Contributors

Eva Brems is a Professor of Human Rights Law at Ghent University, where she founded the Human Rights Centre. She is the Co-ordinator of the research project ‘The Global Challenge of Human Rights Integration: Towards a Users’ Perspective’.

Emmanuelle Bribosia holds a Law degree (Licence, 1994 – La Plus Grande Distinction) and a PhD in Law (2000, La Plus Grande Distinction – Alice Segers Price) from ULB. She is a full-time Professor teaching EU Law and Human Rights Law at ULB (Institute for European Studies-Faculty of Law). She coordinates the Advanced Master in European Law (Master de spécialisation en droit européen) and is the Director of the Centre for European Law (Law Faculty – Institute for European Studies – Université Libre de Bruxelles – ULB). Her research activities focus on the International and European Human rights protection as well as on the right to equality and non-discrimination, with an emphasis on the interdisciplinary approach of these research themes. Integrated in several networks of excellence, Emmanuelle Bribosia conducts a lot of her research activity in the framework of international projects. Emmanuelle Bribosia is also a member of the European Network of legal experts in gender equality and non-discrimination (www.non-discrimination.net) and of the Berkeley Comparative Anti-Discrimination Law Study Group (www.law.berkeley.edu/bcadl.htm). In 2014, she co-founded, with Isabelle Rorive, the Equality Law Clinic (http://www.philodroit.be/-ELC-?lang=en) based at the Perelman Centre for Legal Philosophy and at the Centre for European Law.

Paul De Hert is an international human rights expert. The bulk of his work is devoted, but not limited to, criminal law and technology and privacy law. In Brussels, Paul De Hert holds the chair of ‘Criminal Law’, ‘International and European Criminal Law’ and ‘Historical introduction to eight major constitutional systems’. In the past he has held the chair of ‘Human rights’, ‘Legal theory’ and ‘Constitutional criminal law’. He is the Director of the VUB-Research group on Fundamental Rights and Constitutionalism (FRC), Director of the Department of Interdisciplinary Studies of Law (Metajuridics) and core member of the internationally well-accepted VUB-Research group Law Science Technology & Society (LSTS) (see: www.vub.ac.be/LSTS). In Tilburg he holds a position as an Associated Professor in the internationally renowned Institute of Law and Technology at the Tilburg University (http://www.tilburguniversity.nl/faculties/frw/departments/tilt/profile/). Paul is also a member of the editorial boards of several national and international scientific journals such as the Inter-American and European Human Rights Journal (Intersentia), Criminal Law & Philosophy (Springer). He is furthermore co-editor in chief of the Supranational Criminal Law Series (Intersentia) and of the New Journal of European Criminal law (Intersentia).

Ellen Desmet is an Assistant Professor of Migration Law at the Faculty of Law and Criminology of Ghent University. She is a member of the Human Rights Centre and of the Centre for the Social Study of Migration and Refugees (CESSMIR). She teaches migration law, coordinates the migration law component of the Human Rights and Migration Law Clinic, and co-lectures legal anthropology. Until September 2016, Ellen was the project manager of the Interuniversity Attraction Pole ‘The Global Challenge of Human Rights Integration: Towards a Users’ Perspective’ at Ghent University, and a Senior Researcher at the Law and Development Research Group of the University of Antwerp. She has a background in human rights law and legal anthropology; her current research focuses on asylum and migration law and policy.

Edson ‘Krenak’ Dorneles de Andrade is a descendent of the Krenak people, an indigenous group located in the East of Brazil. He holds a masters degree in Literary Studies from Federal University of Sao Carlos, Brazil.

Derek Inman is a Researcher and PhD candidate at the Faculty of Law and Criminology of the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (Belgium). Derek holds an LLM in Human Rights Law from the University of Nottingham (UK) and a BA [Hons] in Political Science and Human Rights from Carleton University (Canada). His main area of research is international human rights law, with a particular focus on indigenous peoples’ rights. He has published a number of research articles on the rights of indigenous peoples, specifically looking at their rights to traditional lands, territories and natural resources in Africa and Asia. In addition, Derek has held various roles with the International Commission of Jurists, the International Criminal Court, the University of Nottingham’s Human Rights Law Centre and the Federal Government of Canada.

Mathias Holvoet is a PhD Researcher in International Criminal Law at the Faculty of Law and Criminology, Vrije Universiteit Brussel (VUB).
At VUB, he is affiliated with the Institute for European Studies (IES) and the Fundamental Rights and Constitutionalism (FRC) Research Group. Under the HRI project, Mathias wrote a PhD on the policy element within the definition of crimes against humanity. During his time as a PhD Researcher, Mathias has held various visiting positions. From April 2017 until September 2017, Mathias was a Visiting Professional within the Trial Division of the Chambers of the International Criminal Court. From October 2015 until June 2016, Mathias was a Visiting Researcher at the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute, Washington University in St. Louis, United States of America. From June 2013 until September 2013, Mathias was a Visiting Researcher at Humboldt University, Berlin, Lehrstuhl of Professor dr. Gerhard Werle. From October 2013 until December 2013, Mathias was a Visiting Researcher at the Institute for International Peace and Security Law, University of Cologne. His work has been published in leading journals in the field of International Criminal Law such as the Journal of International Criminal Justice, International Criminal Law Review and Criminal Law Forum.

