

Contributors

Asres Abitie Kebede is currently pursuing a PhD in management run by Addis Ababa University (AAU), Ethiopia, in collaboration with the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. He is also a Lecturer at Addis Ababa University. He was the coordinator of AAU's Graduate Programmes of Management Department from 2012 to 2013, and Head of the Management Department at Jimma University, Ethiopia from 2008 to 2012. He has also served as a member of various committees at department, college, university and national levels in the area of management. His areas of research interest are change management, innovation and strategy.

Naveed Akhter is an Assistant Professor, Entrepreneurship and Strategy at ESSCA School of Management, France and a Research Affiliate of the Centre for Family Enterprise and Ownership (CeFEO), Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. The primary focus of his doctoral dissertation is enduring entrepreneurship and exit strategies in family business portfolios. He teaches and conducts research in the areas of entrepreneurship, strategy and family firms. He is a member of the Entrepreneurship and Organization and Management Theory division of the Academy of Management.

Erika Arévalo is a PhD candidate in business administration at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. Her research interest is place-branding, with a focus on place identity and consumer behavior. She holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from Universidad del Norte and a master's in science in business administration from Universidad EAFIT, Colombia, and has seven years' experience in academics. She is the recipient of a Francisco Jose de Caldas grant, a special scholarship program awarded by Colombia's Francisco José de Caldas Institute for the Development of Science and Technology (Colciencias).

Nadia Arshad is a doctoral candidate in business administration in the discipline of marketing at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. Before this she served as a Lecturer and as Chairperson of the Department of Commerce at Sardar Bahadur Khan Women's University, Quetta, Pakistan. Her current research focuses on crowdfunding.

Diogenis Baboukardos is a Lecturer in Accounting at Essex Business School, University of Essex, UK. His main research interests lie in the broad field of financial and sustainability reporting with a particular focus on its market valuation implications and on the role that ownership plays on reporting practice. He has published in the Journal of Accounting & Public Policy and the Accounting Forum, amongst others. He has held research seminars as an invited scholar in a number of universities around Europe.

Waswa Balunywa has been the Principal of Makerere University Business School (MUBS), Uganda, since its foundation in 1996, and has helped develop it into East Africa's leading business school. He has a passionate interest in entrepreneurship and family business. His PhD, from the University of Stirling, United Kingdom, focused on large-scale portfolio entrepreneurship and family business in Uganda. He instigated MUBS's participation in the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor (GEM) in 2003, and remains Director of the MUBS GEM Unit. His research interests have expanded into indigenous markets in Uganda and transgenerational entrepreneurship in Ugandan family businesses. He established one of Africa's first Centres for Entrepreneurship at MUBS (2000); sub-Saharan Africa's first Leadership Centre (2008); and initiated undergraduate and master's degree programs within MUBS. He has been a Director of Uganda's Central Bank and a member of several large company boards, including Madhvani and Coca-Cola. Recently he established the Balunywa Foundation, a charity dedicated to alleviating poverty and youth unemployment in his home district of Busoga.

Rodrigo Basco is an Associate Professor and holder of the Sheikh Saoud bin Khalid bin Khalid Al-Qassimi Chair in Family Business at the American University of Sharjah (AUS), United Arab Emirates. Before joining AUS, Dr Basco held a postdoctoral position at the Witten Institute for Family Business, University of Witten/Herdecke, Germany. He has taught economics, management and family business in universities in Spain, Chile and Germany. He was a Visiting Researcher at the University of Edinburgh, United Kingdom and Visiting Professor at Valladolid University, Spain. His major research focuses on entrepreneurship, management and regional development, with special interest in family firms. His research has been published in international journals such as Journal of Family Business Strategy, Family Business Review, European Management Journal, Journal of Management and Organization and International Small Business Journal. He recently edited a special issue of Journal of Family Business Strategy on 'Family business and regional development'. He is also a member of the editorial board of several leading journals.

Jean Bosco Shema is a PhD student in business administration at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and a Lecturer at the National University of Rwanda. His research is in the field of accounting, specifically international financial reporting standards. He holds a master's degree in business administration from Liege University, Belgium. He also has experience in the private sector, working as chief finance and administration officer in the cement industry for five years.

