
Contributors

Ivar Alvik is Professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Oslo, Scandinavian Institute of Maritime Law. Professor Alvik specialises in and is responsible for the teaching in contract law, petroleum law and international investment law at the University of Oslo. He has extensive experience both as a counsel in arbitral proceedings and as an arbitrator.

Dafina Atanasova is a Research Fellow at the Centre for International Law of the National University of Singapore. Prior to her appointment, Dr Atanasova worked as a legal consultant at the International Investment Agreements Section of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and research assistant for Professor Gabrielle Kaufmann-Kohler at the University of Geneva. She is admitted to the Bulgarian Bar and consults on matters of international law and arbitration for Dokovska, Atanasov and Partners LLP (Bulgaria).

Sarah Bauerle Danzman is an Assistant Professor of International Studies in the Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies at Indiana University Bloomington. Professor Bauerle Danzman also holds affiliated appointments with the Political Science Department, the Vincent and Elinor Ostrom Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis, and the Center for the Study of Global Change. She serves as a director for the Randall L and Deborah F Tobias Center for International Development.

Jorun Baumgartner is Programme Officer in the International Investment Agreements (IIA) section of UNCTAD. Prior to this, she worked as a Research Fellow at the Chair of Public International Law of the University of Lausanne and as a legal advisor at the International Committee of the Red Cross. She has published in the areas of international investment law, international economic law, public international law and international criminal law. Her PhD thesis 'Treaty Shopping in International Investment Law' was published by Oxford University Press (2016).

Christina Binder holds the Chair for International Law and International Human Rights Law at the Bundeswehr University Munich. Before, she was University Professor of International Law at the Department of European, International and Comparative Law at the University of Vienna. She is member of the ILA Committees on the Implementation of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and on Human Rights in Times of Emergency. Christina is member of the Executive Boards of the European Society of International Law (ESIL) as well as of the European Inter-University Centre for Human Rights and Democratization (EIUC).

Dominic Npoanlari Dagbanja is a Lecturer in Law and Member of the Research Committee at the University of Western Australia Law where he teaches in Company Law. Dr Dagbanja previously worked as a Research Associate at the University of Manchester Law School in the United Kingdom; Senior Legal Officer at the Public Procurement Authority and Assistant State Attorney at the Ministry of Justice and Attorney-General's Department of Ghana. Dr Dagbanja's teaching and research interests include Company Law, International Investment Law and Arbitration, International Trade Law and Public Procurement Law. He has published extensively on international investment law, investor-state arbitration and the right to regulate.

Eric De Brabandere is Professor of International Dispute Settlement, and Director of the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies at Leiden University. He is also Attorney-at-Law at the Brussels Bar practising in international law and arbitration, Editor-in-Chief of the Leiden Journal of International Law and a member of the Board of Editors of the Journal of World Investment & Trade, the Revue belge de droit international (Belgian Review of International Law), and the Martinus Nijhoff Investment Law Book Series.

Anna De Luca is an international law scholar and practitioner specialising in investment law and arbitration and the European policy and treaties on trade and investment. She regularly lectures on international investment law at Bocconi (Milan) and has been practising in the field of investment arbitration since 2007. Since 2016, Anna De Luca has been a member of the ICSID panel of conciliators and on the list of arbitrators at the Bucharest International Arbitration Court, and she is a member of the Energy Community's Panel of Mediators.

Angelos Dimopoulos joined Queen Mary University of London in September 2013 as a Lecturer in Law. Prior to joining the Department of Law, he was Assistant Professor at Tilburg University and the Research Coordinator of the Tilburg Law and Economics Centre (TILEC). Dr Dimopoulos obtained his PhD in Law at the European University Institute in 2010. During his doctoral studies he conducted research as a visiting scholar at Columbia Law School and the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law (Cambridge) and taught EU law at the University of Utrecht. He is an expert in EU external relations law, international investment law and the law of the Economic and Monetary Union and he has published extensively on these topics.

Katia Fach Gómez is Tenured Professor of Private International Law at the University of Zaragoza (Spain), and member of the Institute of European Law and Regional Integration (IDEIR) of the Complutense University of Madrid. A Fellow of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation, she also belongs to the Spanish research group ADER2016-80568-R (subprograma Retos).

