

Contributors

Manzoor Ahmad is an international trade expert. Currently, as well as serving as a Senior Fellow at the International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development (ICTSD), he is also the Chief Executive of World Trade Advisors, an independent consulting company. From 2002 to 2008, he served as Pakistan's Ambassador to WTO and from 2008 to 2010 as the Director, Food and Agriculture Organization. He has also been a panellist for several WTO trade disputes. He is also working in senior advisory positions on several national and international think tanks.

Tihomir Ancev is an Associate Professor in Environmental and Resource Economics, at the School of Economics, University of Sydney. He has research interests in water economics, economics of air pollution, design of policies to address pollution problems, and economics of regulation. He has published extensively on these topics in top international journals and in edited book volumes. Tiho has participated in, and led a number of national and international research projects focusing on water economics and economics of pollution.

Samad Azad is a Research Fellow at the Tasmanian School of Business and Economics of the University of Tasmania. His particular research interest is to measure productivity and efficiency of enterprises that use natural resources in their production system. Samad earned his PhD in Agricultural Resource Economics from the University of Sydney in 2012. Prior to joining the University of Tasmania in January 2015, Samad worked as a Research Associate at the Department of Agricultural & Resource Economics and the School of Economics of the University of Sydney (2012–14). He has also worked as a Teaching Assistant at the same University between 2008 and 2014. As an Agricultural Economist, Samad worked at the Bangladesh Rice Research Institute from 1999 to 2006. During this period he visited the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) a number of times in his role as a Research Collaborator in different socio-economic projects. Samad has published his research works in international refereed journals including Journal of Environmental Management, Ecological Economics and Water Resources Management.

Ana Paula de Barcellos, JD, LLM, SJD, is Constitutional Law Professor at the State University of Rio de Janeiro, and was the 2012–13 Takemi Fellow at the Harvard School of Public Health, Boston, MA, USA. She has authored three books and numerous articles, many of them on human dignity, its legal meaning and consequences, human rights public policies in democracies and social and economic rights. She is also a frequent guest lecturer in Brazil and abroad. She has been a member of the Yale Law School SELA (Seminario en LatinoAmérica de Teoría Constitucional y Política) Organizing Committee since 2012. She is the vice chairman of the Committee on Constitutional Law at the Brazilian Bar Association – Rio de Janeiro (2016/2018).

Rebecca Bates is a Lecturer in Environmental Law at Queen Mary University of London. Prior to joining Queen Mary in 2014, she held lectureships at the University of Sydney and Brunel University. Dr Bates completed her doctorate at the University of Sydney in 2009 with a thesis that examined the governance of privatised water markets in the domestic and international context. Dr Bates' research is focused on the areas of natural resources and water law with a particular focus on the economic and social aspects of these areas. She regularly contributes to international publications and conferences and has had publications appear in the Sydney Law Review, RECIEL and the University of Denver Water Law Review. At Queen Mary, Dr Bates teaches and convenes International Resources Law on the LLM Programme and teaches Tort at undergraduate level. She is currently the Book Review editor for the International Human Rights Law Review (Brill). Outside academia, Dr Bates is admitted as a Solicitor of the Supreme Court of New South Wales and has previously worked at a leading Australian law firm in the area of Product Liability.

Debashis Chakraborty is a member of the Faculty of Economics at the Indian Institute of Foreign Trade (IIFT), New Delhi, which is a leading Deemed University in India. Before joining IIFT, he was a Research Associate at Rajiv Gandhi Institute for Contemporary Studies (RGICS), New Delhi, a renowned policy think tank. His area of specialisation includes trade and WTO issues, environmental economics and economic development concerns in India. He received his Doctorate Degree from Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU), New Delhi. Dr Chakraborty has conducted several research projects on regional trade agreements, India's trade and investment flows, WTO related commitments, topics relating to Indian Economic Development etc. for State and Central Governments in India as well as for multilateral funding agencies. He has also organised a number of academic conferences as well as training programmes for government officials and corporate executives at IIFT over the last decade. He has extensively published research articles in national and international refereed journals. He also has ten volumes (including both co-authored and co-edited ones) to his credit. His co-edited volume on Environmental Challenges and Governance: Diverse Perspectives from Asia, was published in 2015. His forthcoming co-edited volume, Trade, Investment and Economic Development in Asia: Empirical and Policy Issues, will be published in mid-2016. He has also been a reviewer of several national and international journals. For the last three and a half years, Dr Chakraborty has been Associate Editor of Foreign Trade Review (Sage), which is a comprehensive forum for disseminating theoretical and empirical research on international trade and investment related issues.