Ethel Brundin is Professor of Entrepreneurship and Business Development at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and Extraordinary Professor at the University of the Western Cape, South Africa. She has led a number of research projects in previously disadvantaged contexts. Her research has been well received by policymakers on Broad-Based Black Economic Empowerment (BBBEE) and published in leading international journals such as Journal of Developmental Entrepreneurship; International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Small Business; International Journal of Environmental, Cultural, Economic and Social Sustainability; Journal of Business Venturing; and Corporate Governance: An International Review. She is affiliated to Jönköping's Centre of Family Enterprise and Ownership (CeFEO), ranked first in Europe for family business research and third in the world. Her research is focused on microprocesses among entrepreneurs and in family businesses, including emotions, entrepreneurship and strategic leadership. Dr Brundin has also published in books and has edited books about strategic and entrepreneurial leadership with a focus on family firms, as well as about immigrant and social entrepreneurship. Her most recent edited book is Entrepreneurship and SME Management Across Africa: Context, Challenges, Cases (2016).

Joaquín Cestino is a PhD candidate in business administration at the Jönköping International Business School and a member of the Media Management and Transformation Centre (MMTC) at Jönköping University in Sweden. His research focuses on entrepreneurship and innovation, with particular interest in legacy newspapers and journalist entrepreneurs. Cestino joined the MMTC after a long professional stint in marketing management positions in leading, fast-moving consumer goods firms and legacy media.

Demeke Chimdessa Gutu is a Lecturer at the College of Business and Economics, Department of Management, Wollo University, Ethiopia. Since 2013 he has been pursuing a PhD in management run by Addis Ababa University (AAU) in collaboration with the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. His research interests lie in the area of entrepreneurship and strategy, with emphasis on small firms.

Alexandra Dawson is an Associate Professor of Management at Concordia University's John Molson School of Business, Montreal, Canada. She received her PhD in management from Bocconi University, Milan, Italy. Her research focuses on entrepreneurial and family businesses, and has been published in journals such as the Family Business Review, Journal of Business Venturing, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice and Organization Studies.

Hailemickael Deres Mekonnen is pursuing a PhD in management run by Addis Ababa University (AAU) in collaboration with the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. In addition, he is an academic staff member and researcher in the College of Business and Economics, Dire Dawa University, Ethiopia.

Allan Discua Cruz is a Lecturer in Entrepreneurship in the Department of Entrepreneurship, Strategy and Innovation at Lancaster University Management School, United Kingdom. He is also a founding member of the Centre for Family Business at Lancaster University, and a member of a business family. He has published various articles on family entrepreneurial teams and entrepreneurship in family businesses in specialist journals and book compilations. His current research focuses on entrepreneurial teams and social contexts of entrepreneurship. His professional experience is based on working in government and private sectors in Honduras and Canada.

Quang Evansluong is a Lecturer in the Department of Strategy and Operations Management, Bristol Business School, University of the West of England, United Kingdom. His research interests center on immigrant entrepreneurship; the entrepreneurial opportunity creation process; social integration; diversity; sustainable entrepreneurship; and sports entrepreneurship. For his doctoral dissertation, Evansluong is studying entrepreneurial opportunity creation as an integration process among immigrant entrepreneurs in Sweden. As a practitioner, Evansluong is an experienced business developer and a business mentor in programs at the Jönköping University, Sweden. He has also established a start-up in the tourism sector in Sweden.

María Fonseca-Paredes is Dean of the Business School at the Tecnológico de Monterrey, State of Mexico Campus. Her research interests are in the areas of organizational learning, strategic management, entrepreneurial family enterprises and workplace innovations. She holds a doctorate from the University of Toronto and is a member of the Successful Transgenerational Entrepreneurship Practices (STEP) project for family enterprises. She is also a co-founder of the Roundtables Event for Practicing Managers organized for executive MBA students and is a regular instructor in this program, which is led by Henry Mintzberg and Jonathan Gosling.

Samuel Kamugisha is a PhD student at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and a Lecturer at the College of Business and Economics, University of Rwanda. He holds an MBA with a major in strategic management from the University of Nairobi, Kenya, and a BSc in accounting and finance from the National University of Rwanda. His primary interest is in strategy and entrepreneurship, with a focus on new venture processes and survival and growth in the context of developing economies.

Hans Lundberg is a PhD and Assistant Professor in Entrepreneurship at Linnaeus University, Sweden, and Vice President of the European Academy of Management. He was among the pioneers in Swedish entrepreneurship research in the early 2000s which connected entrepreneurship studies with culture heritage studies. His interest in cultural heritage, heritagepreneurship and context-sensitive entrepreneurship research is, among other things, served by his engagement as co-chair of the International Association of Cultural and Digital Tourism (IACuDiT) conference; as a member of the Executive Advisory Committee of the International Journal of Cultural and Digital Tourism; and by several projects in collaboration with historians, archaeologists and designers.