Barbara Oomen is a Professor in the Sociology of Human Rights at Utrecht University, associated with University College Roosevelt in Middelburg. She is the international expert in the Human Rights Integration program. Professor Oomen has published extensively on the inter-relationship between law, society and cultural diversity, specifically in the field of human rights. Recent books are Rights for Others: The Slow Home-coming of Human Rights in the Netherlands (2014) and Global Urban Justice: The Rise of Human Rights Cities (2016), both with Cambridge University Press. In 2016–2017, Barbara Oomen was a Fernand Braudel Fellow at the European University Institute in Florence. As of 2017, she leads a five-year research project titled ‘Cities of Refuge’, on local authorities, international human rights and refugees, funded by the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research.

Saïla Ouald-Chaib is a Post Doctoral Researcher at the Human Rights Centre of Ghent University and the coordinator of the Human Rights and Migration Law clinic at the same centre. She obtained a PhD in Law at Ghent University (2015) with the doctoral dissertation ‘Belief in Justice. Towards More Inclusivity in and through the Freedom of Religion Case Law of the European Court of Human Rights’. She is one of the co-founders of the blog www.strasbourgobservers.com. From October 2016 to December 2017, Saïla Ouald-Chaib was the project manager of Interuniversity Attraction Pole ‘The Global Challenge of Human Rights Integration: Towards a Users’ Perspective’ at Ghent University.
Contributors

Isabelle Rorive is a Professor at the Law Faculty and at the Institute for European Studies of ULB (Université libre de Bruxelles) where she teaches comparative law, non-discrimination law, legal methods and contemporary issues in mobilising fundamental rights. Since September 2012, Isabelle Rorive has been the Director of the Perelman Centre for Legal Philosophy. Her research focuses on theoretical and practical developments of the right to equality and non-discrimination, the migration of legal concepts between common law and civil law systems, the imprint of legal cultures on the development of law and judicial reasoning, and the human rights issues raised by the management of cultural pluralism. She holds a PhD in Law (ULB, 2000), a Master of Studies in Legal Research (University of Oxford, St Hugh’s College, 1997, with a scholarship of the Wiener-Anspach Foundation), a Masters and a BA in Law (ULB, 1994). She was a Research Fellow of the Belgian National Fund for Scientific Research (FNRS, 1995–1999), a Visiting Research Fellow at the University of Oxford (Programme in Comparative Media Law and Policy, Centre for Socio-Legal Studies, Wolfson College, 2001–2002, with a postdoctoral fellowship of the Wiener-Anspach Foundation). She is a senior expert and member of the European Network of legal experts in gender equality and non-discrimination and a member of the European Equality Law Network and the Berkeley Comparative Anti-Discrimination Law Study Group; Isabelle Rorive pursues many of her research projects in a European or international setting. In 2014, she co-founded the Equality Law Clinic and participated in the launching of the Equality Law Clinic (ELC) in the framework of the Human Rights Integration project that she coordinates with Emmanuelle Bribosia at ULB.

Stefaan Smis is a Professor at the Faculty of Law and Criminology of the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (Belgium) and a Member of its Department of International and European Law. He teaches courses on International Law, European Law, International Protection of Human Rights, and Settlement of International Disputes. He is also a Reader at the School of Law of the University of Westminster (UK) where he has taught in the areas of international criminal law, criminal law of the European Union, human rights law and international humanitarian law. His research focuses inter alia on international law, international human rights protection, the settlement of international disputes, states in transition, the prosecution of serious violations of human rights, the relationship between human rights and international humanitarian law, and regional integration in Africa.
Olivier Van der Noot is invited Professor at Université Saint-Louis – Bruxelles, where he holds a seminar in legal theory, and is a lawyer at the Brussels bar. His doctoral research focused on the contribution of national constitutions to the protection of human rights.

Sébastien Van Drooghenbroeck is an ordinary Professor at the University Saint-Louis – Brussels, where he teaches, a.o., Constitutional Law and International/European Human Rights Law. He is also the Dean of the Law Faculty of this University, and Assessor at the Belgian Council of State. His main research concerns the Law of the European Convention on Human Rights (see complete bibliography at https://dial.uclouvain.be/DialExport/Portail?method=bibliography&author=Van%20Drooghenbroeck,%20Sébastien&type=classic&site=BOREAL).