Cosmas Emeziem, LLB (Nigeria), LLM (Cornell), Candidate for Doctor of the Science of Law (JSD), Senior Research Assistant, Cornell University Law School, Myron Taylor Hall Ithaca New York. Mr Emeziem is also enrolled as a Barrister and Solicitor of the Nigerian Supreme Court. He has attended courses in Public and Private International Law at The Hague Academy of International Law, The Hague, Netherlands. Additionally, he has practical experience in human rights advocacy, litigation, foreign direct investments, and community development services in Nigeria. Presently, he is researching on transitional justice measures and the intersection between human rights, democratic governance, institutional reforms, public policy, rule of law and post-conflict reconstruction.

Shotaro Hamamoto is Professor of the Law of International Organizations, Graduate School of Law, Kyoto University and Senior Fellow, Centre for International Governance Innovation (Ottawa) (since 2015). He has also taught at the Université de Paris I (2009) and Sciences Po de Paris (2012) as professeur invité. He was Counsel and Advocate for the Japanese Government in Whaling in the Antarctica (ICJ, Australia v. Japan, New Zealand intervening, 2010), Hoshinmaru (ITLOS, Japan v. Russia, 2007), and Tomimaru (ITLOS, Japan v. Russia, 2007), assistant for the Spanish Government in Fisheries Jurisdiction (ICJ, Spain v. Canada, 1997–98). He represented Japan in UNCITRAL WG II (Arbitration/Conciliation) (2010–15) and in the OECD Investment Committee (2011). He is an arbitrator at the Japan Sports Arbitration Agency (2008). His research subjects include the theory of juridical acts in international law, international investment law, the law of the sea and sports law. His recent publications include: ‘Domestic Review of Treaty-Based International Investment Awards: Effects of the Metalclad Judgment of the British Columbia Supreme Court’, in Machiko Kanetake and André Nollkaemper (eds), The Rule of Law at the National and International Levels: Contestations and Deference, 2016, pp.99–113; “L’État situé dans le droit international de l’investissement”, in Shotaro Hamamoto, Akiho Shibata and Hironobu Sakai eds., “L’être situé”, Effectiveness and Purposes of International Law: Essays in Honour of Professor Ryuichi Ida, 2015, pp.3–22; “Parties to the ‘Obligations’ in the Obligations Observance (‘Umbrella’) Clause”, (2015) 30 ICSID Review-Foreign Investment Law Journal 449–64. He holds LLB (Kyoto), LLM (Kyoto) and Docteur en droit (Paris II).

Francesc Hernandez-Sancho has a PhD in Environmental Economics and is an Associate Professor at the University of Valencia (UV). He is Head of the Water Economics Research Group in UV and Director of the Master on Water Management programme. He is also a Member of the Management Committee of the International Water Association (IWA) Specialist Group on Statistics and Economics and Leader of the IWA Water Economics Working Group. His research focuses on water tariffs and the economic efficiency of water utilities. He has also worked on economic feasibility studies of wastewater treatment and water reuse projects including the economic valuation of externalities. He has been a researcher in more than 25 Projects R&D related to water management and water economics and financed by Spanish Government and European Commission. He is Associate Editor of the reviews Water Science and Technology: Water Supply and Water Economics and Policy Journal.