Magdalena Markowska is Assistant Professor at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and a research member of its Centre of Family Enterprise and Ownership (CeFEO). After receiving her PhD in business administration from Jönköping University in 2011, she was a postdoc at ESADE Business School, Spain. Dr Markowska is also a recipient of a prestigious three-year research scholarship from the Wallander Foundation and of a Postdoctoral Transition Grant from the Swedish Foundation for International Cooperation in Research and Higher Education (STINT). She represented Sweden in a pan-Scandinavian project analyzing the role of local food resources in the Nordic countries, and is currently working on a project looking at the phenomenon of ‘mumpreneurship’ and how entrepreneurs use family to present themselves and create identity. Dr Markowska has published in edited books and has co-written a policy report. Her research has been presented at premier international entrepreneurship and management conferences.

Samuel Mutarindwa is a PhD student in business administration at the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and a Lecturer at the College of Business and Economics, University of Rwanda. His dissertation is on corporate governance in the banking industry in developing countries. Mutarindwa holds a bachelor's in business administration from the National University of Rwanda (2006); an MBA from Kampala International University (2011); and an MSc in accounting and finance from Makerere University (2013).

Maria José Parada is a Lecturer in the Strategy and General Management Department—teaching family business management, strategy and entrepreneurship in different programs—and Co-director of the MBA Family Business Lab at ESADE Business School, Barcelona, Spain. Parada holds a PhD in business administration from the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and a PhD in management sciences from ESADE. She has been a Visiting Researcher at the INSEAD Global Leadership Centre, France, and at HEC, Paris. Her research interests cover governance, professionalization, values and entrepreneurship. She also has several years of work experience in the multinational telecom business and in her own tourism family firm.

Edmundo Ramírez Pasillas holds a PhD in fiscal law from the Universidad Autónoma de Durango; a master's in fiscal administration from the University of Guanajuato; and a bachelor's in law from the Universidad Autónoma de Aguascalientes, Mexico. He is a Lecturer at the Universidad de la Salle Bajío and a Lecturer and PhD supervisor at the Universidad Autónoma de Durango. Ramírez Pasillas has been a practicing lawyer since 1998 and has published various articles on customs law and tax law in the Nuevo Consultorio Fiscal (New Tax Office Journal) and Revista del Centro de Investigación y Desarrollo de la Universidad Autónoma de Durango (Journal of the Centre for Research and Development of the Autonomous of Durango). His research interests are in customs law, tax law, human rights and the philosophy of law.

Marcela Ramírez Pasillas is Assistant Professor and project manager of the United Nations Principles of Responsible Management Education (PRME) at the Jönköping International Business School (JIBS), Sweden. She received her PhD in business administration from Linnaeus University in Växjö, Sweden, and conducted a postdoctoral study on family businesses at the Centre for Family Enterprises and Ownership (CeFEO) at JIBS. She has worked as an Assistant Professor in Entrepreneurship (2007–11) and as Director of the Master in Business Management programme (2010–11) at EGADE Business School, Estado de Mexico. Since 2013 she has also been Co-chair of the doctoral colloquium at the European Academy of Management (EURAM). She has published in the Entrepreneurship and Regional Development: An International Journal;

European Planning Studies Journal; and Corporate Communications: An International Journal. She is interested in entrepreneurial phenomena that are socially based triggering different entrepreneurs: namely, working attitudes, modes of thinking and social practices that are crucial in today's societies as they foster human, organizational and economic growth in sustainable ways.

Peter Rosa holds the George David Chair of Entrepreneurship and Family Business at the University of Edinburgh, United Kingdom, and was until recently Director of its Business School Centre for Entrepreneurship Research. He has a special interest in entrepreneurship, particularly habitual entrepreneurship in both individual and family contexts, and has contributed to leading entrepreneurship journals. He graduated from the University of Durham, United Kingdom with a BA Hons degree and a PhD in anthropology. He holds posts as a Visiting Professor at Makerere University Business School and the Uganda Management Institute. He was, with Professor Balunywa, the instigator of Uganda's participation in the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor (GEM) in 2003. He has also undertaken recent entrepreneurship development assignments in Swaziland and Sudan on behalf of the Commonwealth Secretariat and the British Council.

