and terminal 66
 - Schwartz's value system 64, 66–8
 - society, group and individual (S, G and I) 70–72
 - value map (boycott of organic foods) 67, 69–72
 - 'why' questions 63
 - see also* value(s)
- Langley, A.
 - (1999) 95, 96, 98–99, 109
 - (2007) 54
- LaPalombara, J. (2003) 215
- Lapenta, Francesco 1, 12, 148
 - (2013) 156–7, 161
- Lawton Smith, H. and Leydesdorff, L. (2012) 206
- Lemey, E. and Poels, G. (1973) 210
- Leydesdorff, L.
 - (2000) 204, 205
 - (2010) 'The communication of meaning' 208
 - (2012, 2013) 203, 205–6, 213
- Luhmann's social systems theory 208
- Lusch, R.F.
 - and Nambisan, S. (2012) 76
 - and Vargo, S. (2014) 78, 88
- Maglio, P.P. et al. (2009) 210
- manufacturing innovation
 - measurements 21–3
- mapping techniques 95–109
 - ethnographic methods 99

- learning points and discussion topics 109
- non-neutrality, dangers inherent in 108–9
- process maps, data 98–100 example of function 99–100
- safe management of 108–9
- temporal situational analysis 100–107 positional maps 101, 105–6 situational maps 101, 104–7 social world/arenas maps 101–3 usefulness of 95, 107–8
- value map example 67
implications of 69–72
- visual displays: matrices and networks 96–8
- Martin, B.R. (1995) 151
- means–end theory 60, 62–3, 66–8, 69
- measurement instruments see quantitative measurement instruments
- Miles, Matthew and Huberman, Michael (1994) 95–6, 97, 99
- Mohrman, S. et al. (2001) 218
- Müller, M. (2013) 79–80, 89, 91
- municipal authorities network 121
- ‘My Doctor Friend’ innovation 31, 32
- narrative methods 76–92
Aristotle’s Metaphysics 77 case study (non-profit housing sector) 81–8 creating new stories (‘Citation Scrabble’) 83–5, 89–90 findings 85–8
stories: interviews and innovation workshop 82–3 customer insight, obtaining 89–90
- event-based narrative inquiry technique 80
- experienced value, through storytelling 77–9
- learning points and discussion topics 91–2
- service innovation and 79–80
- usefulness and application of 76–7, 90
- value co-creation 90
- context as crucial 88–9
- customers as co-creators 77–8
- networking studies 7
interpretivist see interpretivist social network analysis
- New Innovative Customer Experiences (NICE) Project 195, 203–4, 216–20, 221
- new product development (NPD) 167
- new service development (NSD) 167
- non-profit housing sector, example study 81–8
- ‘observable activity’ and cause–effect relationship 42
- OECD, The Knowledge-Based Economy (1996) 207
- Olesen, Anne Rørbæk 11–12, 95 (2015) 96, 101, 107
- open innovation 7, 8, 12, 21, 132–4, 137–8, 143, 144, 152, 166, 177–8
see also social media data
- organizational studies 79, 98 firm and user interaction see social media data idea generation see separate entry
new service development (NSD) 167 policy–industry–academia see triple helix model social network analysis see interpretivist social network analysis
stakeholder processes 156–8, 166
see also institutions
- Oslo manual 21–2
- Pittsburgh University, Department of Psychology 43
- positivist–functional approach 47–9
- Powell, W.W. and Snellman, K. (2004) 205–6, 207
et al. (2005) 116–17
practice-orientated research 10, 136, 137, 170, 174, 178, 197–8, 212, 218
- practitioner engagement 24–5, 33–4, 138–9, 168
- Prandelli, E. et al. (2006) 134
- process maps 98–100
- process studies 53–4
- psychology 43–4, 61

- quantitative measurement instruments 19–35 economic growth theories and 19–20 exploratory experiments (case studies) 28–34 conclusions drawn 33–4 method followed 29 outcomes important by information innovations 31–3 outcomes important by tax 29–31 firm level 24–8
 actors' willing participation 24–5, 33–4 broad measure 25–6
 co-creation (customer involvement) 24 input factors (money/time) 26, 33 outcome factors 26–7, 33
 customer/market factors 27
 employee factors 26–7
 income and growth 26
 strategic/business model factors 27 practical usability 27–8, 117–18 workshop explorations see workshops imperfect state of, and learning points 34–5 for total input and output (R&D based) 21–23 macro-level 21–2
 micro-level 22–3
 for total input and output (services) 23–4
- Ranga, M. et al. (2008) 207
 reflexive process 52, 53–5, 56
 research trends 6–8 restaurant and café industry 51
 Reynolds T.J. and Gutman J. (1988) 65
 Rogers, E.M. (1995) 167
 Rokeach, M. (1973) 66
 Roos, I. (2002) 47–8
 Roskilde University Library case studies 138–43, 171–6
 Rubalcaba, Luis et al. (2012) 69
- scenario analysis see technology-oriented scenario analysis
 Schoemaker, Paul J.H. (1995) 153, 159
 Schumpeter, J. 20
 (1969) 5
 Schwartz, S.H. 64, 66–8, 70
 and Bilsky, W. (1987) 66–7
 (1992) 67–8
 Schwartz's value system 64, 66–8, 70
 Scupola, Ada 8, 132, 140, 166
 and Nicolajsen, H.W. (2009) 140, 141
 and Nicolajsen, H.W. (2010) 135, 171
 and Zanfei, A. (2016) 140, 141, 171
 service encounter research 45, 47–8, 56–7, 78
 hotel case study in field experiments 189–94 service innovation research 1–14 innovation/innovation processes 3–4, 5–6 as conceptual integrative framework 69 process studies and 53–5 research dimensions dynamics 9
 micro and macro levels 79 role of, and influences upon 8–9 trends in 6–8
 and services 1, 5–6, 184, 204 and service innovation processes 3, 7 approaches/models 4–5, 166–7 as apart from other areas of innovation 5 as complex process 204 consumption and production spontaneity 5–6, 184–5 measurement in 23–4, 25 top-down and bottom-up based 6 service sector industry worldview 210–12
 tensions with the triple helix 213–16
 service-dominant logic (SDL) 78, 210 social media data 132–45
 blogs 135, 136
 functionalities 136 interaction limitations/advantages 136–7 risks to firms 137–8
 service innovation research and 137–8

