

Contributors

Philippe Bance is Professor at the University of Rouen (Normandy University). He is President of the International Scientific Council of CIRIEC (International Centre of Research and Information on the Public, Social and Cooperative Economy) and Science Adviser at Hcéres (High Council for the Evaluation of Research and Higher Education). He was Vice-President of the University of Rouen (2007–10). His main recent publications concern multilevel governance and Contingent Valuation Method with A. Chassy (P&P, 2017; rfe, 2016), Public enterprises (APCE, 2015) and two edited books on the strategic state; internalization of the general interest by public organizations (PURH, 2016; 2015).

Roberto Cardinale is a doctoral researcher in Economics of Energy Infrastructure at the Bartlett Faculty of the Built Environment, University College London. He carried out research at the University of Cambridge, Sungkyunkwan University (Seoul) and the Catholic University of Milan. His research, which was awarded the Ermenegildo Zegna Founder's Scholarship, proposes forms of energy governance that reconcile European Union policies with the specificities of the energy sector.

Paolo Castelnovo is a research fellow in Public Economics at the Department of Economics, Management and Quantitative Methods (DEMM), University of Milan, and has been adjunct Professor of Public Finance at Bocconi University since 2015. He has an MSc in Economics and Social Sciences from Bocconi University and a PhD in Economics and Finance of Public Administration from the University of Milano-Bicocca and Catholic University of Milan. His main research interests are within the fields of public economics, applied econometrics and labour economics.

Angélique Chassy holds a PhD in Economics from the University of Rouen, Normandy (laboratory CREAM). Her research concerns the assessment of public policies and more precisely public decisions, willingness to pay through the Contingent Valuation Method and multilevel governance.

Stefano Clò is Assistant Professor at the University of Milan. His research interests include public economics and energy policy. He earned a European Doctorate in Law and Economics at Erasmus University of Rotterdam and at Università degli Studi di Bologna. From 2010 to 2012 he was a research fellow at CEIS Tor Vergata (Rome) and worked as Adjunct Economist at the Italian Ministry of Economics and Finance.

Ajla Cosic holds a PhD in Management from the Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna, Pisa. Her research interests fall under the areas of consumer behaviour. She received her Masters in Business Leadership from Lund University. Ajla holds a BA with honours in Information Systems and Economics from Buckingham University.

Lea Diestelmeier is a PhD researcher at the Groningen Centre of Energy Law, University of Groningen. Lea holds an LL.M. in European Law with a specialisation in Energy and Climate Law from the University of Groningen. She obtained her Bachelor of Science in European Studies at the University of Twente and spent a semester at the faculty of Economics and Administrative Science at the Boğaziçi University in Istanbul.

Julia Doleschel is a graduate student in Economics at the Vienna University of Economics and Business as well as of International Development at the Vienna University. She has gained international experience at Bocconi University, London School of Economics and Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona (UAB). Her research interests include macroeconomics, development economics and growth.

Serena Marianna Drufulca holds a PhD in Economics. Her research interests include media economics, industrial organisation and voting theory. She holds a research scholarship at the Regional Institute for Research, Statistics and Training (Eupolis Lombardia) for the analysis of the competitive position of Lombardy. She is Lecturer in Microeconomics, Industrial Economics and Antitrust and referee for Journal of Economics and European Journal of Law and Economics. She has collaborated as junior researcher at the Institute of Social Research (IRS) in projects monitoring the labour market and evaluating policies.

Giovanni Esposito is a Doctoral Researcher in public sector organization and reform at the HEC Liège School of Management, University of Liège. His research focuses on organizational change and public governance. He has worked as economic analyst at DG Enterprise and Industry of the European Commission.

Massimo Florio is Professor of Public Economics at the University of Milan. Formerly a Jean Monnet Chair of Economics of European Integration and the Chair 'ad personam' of European Union Industrial Policy, he is currently coordinator of a Jean Monnet network of six European universities and President of CIRIEC Commission Public Services/Public Enterprises. Recent publications include Applied Welfare Economics (2014), Network Industries and Social Welfare (2013), and two edited books: Infrastructure Finance in Europe (2016) and The Economics of Infrastructure Provisioning (2015).

