Contributors

Fernando G. Alberti is Institute Council Co-Leader at Professor M.E. Porter’s Institute for Strategy and Competitiveness Program on the Microeconomics of Competitiveness, Harvard Business School, USA. He is also Professor of Strategic Entrepreneurship and Director of the Institute for Entrepreneurship and Competitiveness at LIUC University, Italy. A former Industrial Strategist for UNIDO and the World Bank, he publishes in the field of entrepreneurship, competitiveness and strategic management with a focus on clusters, innovation and knowledge brokerage.

Mohamed Amal is full Professor of Economics and International Business at the Regional University of Blumenau, Brazil. He is also a visiting scholar at Columbia University, New York, visiting professor at Halmstad University, Sweden, and research scholar at the University of Bonn, Germany. His current research interests are on internationalisation, foreign direct investment (FDI) and institutions. He published a book on FDI in Brazil in 2016.

Roberta Apa is a Research Associate at the Department of Economics and Management, University of Padova, Italy. She holds a doctorate in Management from the University of Milan. Her main research fields are innovation processes of start-ups and small and medium enterprises, business incubators, entrepreneurial ecosystem and academic entrepreneurship. Her research has been published nationally and internationally in articles and book chapters.

Nicola Bellini is full Professor of Management at the Scuola Superiore Sant’Anna in Pisa, Italy, and Director of the Tourism Management Institute at the La Rochelle Business School, France. From 2007 to 2014 he was Director of the Galileo Galilei Italian Institute in Chongqing and Co-Director of the Confucius Institute in Pisa. He researches local and regional development, tourism and place branding.

Rafael Boix Domènech, PhD, is Associate Professor at the Department of Economic Structure, University of Valencia, Spain. His current research interests include creative industries, industrial districts and clusters, and networks of cities. He has participated in applied research for the OECD, the Barcelona City and Province, and the Spanish Ministry of Industry. He is the author of many book chapters and articles in specialised journals such as Land Use Policy, Papers in Regional Science, European Planning Studies and Regional Studies, among others.

Francesco Capone, PhD, is Assistant Professor at the Department of Economics and Management, University of Florence, Italy. He is a member of the doctoral programme ‘Developing Economics and Local Systems’ (DELoS), University of Trento and University of Florence. His research interests deal with local development, innovation and networks. He has published several articles in national and international journals, such as, among others, Industry and Innovation, Journal of Business Research, European Planning Studies. In 2016 he published Tourist Clusters, Destinations and Competitiveness.

Patrizia Casadei is a PhD candidate in ‘Development Economics and Local Systems’ (DELoS), a doctoral programme of the University of Trento and the University of Florence. Her research interests focus on cultural and creative industries, creative cities, economics of fashion and design industries, and the role of fashion in urban economies with a particular focus on London. She is currently a visiting research student in the Department of Geography and Environment at the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE).

Ying Chen is Associate Professor of the School of Business at Zhejiang University of Finance and Economics, China. From March 2016 to March 2017 she was a visiting scholar at the Digital China Lab, Centre for Culture and Technology (CCAT) of Curtin University, Australia. Her current research interests include the maker culture, integration of technological innovation and cultural creativity, and the environment of creative industrial clusters.

Patrick Cohendet is full Professor at HEC Montréal Business School, Canada, in the International Business Department. He is the author of 15 books, including Architecture of Knowledge, co-authored with Ash Amin (2004), and over 90 articles in refereed journals. He is Co-Director of the research group Mosaic at HEC Montréal on the management of innovation and creativity, and co-editor of the academic journal International Management.

Pedro Costa is Auxiliary Professor at the Department of Political Economy at Instituto Universitário de Lisboa (ISCTE-IUL), Portugal, and Director of DINAMIA/CET-IUL (Research Centre on Socioeconomic Change and Territory), where he coordinates the research group ‘Cities and Territories’. An economist, with a PhD in Urban and Regional Planning, he works primarily in the areas of territorial development, planning and cultural economics. He is the author of many publications and has been involved in multiple research projects in these areas, at national and international levels.
Contributors

Ian Fillis is Professor of Entrepreneurship, Liverpool Business School, Liverpool John Moores University, UK. His research interests include small business marketing, creativity, research methodologies and arts marketing. He is the Principal Investigator of an Arts and Humanities Research Council funded Cultural Value project. He has been Chair of the Academy of Marketing’s Entrepreneurial and Small Business Marketing Special Interest Group, served as guest editor of special journal issues and delivered invited seminars in the UK, Sweden, Finland, Australia and the USA.