Fernando Sandoval-Arzaga is Director of the Entrepreneurial Families Centre at Tecnológico de Monterrey for campuses in the Metropolitan Zone in Mexico City. He holds a PhD in management sciences from ESADE Business School, Spain and is a postdoctoral fellow from the London Business School, United Kingdom. He teaches family business and corporate governance, strategy, organizational learning and entrepreneurship. Sandoval-Arzaga has also taught a Massive Open Online Course (MOOC) in the Coursera platform on business families. He is a research member of the Successful Transgenerational Entrepreneurship Practices (STEP) program, and holds a certificate from the Business Families Foundation (BFF). He has also been a consultant on family businesses and firm strategies for more than 15 years.

Yaschilal Shitaye Anely is currently pursuing a PhD in management run by Addis Ababa University (AAU), Ethiopia in collaboration with the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden, and has worked as a Lecturer at AAU's School of Commerce. He underwent short-term training in commodity exchange in India in 2007 and in entrepreneurship in America in 2008. Shitaye Anely has also participated in the national business plan competition launched in 2011 as evaluator and trainer. His areas of research interest are entrepreneurship and strategy.

Geraldina Silveyra is a faculty member at Tecnológico de Monterrey Campus, Guadalajara, Mexico. She holds a master's in humanistic studies and in business administration from the Tecnológico de Monterrey. Since 2014 she has been a PhD student at the Universidad de Cantabria, Spain. She teaches entrepreneurship, creativity and ethics. Apart from teaching, Silveyra also has experience of starting three businesses at different stages of her life.

Pierre Sindambiwe is a PhD candidate in business administration at the Centre for Family Enterprise and Ownership (CeFEO), Jönköping International Business School (JIBS), Sweden. He is also a faculty member at the School of Business, College of Business and Economics, University of Rwanda. His research interest is in entrepreneurship and family business sustainability in the context of developing countries.

Jebessa Teshome Bayissa is a doctoral student in management in a joint program between Addis Ababa University, Ethiopia and the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. His research interest lies in entrepreneurship and strategy, supply chain and SME and informal business development. He was faculty member and Lecturer at the Department of Management, Haramaya University, Ethiopia.

Marcos Vega Solano has been Associate Professor in the Department of Agribusiness at EAP Zamorano University, Honduras since 2001. Before joining Zamorano University, he was a part-time Professor in Agricultural Economics at the University of Costa Rica. Solano lectures on agribusiness and has produced several teaching cases. He is currently in charge of agribusiness training for large employers and vulnerable groups in Central America. His research interests lie in agribusiness and family business. His professional experience relates to managerial and leadership positions in several private organizations in Costa Rica and as a consultant in agribusiness in Costa Rica and Honduras.

Yikaalo Welu Kidanemariam has an MBA from Adama University, Ethiopia. He is a Lecturer in Management in the School of Business and Economics, Dire Dawa University, Ethiopia and a PhD candidate at Addis Ababa University and the Jönköping International Business School, Sweden.

Ermias Werkilul Asfaw has been a full-time faculty member at the College of Business and Economics, Department of Management, Wollo University, Ethiopia since 2008. He received his bachelor's degree in management from Mekelle University in 2008 and his master's in business administration with management specialization from Addis Ababa University in 2011. He is a PhD student in management at Addis Ababa University and the Jönköping International Business School, with interests in entrepreneurship and management research in developing economies like Ethiopia.

David S. Xotlanihua González is Assistant Professor at Tecnológico de Monterrey, Campus Monterrey, Mexico, from where he holds a BSc in computer sciences and an MBA. Currently he is a PhD student in management and entrepreneurship at the Universidad de Cantabria, Spain. In the early 1990s he joined the former Virtual University as manager and facilitator in the fields of informatics and business. Since 2011 he has been a consultant with the Entrepreneurial Families Centre, where he is leading an advisors' team for families in business. Belonging to a business family himself, Xotlanihua González shares his experiences with students on entrepreneurship, planning for SMEs and family businesses.

Hussien Yimam is a Lecturer in the Department of Management, College of Business and Economics, Addis Ababa University, Ethiopia. He was a co-author of Developing Marketing Strategy for Ethiopian Business, published by the Ethiopian Chamber of Commerce.

Khizran Zehra is a PhD student in business administration at Jönköping University, Sweden. Her research is on the urban informal sector entrepreneurship phenomenon. She is looking into spatially oriented resourcefulness practices of informal entrepreneurs that produce a unique space for informal sector entrepreneurship in the emerging economy of Pakistan.