Miharu Hirano is Research Fellow of Japan Society for the Promotion of Science and is currently enrolled in the PhD program at the Graduate School of Advanced Integrated Studies in Human Survivability, Kyoto University, Japan. He is also a Specially Appointed Researcher at the International Water Association. His research relates to the human right to water with the focus on the roles of various global regulations that have effects on domestic water governance.

Allen Yu-Hung Lai is currently the Principal, Real-World Evidence Solutions. In this role, he is responsible for the Health Economics & Outcomes Research (HEOR) practice, and is spearheading the IMS Institute for Healthcare Informatics. Allen has extensive experience across the full spectrum of health outcomes research. He holds concurrent appointments as President of the International Society of Pharmacoeconomics and Outcomes Research (ISPOR) Singapore Chapter and Advisor of Department of Health Promotion, Ministry of Health and Welfare (MOHW) in Taiwan. Allen is also a thought leader in healthcare, publishing more than 40 peer-reviewed articles, op-eds and book chapters over the course of his career. Allen holds a PhD and Masters in Public Administration from the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore. In addition, he holds a Master of Science in Public Health from National Taiwan University and is a certified medical doctor and surgeon by training.

Jonatan A. Lassa is a Senior Lecturer in Disaster and Emergency Management at the Charles Darwin University. He was based at the Center for Non-Traditional Security Studies (NTS) S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. A former fellow of the Harvard Kennedy School, Jonatan Lassa is an interdisciplinary scientist focused on institutional and human dimensions of disaster risk reduction and climate adaptation. He has qualifications in civil engineering, development studies, environmental policy, and social science. He holds a master's degree in environment and international development from the University of East Anglia, UK, received his Ph.D. in geoinformation science from the University of Bonn, Germany, and was a PhD researcher based at the United Nations University, Institute for Environment and Human Security in Bonn, Germany. He has more than ten years of professional experience in civil society organisations (including UN agencies) and in the disaster governance sector. As an Indonesian Research Fellow at Harvard Kennedy School for the Spring 2011 semester, Lassa's research focused on the role of institutions and governance in the (dis)integration of climate adaptation and disaster risk reduction.

Preetha Mahadevan holds a LLM from New York University (NYU) School of Law. Preetha is now a Senior Associate at Lakshmikumaran & Sridharan Attorneys in Bangalore, India. She advises multinational corporate clients and the board of various universities and large private sector clients on risk management, sponsor compliance matters and the immigration aspects of business restructuring.

Thomas McDonnell is the in-house macroeconomist at the Nevin Economic Research Institute (NERI), an economic think-tank operating in both the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland. Dr McDonnell is the lead author of the NERI's Quarterly Economic Observer and a regular commentator on economic issues in the Irish media. He specialises in economic growth theory, the economics of innovation, the Irish and European economies, and fiscal policy. He previously worked as an economist at the equality think-tank TASC and before that he was a lecturer in the economics department at National University of Ireland Galway and at Dublin City University. He has taught political economy at the National University of Ireland Maynooth. His Master's Degree is in economic policy evaluation and planning and he obtained his PhD in economics from NUI Galway specialising in economic growth and the economics of broadband. He is a native of Limerick city in Ireland.

Sacchidananda Mukherjee is an Associate Professor at National Institute of Public Finance and Policy (NIPFP), New Delhi, which is the largest think-tank on public economics and policies in India and has made significant research contributions in the area of revenue and taxation, fiscal management, public expenditure, macro-economic policies, fiscal federalism and other public finance and policy issues both at Central and State level. Prior to joining NIPFP, he was a Senior Scientific Officer at International Water Management Institute (IWMI), Hyderabad and Senior Manager – Water Resources and Policy at World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF)-India, New Delhi. His area of specialization includes public finance and fiscal policy, water resources management and environmental economics. He received his Doctoral Degree in Economics from University of Madras (Madras School of Economics), Chennai and Post Graduate Degree in Economics from Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU), New Delhi. Dr Mukherjee has carried out several research projects on public finance, water resources management and environmental economics for Central as well as State Governments in India and also for multilateral development agencies. He has coordinated many training programmes on taxation and tax administration for government officials. He has published his research papers in journals of international repute (including Journal of Development Studies) and co-edited two books Environmental Scenario in India: Successes and Predicaments and Environmental Challenges and Governance: Diverse Perspectives from Asia published in the UK and the USA. He reviews papers for many journals including Water Resources Management, Water Policy, and Urban Water Journal.