Kerem Gülay is an Assistant Professor of International Law at Koç University Law School in Istanbul, Turkey. Prior to Koç, he was a postdoctoral Research Associate in the European Research Council funded project 'Transnational Private-Public Arbitration as Global Regulatory Governance' at the University of Amsterdam. Professor Gülay focused on general principles of law in international law and international investment law in his JSD at Cornell Law School. He is a Fulbright Scholar and is admitted to the Bar in Turkey.

Antonius R Hippolyte is a former Research Advisor to the British Virgin Islands International Arbitration Centre (BVIIAC) and a Member of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators. Dr Hippolyte's key area of research involves the manner in which developing countries participate in international economic law and governance. He focuses largely on the participation of developing countries in foreign investment law and what they generally perceive to be a regime which is at odds with their sovereign interest.

Rhea Tamara Hoffmann is Senior Research Associate to the Chair for Public Law and Public International Law (Professor Dr Markus Krajewski) at the University of Erlangen-Nürnberg. In her PhD Dr Hoffmann analysed international investment law and constitutional property protection from a constitutional theory perspective.

Locknie Hsu is a Professor at the School of Law, Singapore Management University. She is Chair of the ASEAN Law Association's Trade and Investment Group, and co-rapporteur of the International Law Association's Committee on Sustainable Development and the Green Economy in International Trade Law. She is also Director of Studies of the Singapore Branch of the International Law Association and a member of the Advisory Panel of the Vietnam Chamber of Commerce in Singapore.

Michael Jacobson is an Attorney with the international law firm Hogan Lovells in the firm's International Trade and Investment and International Arbitration groups. He represents clients on a broad range of matters in the areas of international dispute settlement, public international law, US trade litigation, international trade and investment policy, and international trade compliance before various US government agencies. Michael is also an adjunct faculty member at the American University Washington College of Law, where he teaches a course on current issues in international trade and international investment law and policy.

Philipp Janig is researcher and lecturer at the Bundeswehr University Munich, where he works at the Chair for International Law and International Human Rights Law. He also is the Managing Editor of the Austrian Review of International and European Law (ARIEL).

Lise Johnson is the Head of Investment Law and Policy at the Columbia Center on Sustainable Investment (CCSI), a joint centre of Columbia Law School and the Earth Institute at Columbia University in New York. For the past ten years, she has focused on analysing the contractual, legislative, and international legal frameworks governing cross-border investment, and shaping the impacts that those investments have on sustainable development objectives. She focuses in particular on international investment treaties and the investor-state arbitrations that arise under them, examining the implications those treaties and cases have for host countries' domestic policies and development strategies. In addition, she concentrates on key institutional and procedural aspects of the legal framework, including efforts to increase transparency in and legitimacy of dispute settlement. Prior to working on international investment law, she spent five years as a litigator at a top-tier law firm. She has a BA from Yale University, JD from the University of Arizona, LLM from Columbia Law School, and is admitted to the Bar in California.

Markus Krajewski is University Professor at the University of Erlangen-Nürnberg and holds the Chair in Public Law and Public International Law. Professor Krajewski is one of the programme directors of the MA in Human Rights and Chairperson of the Interdisciplinary Research Centre for Human Rights Erlangen-Nürnberg (CHREN). He also chairs the Board of Trustees of the German Institute for Human Rights and is Secretary-General of the German Branch of the International Law Association.

Kendra Magraw is a PhD candidate at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies in Geneva. Ms Magraw specialises in international investment law and policy, as well as international dispute settlement and international sports law. She has worked in private practice, as well as at the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID), the International Investment Agreements Section of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and the International Court of Justice (ICJ).

Andrew D Mitchell is Professor at Melbourne Law School, Australian Research Council Future Fellow, Director of the Global Economic Law Network, a member of the Indicative List of Panelists to hear WTO disputes, and a member of the Energy Charter Roster of Panelists. He has previously practised law with Allens Arthur Robinson (now Allens Linklaters) and consults for states, international organisations and the private sector. Andrew has taught law in Australia, Canada, Singapore, and the US and is the recipient of four major grants from the Australian Research Council and the Australian National Preventive Health Agency. He has published over 130 academic books and journal articles and is a Series Editor of the Oxford University Press International Economic Law Series, an Editorial Board Member of the Journal of International Economic Law and a General Editor of the Journal of International Dispute Settlement. He has law degrees from Melbourne, Harvard and Cambridge and is a Barrister and Solicitor of the Supreme Court of Victoria.