Dinorá Eliete Floriani is full Professor of Internationalization Strategy at the University of Vale do Itajaí (UNIVALI), Brazil, visiting professor at the University of Florence, Italy, and Halmstad University, Sweden. She has been Director of the Professional Master in Science (MSc) programme in Management and Internationalization and Coordinator of the Master of Business Administration (MBA) programme since 2005. She obtained her PhD from the University of Sao Paulo with a Sandwich at Grenoble University, France. Her current research interests are on internationalisation, foreign direct investment, family business, creative industry and internationalisation and emerging markets.

David Gilbert is Vice Principal and Professor of Geography at the Royal Holloway University of London, UK. His work is focused on urban modernity, and particularly the history of modern London. He has written extensively on fashion in London and other world cities, including the book Fashion’s World Cities (2006) co-edited with Christopher Breward. His wider work on London includes research on imperialism, suburban development, tourism and planning. He is currently working on a major project investigating the history of religious faith and identity in London’s suburbs.

Jessica D. Giusti is the ‘DiDIY – Digital Do-It-Yourself – Horizon 2020’ endowed Assistant Professor of Creative and Cultural Entrepreneurship at LIUC University, Italy, where she is also senior researcher at the Institute for Entrepreneurship and Competitiveness. Since 2011 she has been an affiliate faculty member at Professor M.E. Porter’s Institute for Strategy and Competitiveness Program on the Microeconomics of Competitiveness, Harvard Business School, USA. Her current research focuses on the clustering of makers and digital DIYers.
Creative industries and entrepreneurship

Niccolò Innocenti, PhD, is a Research Fellow at the Department of Economics and Management at the University of Florence, Italy. His research interests deal with economic development, growth and competitiveness according to Evolutionary Economic Geography. He has recently published in European Planning Studies, Scienze Regionali, The Annals of Regional Sciences, International Review on Public and Non-profit Marketing, Papers in Evolutionary Economic Geography, among others.

Michael Keane is Professor of Chinese Media and Cultural Studies at Curtin University, Australia, and Program Leader of the Digital China Lab, Centre for Culture and Technology (CCAT). The author of more than 15 books since 2002, his key research interests are digital transformation in China, East Asian cultural and media policy, and creative industries and cultural export strategies in China and East Asia.

Luciana Lazzeretti is full Professor in Economics and Management and founding Director of the post-graduate course in Economics and Management of Cultural Goods and Museums, University of Florence, Italy. She is Coordinator of the doctoral programme ‘Development Economics and Local Systems’ (DELoS), University of Trento and University of Florence. Her current research interests deal with: industrial districts, cultural clusters, cities of art, creative and cultural industries, innovation and creativity. She recently published Creative Industries and Innovation in Europe (2013) and (with Phil Cooke) and The Role of Art and Culture for Regional and Urban Resilience (2018).

Kim Lehman is Senior Lecturer at the University of Tasmania, Australia. His research interests focus on the arts and cultural sectors, with streams investigating marketing, development, management and cultural tourism. He leads a number of research projects as part of this focus, and has published and presented his research internationally. He takes an interdisciplinary approach to research, with his strong background in the arts as a writer, curator and visual artist.

Ricardo Venâncio Lopes is an architect, photographer and researcher. He is currently developing a PhD in the Architecture of Contemporary Metropolitan Territories. In the field of architecture, he has been developing projects with different logics and characteristics in Portugal, Angola, Guinea-Bissau and Brazil. As photographer, Lopes has been travelling around the world, always looking for different ‘stories’ behind the camera lenses. As researcher, he is the author of many publications, presentations and artistic interventions in the fields of urban studies, architecture and creative culture.
Contributors

Dina M. Mansour is a PhD candidate at the Business, Economics and Informatics School at Birkbeck, University of London, UK. Dina is a researcher in entrepreneurship and economic development in emerging countries, national systems of entrepreneurship and innovation, entrepreneurship legal frameworks, and the role of the private sector and multinational corporations (MNCs) in boosting entrepreneurship ecosystems in emerging countries.

