Extended contents

List of contributors xi
Advisory Board xii
Editorial xiii

1 Keith E. Maskus 1
Cognitive dissonance in the economics of patent protection, trade and development 1
I. The measure of how little we know 1
II. The changed patent landscape 3
III. The low-hanging branches don’t bear much fruit 7
   A. Patents and innovation 8
   B. Patents and technology diffusion 12
IV. Raising the veil on patents, trade and development 15
   A. Enhanced microeconomic data linkages 17
   B. Linked national surveys 17
   C. Quasi-exogenous policy experiments 18
   D. Panel surveys 20
V. Concluding remarks 20

2 Ken Shao 22
Taobao, WeChat and Xiaomi: how innovation flourishes in China’s ‘fertile land of intellectual property piracy’ 22
I. Introduction 22
II. Taobao, WeChat and Xiaomi 24
III. Innovation, perfection 27
IV. Diaosi and an era of piracy 33
V. The future of piracy 38
VI. Conclusion 41

3 Michel Vivant 44
Intellectual property rights and their functions: determining their legitimate ‘enclosure’ 44
I. Against a mechanical view of intellectual property rights 44
Kritika: Essays on intellectual property

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>II.</td>
<td>On the inadequacy of taking the structure of intellectual property rights into consideration</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>III.</td>
<td>On the necessity of taking into consideration the function of intellectual property rights</td>
<td>46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IV.</td>
<td>In search of the functions of intellectual property rights</td>
<td>47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V.</td>
<td>In search of the right ‘demarcation line’</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VI.</td>
<td>In search of the right boundaries</td>
<td>51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VII.</td>
<td>Concrete verifications</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VIII.</td>
<td>Fence line and trade marks</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>A. A right with a limited perimeter</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>B. A right recognized as ‘targeted’</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IX.</td>
<td>Fence line and patents</td>
<td>56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>A. Questioning the exceptions</td>
<td>56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>B. Patenting of genes?</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>X.</td>
<td>Fence line and copyright</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>A. A strange perspective?</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>B. Questioning the exceptions … again</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>C. You said ‘work’?</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XI.</td>
<td>Concluding remarks: Flexible IP law</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

4
Giuseppe Colangelo and Roberto Pardolesi

Intellectual property, standards, and antitrust: a new life for the essential facilities doctrine? Some insights from the Chinese regulation

I. The intersection of antitrust and intellectual property | 70

II. Still haven’t found what you are looking for? The continuous reshaping of the ‘exceptional circumstances’ test | 74

III. Faraway, so close: a new essential facility doctrine for standards? | 78

5
Jens Schovsbo and Thomas Riis

Design law: caught between chairs?

I. Introduction | 88

II. The ‘Egg’ chair: the lack of protection in the first half of the 20th century | 88

III. The ‘Tripp Trapp’ chair: the abundance of protection in the last half of the 20th century | 91

IV. Copyright law: expansion and harmonization | 95

V. Design law: revitalization and decline | 97

VI. Trade mark law: the emergence of a new protection option for product shapes | 99
Extended contents

VII. Unfair competition law: filling in the gaps 101
VIII. The problem of protection overlaps 102
IX. The copyright design right overlap 104
  A. The Scandinavian approach 104
  B. The EU rebound 107
X. Trade mark right overlaps 108
XI. Unfair competition law overlaps 112
XII. Conclusion 113

6 Vincenzo Di Cataldo
The development of trade marks into common names of products: a strong push towards a purely objective view of language evolution

I. The strategic role of the conditions for registration of trade marks and geographical indications 119
II. The evolution of the world and the unawareness of law 120
III. Some good reasons for the idea of the constancy of the world 121
IV. The development of a sign into the common name of a product 122
V. Signs becoming generic in GI law 123
VI. Signs becoming generic in trade mark law 124
VII. The investment function of the trade mark and the role of the ‘activity’ of the trade mark holder 126
VIII. A serious challenge to the traditional doctrine 129
IX. The historical reasons for the traditional doctrine 130
X. Reasons for overcoming the traditional doctrine 131
XI. The new consideration of the interests of the market in trade mark law 132
XII. The latest decisions of the EU Court of Justice in point of trade marks becoming generic 132
XIII. Björnekulla: perception of consumers and perception of commercial operators 133
XIV. Kornspitz: perception of consumers only 135
XV. Kornspitz: no real tools for an ‘activity’ of the trade mark holder vis-à-vis consumers 136
XVI. A strong push towards a purely objective doctrine of the development of a trade mark into the common name of a product 136
Geographies of taste, fashion, tradition and place

I. Introduction

II. Place and identity
   A. Where is this place?
   B. The social life of place

III. Who is this tweed? The case of ‘Harris Tweed’

IV. Fan bases and ground forces
   A. A fan of the cloth
   B. Who is this fan?

V. A competition for places
   A. Property-less places
   B. Terroir infirma
   C. Fashion and the digital place
   D. Place as tool
   E. Inimitability of place

VI. Geographies of taste
   A. Where is the place of taste?
   B. Competition in taste

VII. Europe
   A. Europe and non-agricultural GIs
   B. National aesthetics and competition

VIII. Traditional knowledge and place
   A. All over the place
   B. Bespoke bespeaks

IX. Conclusion

It’s raining carrots: the trajectory of increased intellectual property protection

I. Introduction

II. The many aspects of increased IP protection

III. Incentives for heightened IP protection

IV. Tipping points and IP increases

V. Conclusion: the potential backfire

Index