Sonja Grönblom is a PhD researcher and from 2017 Lecturer in Economics at Åbo Akademi University, where she previously worked as research associate, acting lecturer and part-time lecturer. Her research is focused on microeconomic topics such as mixed oligopoly, public services and intrinsic motivation in different types of organisations.

Regina Maria Hirsch is completing a Master's degree in Political Science at the University of Vienna. Her research interests include European integration policies as well as the role of the European Union in the field of individual rights protection. In addition, she studies Arabic and Middle Eastern Studies (BA) at the University of Vienna.

Torben Holvad is Economic Adviser at the European Union Agency for Railways (France), senior research associate at the Transport Studies Unit (University of Oxford) and external Associate Professor at the Department of Transport (Danish Technical University). He obtained Economics degrees from Copenhagen University (MSc) and European University Institute (EUI) (MA and PhD).

Tobias Kaloud is a researcher and lecturer at Vienna University of Economics and Business. He has gained precious international academic experience at the Universities of Maastricht, Milan and Liège. His main research focus lies in the fields of regulatory and infrastructure economics.

Manto Lampropoulou holds a PhD in Political Science and Public Administration from the University of Athens. She is a postdoctoral researcher at Athens University of Economics and Business. Her research interests include state reform, privatisation policies, public policy and public administration.

Alexandru Maxim is a researcher and Associate Lecturer at the Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iași in Romania. He has a PhD in Marketing focused on the energy sector and previously worked for GE Energy Europe. His current research interests include sustainable development, European Union policies and energy markets.

Annalisa Negrelli holds a PhD in Administrative Law from the University of Milan. She is an administrative lawyer and from July 2015 has a research fellowship in Administrative Law from the University of Milan.

concerning the public procurements and organisational models of the Public Administration. She is author of several peer-reviewed scientific publications and a book, edited in 2016, about the influence of the Four Freedoms on the European Union Member States' juridical systems, particularly on the perspective of liberalisation/privatisation of the internal markets.

Tue Anh Nguyen holds a PhD in Energy Policy from the University of Greenwich. She is currently a visiting postdoctoral fellow at Harvard Kennedy School. Her research interests include energy policy, public services, market liberalisation model, World Bank loans, structural reforms and economic growth.

Rogelio Pesqueira Sánchez is a PhD student at the University of La Coruña. His research interests include TAM (Technology Acceptance Model), SEM (Structural Equation Modelling), Millennials, telecommunications policies and public policies. He is author of several books and evaluator of European educational projects. He has been a vocational education and training teacher in La Coruña in Spain since 2004.

Nicolò Rossetto holds a PhD in Economics, Law and Institutions from the Istituto Universitario di Studi Superiori (IUSS) of Pavia. He is a research associate at the Florence School of Regulation. His research interests cover energy economics, energy policy and regulation of the network industries. He has previously worked for the University of Pavia, the Istituto per gli Studi di Politica Internazionale (ISPI) of Milano and the World Bank.

Anastasia Roukouni is a Transportation Engineer with a PhD in the field of Transport Planning and Economics from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece, funded by a Fellowship of Excellence, awarded by the State Scholarships Foundation of Greece and Siemens. She also holds an MSc in Transport from Imperial College London and University College London, UK (joint program). She is the author or co-author of 30 peer-reviewed scientific publications. She currently works as postdoctoral researcher, at the Policy Analysis Group, Department of Multi-Actor Systems, Faculty of Technology, Policy and Management, TU Delft in the Netherlands. Her research focuses on how games can foster the implementation process of innovation in the field of logistics and transportation.

Steve Thomas is Emeritus Professor of Energy Policy and member of the Public Services International Research Unit (PSIRU) at the University of Greenwich Business School. He is an associate editor of Energy Policy. His research interests include economics and policy on nuclear power, liberalisation of energy markets and corporate policies of energy companies.

Jadwiga Urban-Kozłowska is a researcher at the Jagiellonian University in Kraków and a Polish legal adviser. She earned the title of Master of French law at the University of Orléans. Her main areas of expertise include European Union and Polish competition law, German and Polish labour law.

Johan Willner is Emeritus Professor in Economics at Åbo Akademi University. He has been Research Scholar at the London School of Economics, and several times Visiting Fellow or Visiting Professor at the University of Warwick. His research and teaching have mainly dealt with microeconomic theory, in particular public economics and industrial organisation.