Leonardo Mazzoni is a PhD candidate in Development Economics and Local Systems (DELoS), a doctoral programme at the University of Florence and University of Trento, Italy. He gained an MSc in Economics and Development from the University of Florence. He has been a visiting scholar at CIEO (Research Centre for Spatial and Organizational Dynamics), University of Algarve, Portugal. His research interests are focused on entrepreneurship in creative industries, creative economy and innovation.

Mónica Muñoz-Vela is Professor of Marketing for Culture and the Arts at los Andes Business School, Bogota, Colombia. Her work involves research, consultancy and coordination of cultural projects for the Arts and Management Department at Universidad de los Andes. In 2014, she gained a Master of Management in International Arts Management, with a dissertation on how artists can develop successful careers in the music business.

Ruth Rentschler, OAM, is Professor of Arts and Cultural Leadership, University of South Australia, Australia. She has received various honours and awards, such as Best Doctoral Supervisor, Vice-Chancellor’s Award for Community Service and an Order of Australia for services to education, the arts and the community. She has published widely on business issues in the context of the arts, in top journals, with her keen interest in social entrepreneurship, and the cultural and creative industries.

Serena Rovai is Professor of Marketing and Director of International Relations at La Rochelle Business School, France, where she teaches and researches Luxury Marketing. Previously, she designed and managed the Fashion and Luxury programme at Grenoble Ecole de Management and spent 15 years in China in various academic and managerial positions. She is the author of the book Luxury the Chinese Way: New Competitive Scenarios (2016).

Jaime Alberto Ruiz-Gutiérrez is Associate Professor at the School of Management, Universidad de los Andes, Bogota, Colombia. He has developed research in organisational demography, cultural studies and arts and cultural management, in an international comparative perspective. He participates in international research networks and has published several articles in both national and international academic journals. He was the organizer of the XII International AIMAC Congress held in Bogotá on 26–29 June 2013.

Daniel Sánchez Serra, PhD, is currently an official at the OECD. He has published his academic research in leading economic geography and regional and urban journals such as Environment and Planning C, European Urban and Regional Studies and Journal of Regional Research. He has participated in around 20 OECD publications and contributed to several book chapters published internationally.

Silvia Rita Sedita is Associate Professor of Management at the Department of Economics and Management, University of Padova, Italy, where she teaches Marketing and Advanced Marketing. Her research agenda includes entrepreneurship and innovation studies in creative intensive and research and development (R&D) intensive industries, with a special focus on creative communities and technology-transfer mechanisms in advanced and emerging market economies. She has published articles and book chapters nationally and internationally in the field of inter-organisational networks for innovation and entrepreneurship.

Laurent Simon is full Professor in Entrepreneurship and Innovation and Co-Director of Mosaic, a creativity and innovation hub at HEC Montréal, Canada. He conducts research on creativity and innovation management in diverse industries with a focus on collective and collaborative processes and contexts, creative communities, territories and innovation ecosystems.

Andrej Srakar is a Research Associate at the Institute for Economic Research in Ljubljana and Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Economics, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. His main research interests include cultural economics, mathematical economics, statistical and econometric theory and applications, macroeconomics and economics of ageing. He has published, among others, in Cultural Trends, Value in Health, ACEI Working Papers, Economic and Business Review, Slovenian Journal of Public Health, Journal of Criminal Justice and Security, Theory and Practice and Kult-ur.

Marcos Valdivia holds a PhD in Economics from the New School for Social Research, USA. He is a full-time researcher at the Regional Center of Multidisciplinary Research of the National University of Mexico (UNAM), Professor of the Graduate Program in Economics at UNAM in the field of urban and regional economics, and member of Mexico’s National Research System. He has published scientific papers and books. in the fields of computational and spatial economics, the economics of migration, labour economics and creative economy. In 2017 he published (with Juan R. Cuadrado-Roura) The Economy of the Creative Activities. A Perspective from Spain and Mexico).

Marilena Vecco is Associate Professor in Entrepreneurship at Burgundy Business School, France. Her research is on cultural entrepreneurship, management with a focus on cultural heritage (tangible and intangible) and art markets. She has researched and consulted for several public and private organisations, including the OECD, Centre for Entrepreneurship, SMEs and Local Development, World Bank and the European Commission. She is a board member of ENCATC and expert in the European Expert Network on Culture and Audiovisual (EENCA).

Wen Wen is Lecturer and Director of the Project Development Department at the Institute for Cultural Industries, Shenzhen University, China. Her main research interests include creative economy and maker culture.