Sikander Ahmed Shah is an Associate Professor of Public International Law at the Lahore University of Management Sciences in Lahore, Pakistan. Between 2012 and 2013, he served as the Legal Adviser to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Pakistan. He recently authored the book International Law and Drone Strikes in Pakistan: The Legal and Socio-political Aspects (2015), which deals with the treatment of drone strikes under International Human Rights Law and International Humanitarian Law.

Virginie J.M. Tassin is an award-winning specialist in Law of the Sea (INDEMER Prize 2011). She holds a double-badged PhD from The University Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne and Melbourne University. Virginie also holds a Research Master in International Economic Law from The Sorbonne University, a Graduate Diploma of Commerce from Sydney University, and a Graduate Certificate in Advanced Learning & Leadership from Melbourne University. She also attended The Hague Academy of Public International Law and a pluridisciplinary postgraduate programme of the European Summer University. Virginie has worked for the French government, law firms (Blake Waldron Dawson, BHM-Penlaw, Eversheds), as well as for regional and international organisations (Secretariat of the Pacific Community, World Health Organization, World Bank and the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea). Her multicultural and pluridisciplinary mindset led her to create in 2009 a sustainable development project dedicated to food security, climate change and urban development that was supported by the Melbourne Sustainability Society Institute. Since then, Virginie has worked in various pluridisciplinary think tanks in China, Australia and France on topics related to Future Knowledge Economy, Climate Change, Environment and Maritime Security. Virginie is currently working at the Research Group on International Resources Law at the Escola Superior Dom Helder Câmara (Brazil, DHC Research Prize 2015) and as an Associate Professor at the Arch Institute (Geneva). She has published extensively in French and English and speaks Spanish as well.

Catharine Titi is a Research Scientist at the French National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS) and Faculty Member of the CREDIMI, Law School of the University of Burgundy. She holds a PhD in Law (Dr iur) from the University of Siegen, Germany. Besides her formal legal education, she holds a PhD from the Courtauld Institute of Art, London. Catharine has previously worked as a consultant at the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and at the University Panthéon-Assas Paris II (CRED). She has published extensively in international law journals, such as Arbitration International, European Journal of International Law, Journal of World Investment & Trade, and contributed to edited volumes, such as the Yearbook on International Investment Law & Policy (Oxford University Press, 2015). Her monograph 'The Right to Regulate in International Investment Law' was published in 2014 and she is co-editor of a special issue of the Journal of World Investment & Trade on Latin America (with Katia Fach Gomez, forthcoming in 2016). In 2016, Catharine received the prestigious Smit-Lowenfeld Prize for the best article published on international arbitration.

Paolo Turrini, since 2013, has been Post-doc Research Scholar at the School of International Studies of the University of Trento, where he has been working on projects on the international law regime governing transnational virtual water flows, and the legal tools deployed by the European Union to counter the impact of climate change on water resources. He obtained both his BA and MA in International Relations from the University of Bologna, School of Political Sciences, and his PhD in International and European Law from the University of Florence. From 2009 to 2015 he has assisted the Chair of International Law at the School of Law of the University of Bologna, a task that he is now carrying on at the School of Law of Trento. He is editorial secretary of the book series The Search for Law in the International Community, and is Advisory Editor of the University of Bologna Law Review. He is also a member of the team of italyspractice.info, a website devoted to translating into English the Italian practice on international law. His areas of academic interest include the history and theory of international law, international economic law with a particular focus on natural resources, and international environmental law.