- case study using blogs 138–43
 - blog establishment and idea collection phase 141–2
 - blog follow up and evaluation phase 142
 - blog preparatory phase 141
 - case context 139–40
 - engaged research methodology 138–9
 - findings and conclusions drawn 143–4
- emails and Facebook 133
- information and communication technologies 132
- studies 133–5
- Information Technologies (IT) 149
- learning points and discussion topics 134–5
- ‘netnography’ 132–3
- ‘Open Diary’ social networking site 135
- practitioner engagement 138–9
- Usenet 135
- virtual communities 134
- Web 2.0 and 134–5
- web-based tools usage 134, 136
 - see also* critical incident technique; customer involvement; field experiments
- social network analysis see interpretivist social network analysis
- social networking sites 135
- social science laboratory experiments 182–3, 184
- Sørensen, Flemming 13, 112, 181
 - (2007) 115, 118
 - (2008) 123
 - (2011) 184, 195
 - et al. (2010) 8, 135, 181, 183
 - et al. (2013) 4, 7, 40, 182, 190, 195, 204
 - and Fuglsang, Lars (2014) 7, 118–19, 123
 - and Jensen, J.F. (2012) 190, 197
 - and Jensen, J.F. (2015) 182, 184, 190, 192, 193
 - and Mattsson, J. (2016) 7, 115–16, 117, 119, 126, 133
 - and Sundbo, Jon (2014) 195
- stakeholder processes 156–8, 166
 - customers see customer involvement
 - employee role, study examples 47, 189–97
 - practitioner engagement 24–5, 33–4, 138–9, 168
- state institutionalism 209
- strategic/business model factors 27
- Sundbo, Jon 10, 19
 - (1998) 23, 28
 - (2010) 6, 185
 - (2014) 79
 - et al. (2015) 7, 24
 - and Gallouj, Faiz (2000) 25
 - and Sørensen, Flemming (2013) 6
 - and Sørensen, Flemming (2014) 6
 - and Toivonen, M. (2011) 7, 24, 77, 81, 166
- synthesis approach to innovation processes 5
- technology-oriented scenario analysis 148–63
 - definition and approach steps 155–6
 - dialogic consequentiality 154–6
 - descriptions and narratives 155
 - forecast functionality and aims 160–61
 - future-oriented technology analysis (FTA) 148, 152–3, 159, 161
 - pivotal aspects 153
 - integrated theoretical model 156–8
 - five generations model 156
 - multiple stakeholders processes 156–8
 - learning points and discussion topics 162–3
 - methodological model to conduct analysis 158–60
 - framing, scanning, forecasting, foresight 158–9
 - visioning, planning and action 159
 - predictive computing/evolving practices 161–2
 - strategic decision-making and 149–53
 - technological race and fractured timeline 150–51
- technology assessment 151, 152, 156

- technology forecasting 149, 151, 153, 156, 162
- technology foresight 151–4, 156, 162
- Technology Futures Analysis Methods Working Group 152
- tourism networks 118–19
- tourism sector 207–8, 210–11, 216–20
 - hotel case study in field experiments 189–94
- Tran, T.A. and Daim, T. (2008) 152
- triple helix model 203–22
 - case study example 216–20
 - bridging worldview differences 218–19
 - conclusions/lessons learnt 220–21
 - triple helix configuration 217
 - unbridged worldview differences 219–20
- contextual framework (knowledge economy) 205–6
- focus (policy–industry–academia) 203
- helix worldview 204
 - academic worldview 212–13
 - government worldview 209–10
 - long-, medium- and short-term 220–21
 - ‘mindset’ 208
 - service (tourist industry) worldview 210–12
 - successful/unsuccessful bridging 218–20
 - tensions and gaps inherent in 213–16
- learning points and discussion topics 221–2
- relevance for service innovation research 207–8
- terms describing 204
- triple helix projects see New Innovative Customer Experiences (NICE) Project
- universities 206, 207–8
 - academic worldview 212–13, 219, 221
 - tensions with the triple helix 213–16
- Urquhart, C. et al. (2003) 48
- user-based/driven innovation 5–8, 11, 12, 13, 23–4, 62, 77–8, 81, 90, 132–45, 156–7, 166–7, 170–78, 182, 184, 185, 190–92
 - see also* customer involvement; Future Workshops; social media data
- value(s)
 - co-creation 7, 24, 77–8, 90
 - iceberg analogy 61
 - in-use 7, 78
 - Schwartz’s value system 64, 66–8, 70
 - value propositions not related to product/objects 78
 - see also* laddering method
- Van de Ven, A.H. (1999) 54 (2007) 138–9, 140, 168–9, 171 and Poole, M.S. (2005) 90–91
- Van Der Valk, T. and Gijsberg, G. (2010) 114–15
- van Rijnsoever, F.J. et al. (2012) 184
- Vargo, S. (2008) 78 and Lusch, R.F. (2004) 5, 210
- venture failure 51
- Vidal, V. (2006) 168 (2008) 208, 215
- visual mapping techniques see mapping techniques
- Watts, D.J. (2003) 116