

Contributors

Olivier Butzbach is Researcher in Political Economy at the University of Campania ‘Luigi Vanvitelli’, Naples, Italy. He holds a PhD in Political Science from the European University Institute (Florence). His research focuses on the comparative history, political economy and performance of not-for-profit banks – especially savings banks and cooperative banks, in France, Italy and the United Kingdom. He is co-editor, with Kurt Mettenheim, of Alternative Banks and Financial Crisis (Pickering and Chatto, 2014).

Pallavi Chavan is an economist with research interests in Indian banking, agricultural credit, financial inclusion, and gender and finance. She holds a PhD in Economics and has been a recipient of the Central Bank Research Fellowship offered by the Bank for International Settlements, Basel, Switzerland in 2015. Some of her latest publications include: ‘Bank lending and loan quality: The case of India’, BIS Working Papers No. 595 (2016, co-authored with Leonardo Gambacorta); ‘Bank credit to small borrowers: An analysis based on supply and demand side indicators’, RBI Occasional Papers (2014–15).

Simone Deos, PhD in Economics, is Assistant Professor of Economics at the Institute of Economics (IE), University of Campinas (Unicamp), São Paulo, Brazil, teaching both undergraduate and graduate courses in political economy, macroeconomics and monetary economics. At the moment she runs the Graduate Program in Economics at the same institution (IE-Unicamp). Her research has concentrated on financial instability, financial regulation and public finance for development. Recent English publications include: ‘Banking-system transformations after the crisis and their impacts on regulation’, The Journal of European Economic History, 44(2) 77–111, 2015 (co-authored with Olívia Mattos and Ana Rosa Ribeiro de Mendonça).

Magdalena Dieterle is an economist and political scientist. She is currently teaching at Bremen University of Applied Sciences, Germany. She is an expert in microfinance. Her research interests include political economy and questions of inequality, stakeholder governance, gender, development, varieties of capitalism and financial institutions.

Adriana Nunes Ferreira, PhD in Economics, is Assistant Professor and Researcher at the Institute of Economics – University of Campinas, São Paulo, Brazil. She researches and publishes in the fields of macroeconomics, political economy and labour relations. She is currently directing a research group focused on the analysis of the Brazilian financial system and its relationship with macroeconomic and developmental policies.

Ana Rosa Ribeiro de Mendonça, PhD in Economics, is Assistant Professor of Macroeconomics and Banking at University of Campinas, São Paulo, Brazil. She is a researcher at CERI, the Center of International Economics Studies in Paris. Her areas of interest include banking regulation and public and development banks. Recent papers in English include: ‘Challenges for Brazilian development: Investment and finance’; ‘Notes on development banks and the investment decision: Finance and coordination’; ‘Facing the crisis: Brazilian central bank and public banking system as Minskyan “big banks”’; and ‘The crises in the financial regulation of the finance capitalism: A Minskyan analysis’.

Kurt Mettenheim is Professor in the Graduate Programs of Public Administration and Government at the Escola de Administração de Empresas de São Paulo, Fundação Getulio Vargas, FGV-EAESP, Brazil. Formerly University Lecturer in Brazilian Studies at the University of Oxford, he has taught at Columbia University, the University of Pittsburgh, and the Universities of São Paulo and Brasília. Recent publications include Monetary Statecraft in Brazil, 1808–2014 (2016), Federal Banking in Brazil: Policies and Competitive Advantages (2010), and, is editor, with O. Butzbach of Alternative Banking and Financial Crisis (2014). Dr Mettenheim has conducted research on banking and microfinance in Brazil as a Fellow of the University of California, Irvine Institute for Money, Technology and Financial Inclusion and was resident and host of the international conference ‘Alternative Banking and Social Inclusion’ at the Rockefeller Foundation Bellagio Center.

Xeniya Polikhronidi studied global political economy at the University of Kassel and has a finance degree from the Goethe University in Frankfurt, Germany. Currently she is working as an analyst in a risk management division in a German private bank.

Meenakshi Rajeev is the Reserve Bank of India Chair Professor in the Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, India. She graduated from IIT Kanpur and received her PhD degree from the Indian Statistical Institute, Kolkata. She has published on a variety of research topics from both theoretical as well as empirical perspectives in national and international journals. She has visited and taught in a number of universities in the USA, Europe and India. Her recent publications include her book, co-edited with Sugata Marji, titled Emerging Issues in Economic Development, Oxford University Press, 2014.

Everton Sotro Tibiriçá Rosa, PhD, is Professor of Economics at the Federal University of Goiás, Brazil, and a member of Citizen Debt Audit-Brazil (Goiás Group). He received his PhD in Economics from the Institute of Economics of the University of Campinas, Brazil. His research interests include monetary economy, institutional/evolutionary economics and history of economic thought. He has published articles in indexed journals, and in annals of national and international scientific events.

Camilla Ruocco, PhD, studied economics at the University of Campinas, Brazil, and has concentrated her research in particular on the role of federal public banks during the recent crisis in Brazil. She worked as a consultant at McKinsey & Company for almost three years and now works as a project manager in the educational field.

Christoph Scherrer, economist and political scientist, is Professor of Globalization & Politics and Executive Director of the International Center for Development and Decent Work at the University of Kassel, Germany and Adjunct Member of the Political Science Graduate Program at Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, USA. Recent English language publications include: Combating Inequality: The Global North and South, Routledge (2015, co-edited with A. Gallas, H. Herr and F. Hoffer), and Financial Cultures and Crisis Dynamics, Routledge (2014, co-edited with B. Jessop and B. Young).

Daniel Seikel, PhD in Political Science, is Senior Researcher at the Institute of Economic and Social Research (WSI) at the Hans-Böckler-Foundation, Düsseldorf, Germany. His main area of research is European integration, especially integration through law and European economic governance. His PhD research on liberalization of the German public banking sector was published in 2013 ('Der Kampf um öffentlich-rechtliche Banken. Wie die Europäische Kommission Liberalisierung durchsetzt' [The fight for public banks. How the European Commission enforces liberalization], Campus. One of his most recent publications is 'Flexible austerity and supranational autonomy. The reformed excessive deficit procedure and the asymmetry between liberalization and social regulation in the EU', Journal of Common Market Studies, 54(6), 1398–416, 2016.

Halyna Semenyshyn is a PhD student and a graduate of the Master Program in Global Political Economy at Kassel University, Germany. She received a scholarship from the Stiftung der Deutschen Wirtschaft (sdw).

Her research interests include banking and finance, financial crisis, and European politics.

Brunno Henrique Sibin is a PhD student in Economics at the University of Campinas, São Paulo, Brazil, with Master's and Bachelor's degrees in Economics from the same university (2017 and 2014). His research interests include macroeconomics and public banks.

Tamilla Tagieva is a PhD student and a graduate of the Master Program in Global Political Economy at Kassel University, Germany. She receives a scholarship from the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD). She writes about international development banking. Her research interests include international development, modernization theory, sociology of organizations, finance of small and medium-size enterprises (SMEs) and value chain finance.