Martín Molinuevo is an expert in international economic law with a speciality in trade in services. He is currently a senior counsel at the World Bank where he assists governments of developing countries on policymaking and regulation of trade and investment. He is also an Adjunct Professor at the Washington College of Law of the American University where he lectures on international trade law. His main areas of expertise include trade in services, foreign investment, World Trade Organization (WTO) law and international trade negotiations, and e-commerce.

Panayotis M Protopsaltis is a Research Fellow at the Centre for American Legal Studies, Birmingham City University, UK, and a Visiting Fellow at the Athens Public International Law Center, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece and a visiting foreign faculty at the Gujarat National Law University, India.

Sabrina Robert-Cuendet is University Professor at the Le Mans Université. She teaches international economic law and international environmental law. She is the Director of the programme of research on New Paradigms of Climate Change in International Law, at the Faculty of Law of Le Mans Université. She is a member of the Société française pour le droit international and of the French branch of the International Law Association.

Giorgio Sacerdoti is Emeritus Professor at Bocconi University in Milan where he has taught international and European law (Jean Monnet Chair) since 1986 and where he currently lectures in international trade and investment law. Professor Sacerdoti was a member of the WTO Appellate Body from 2001 to 2009, chairing it in 2006–2007. He is on the ICSID Roster of arbitrators and has been frequently appointed as member and chairman of investment arbitral tribunals at ICSID and at other institutions. From 1995 to 2001 he was Vice-President of the OECD Working Group on bribery in international business transactions where he chaired the drafting committee of the OECD Anti-bribery Convention. He has written extensively on international dispute settlement, trade and investment law.

Lénárd Sándor is a chief counsel at the Constitutional Court of Hungary and a lecturer at the International Public Law Department of the Pázmány Péter Catholic University Faculty of Law and Political Sciences. His research areas are international investment law and international human rights law.

Stefanie Schacherer is a doctoral candidate at the University of Geneva and the University of Vienna. Her research focuses on international investment law and arbitration, EU external relations law and international law relating to sustainable development. Ms Schacherer holds Bachelor's and Master's degrees in law from the University of Geneva as well as a LL.M. from King's College London. During her doctoral studies, she worked as consultant for the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), the African Union (AU) and the International Institute for Sustainable Development (IISD). She is currently working as teaching and research assistant at the Department of Public International Law and International Organization at the University of Geneva.

Stephan W Schill is Professor of International and Economic Law and Governance at the University of Amsterdam and Principal Investigator of the European Research Council funded project 'Transnational Private-Public Arbitration as Global Regulatory Governance'. He is admitted to the Bar in Germany and in New York, is a Member of the ICSID List of Conciliators, and acts as arbitrator in investment treaty proceedings. He also advises governments and international organisations on international investment law and investor-state dispute settlement, including as expert in contentious proceedings. He is Co-Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of World Investment & Trade and has published widely on international investment law and investor-state dispute settlement.

Catharine Titi is a Research Associate Professor (tenured) at the French National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS)–CERSA, University Paris II Panthéon-Assas. She is Co-Chair of the ESIL Interest Group on International Economic Law, Member of the ILA Committee on Rule of Law and International Investment Law, and Member of the Steering Committee of the Academic Forum on ISDS. In 2016, Catharine received the prestigious Smit-Lowenfeld Prize of the International Arbitration Club of New York for the best article published in the field of international arbitration.

Elisabeth Tuerk is Chief of the Section on International Investment Agreements (IIAs) in UNCTAD's Division on Investment and Enterprise (DIAE). She leads the section's work across the three pillars of UNCTAD activities: research and analysis, capacity-building and consensus-building. The section is instrumental in developing UNCTAD's investment policy tools, aimed at helping policymakers design 'new generation' investment policies that place inclusive growth and sustainable development at the heart of efforts to attract and benefit from investment.