Contributors

P. Nikiforos Diamandouros, PhD Columbia University, 1972, is an Emeritus Professor of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of Athens. He has served as European Ombudsman (2003–2013) and as founding Ombudsman of Greece (1998–2003). He is also a member of the Academy of Athens. His recent published work focuses on democracy, the rule of law, and the ombudsman in comparative perspective, as well as on the relationship between politics and culture.

Dacian C. Dragos is Jean Monnet Professor of Administrative and European Law and Vice President of the Research Council of the Babes Bolyai University, Cluj Napoca, Romania. He was EU Legal Expert for Albanian Civil Service reform; former Vice Dean and then Acting Dean of the Faculty of Political, Administrative and Communication Sciences (2008–2012); Marie Curie Fellow at Michigan State University (2005–2006); Visiting Scholar at Rockefeller College of Public Administration and Policy, SUNY at Albany, USA (2002); Romanian Writers Association National Prize for legal research (2003); Scientific Coordinator of the Commission for drafting the Administrative Procedure Code of Romania (2006–2008) and Expert in the Commission for drafting the Administrative Code (2010–2011); Member of the Presidential Commission for Analysing the Constitutional System of Romania (2008–2009); Chair of the ‘Law and Administration’ Panel of the European Group of Public Administration (since 2010).

Ian Harden is Honorary Professor at the University of Sheffield, United Kingdom. From 1976 to 1996, he pursued an academic career, becoming a professor of law in 1995 and publishing extensively in the fields of public law, including the UK and EU constitutions, institutions and structures of accountability in the public sector and European economic and monetary union. Between 1996 and 2015 he worked for the European Ombudsman’s Office, successively holding the positions of Principal Legal Adviser, Head of the Legal Department and Secretary-General.

Herwig C.H. Hofmann is Professor of European and Transnational Public Law and founding Director of the Robert Schuman Institute of European Affairs at the University of Luxembourg. He is author of numerous books and articles on EU public law and is on the board of several law journals.
Before joining the University of Luxembourg, he was lecturer in law at Trinity College Law School in Dublin. He has held visiting positions at many European, US and Asian universities including Sciences Po in Paris and Columbia in New York. He has advised EU institutions and national governments in various functions.

Roberto Mastroianni is Full Professor of European Union Law at the University Federico II in Naples, Italy. He graduated in Law at the University of Florence, and holds a PhD in European Law from the University of Bologna as well as a LLM from the Penn State/Dickinson School of Law in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. Former Researcher of International Law at the University of Florence, he served as Référendaire at the European Court of Justice in Luxembourg in the Cabinets of Advocate General Giuseppe Tesauro and Antonio Saggio. Since December 2015 he has led the legislative office of the Italian Department of European Affairs in Rome.

Joana Mendes is Professor of Comparative Administrative Law at the University of Luxembourg. Until 2016 she was affiliated with the Amsterdam Centre of European Law and Governance (University of Amsterdam). She obtained her doctoral degree in law in 2009 at the European University Institute (Florence), with a thesis on participation rights in EU administrative law (Participation in EU Rule-making. A Rights-based Approach, Oxford University Press, 2011) and her masters degree in Public Law in 2002 at the University of Coimbra. More recently, she has been conducting research titled ‘Unveiling EU Administrative Discretion: The Role of Law and Good Administration’, a project funded by the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NWO).

Bogdana Neamtu is Associate Professor in public administration and chair of the Public Administration and Management Department at Babes-Bolyai University, Romania. Together with Professor Dacian Dragos, she also co-directs the Center for Good Governance Studies, a unique research entity focused on advancing interdisciplinary research in areas such as administrative transparency, Europeanization of Romanian administrative law, sustainable public procurement, corruption, etc. She holds a PhD in sociology and has been interested in advancing empirical research in the framework of legal topics. She has published extensively on topics such as sustainable development, corruption and administrative transparency in the context of the former communist countries.

Christine Neuhold is professor within the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences (FASoS), Maastricht University. Since May 2013 she has held the Special Chair of EU Democratic Governance.
Since September 2013 she has been the Director of the Graduate School of FASoS, Maastricht University. She is a political scientist by training and holds her doctoral degree from the University of Vienna (awarded in 2000). Before joining Maastricht University she held positions at the European Institute of Public Administration (EIPA) in Maastricht (1997–2000) and at the Institute of Advanced Studies in Vienna (2000–2002).

George Tridimas is Professor of Political Economy at the University of Ulster. He obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Economics (First class) from the University of Athens and a Master’s and a Doctorate in Economics from the University of Oxford. Before joining the University of Ulster, he held positions at the University of the Witwatersrand in South Africa, and the University of Reading in England. His research interests are in political economy, public economics, and law and economics. His work combines theory, analysis of policy and applied econometrics and has a strong interdisciplinary element borrowing from history, political science and law. He has held various visiting fellowships in Canada, the Czech Republic, Romania and the USA. He is a member of the editorial boards of a number of academic journals. He has wide experience in teaching microeconomics-related course and has served on various university committees.

Takis Tridimas is Professor of European Union Law at Dickson Poon School of Law, King’s College London, having joined King’s College in September 2013. Before then, he was the Sir John Lubbock Professor of Banking Law at Queen Mary College, University of London (2004–2013). He also served as Référendaire (law clerk) to Advocate General Sir Francis Jacobs at the European Court of Justice (1992–1995). He was senior legal adviser to the EU Presidency (2003) and Chairman of the Committee set up by the EU Council of Ministers to draft the Treaty of Accession of 2003. He has acted as advisor or counsel to many public and private organizations, including the European Central Bank, the European Parliament, the European Commission and the EU Court of Auditors.

Jarle Trondal is Professor in Public Administration at University of Agder and at the ARENA Centre for European Studies, Oslo. He is also Honorary Professor at the University of Copenhagen. He has a doctoral degree from the University of Oslo, ARENA (2001) and his fields of expertise include the study of the European executive order and the nascent EU multilevel administrative system. The research focuses particularly on the European Commission, agency-like institutions such as EU agencies, governance by committees, and the multi-hatted role of national agencies. The research also focuses more generally on governance... in turbulent times, such as how European government institutions tackle evolving and ambiguous internal and external constraints. Jarle Trondal has initiated and coordinated several research projects.

Anchrit Wille is Associate Professor in Public Administration at Leiden University’s Faculty of Governance and Global Affairs. Her research focuses on executive politics, accountability, political-administrative relationships, institutional dynamics, democratic governance, citizen participation and political equality. She has (co-)authored several articles and books. In 2013 she published The Normalization of the European Commission: Politics and Bureaucracy in the EU Executive (Oxford University Press).

Jacques Ziller has been Full Professor of European Union Law at the University of Pavia, Italy since 2007. He holds a PhD (doctorat d’Etat) in law of Paris 2 Panthéon-Assas University and graduate and post-graduate degrees in law (Paris 2), political science (Sciences Po, Paris and Paris 2) and German language and literature (Paris IV). He has been Full Professor of Public, Comparative and European Law at Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne University and at the European University Institute of Florence. He is a past President of the European Group for Public Administration (EGPA, 1995–1996) and President of the Societas Iuris Publici Europaei since July 2016.