Contributors

Alex Andrione-Moylan is a PhD fellow at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies, KU Leuven, and junior researcher in the CONNECTIVITY research programme on “Connectivity, contestation and cooperation in global governance”. His research focuses on populism and the contestation of foreign policy in the EU. He has published, inter alia, on the impact of populism in European Political Parties (2018), on the G7 in times of anti-globalism and contestation (2018) and the EU’s engagement with informal governance bodies (2019).

Fukunari Kimura is Professor in the Faculty of Economics at Keio University, Tokyo. Previously he has worked as an assistant professor at the University of New York at Albany. He obtained his Bachelor of Law at the University of Tokyo in 1982. Later he received his Master’s degree and PhD from the Department of Economics at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His primary area of expertise is international trade and development economics. Additionally, he has worked on economic growth theory, applied microeconomics and Japanese and Asian economies. He is the Chief Economist at the Economic Research Institute for ASEAN and East Asia.

Yumiko Nakanishi is Professor of European Union Law in the Graduate School of Law, Hitotsubashi University, Tokyo, and an external scientific fellow of the Max Planck Institute Luxembourg (2020–2021). She obtained a Master’s of Law at Hitotsubashi University and at the University of Münster, Germany, and became a Doctor of Law at the University of Münster. She is the Chief Editor of Review of European Law (EU hō kenkyu) (shinzansha) and a member of the Board of Directors of the EUSA–Japan.

Eiji Ogawa is Professor in the Faculty of Economics at Tokyo Keizai University with an expertise in international currencies and finance. Previously, he was Professor of International Finance in the Graduate School of Business Administration, Hitotsubashi University. He received his PhD at Hitotsubashi University in 1999. He was a visiting scholar at Harvard University, the University of California at Berkeley, and in the Research Department of the International Monetary Fund. His publications include “What determines utility of international currencies?” (Journal of Risk and Financial Management, vol. 12(1), 1–30, 2019) with Makaoto Muto.
Ryo Oshiba is Director and Professor in the Hiroshima Peace Institute, Hiroshima City University. He received his PhD in political science from Yale University. He was a visiting fellow at the University of Oxford and Princeton University. He was President of the Japan Association of International Relations (2005–2006) and Vice-President (2011–2014) and Professor at Hitotsubashi University. He also worked as Professor at Aoyama Gakuin University. His recent publications include Power and Global Governance, co-edited with N. Akiyama, K. Obayashi and A. Yamada, 2018 (Yuhikaku in Japanese); Japan’s Diplomacy (vol. 5), editor, 2013 (Iwanami in Japanese); and “Globalization and education in Japan: The case of junior high school history textbooks” in Jim Dator, Dick Praff and Yongseok Seo (eds), Globalization, Fairness, and Public Institutions, University of Hawaii Press, 2006.

Kolja Raube is Assistant Professor for European Studies in the Faculty of Social Sciences and senior researcher in the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of KU Leuven. He is also programme coordinator and lecturer of the Master’s of European Studies: Transnational and Global Perspectives at KU Leuven. He is an adjunct Professor at the American University Washington DC (Brussels). He has been a visiting Professor at Kobe University Japan and a visiting research fellow in the EU Studies Centre at the University of Illinois at Urbana–Champaign. He has published widely on the European Parliament in EU foreign policy and inter-parliamentary cooperation in the EU. He is the co-author of several in-depth studies, commissioned by the European Parliament, on the EU and international affairs.

Michael Reiterer studied law at the University of Innsbruck (Dr Juris) and holds diplomas in International Relations from the John Hopkins University/Bologna Centre and the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva. He is teaching at various universities and specializes in EU foreign policy, EU–Asia relations and inter-regionalism – all areas on which he has published extensively. As an official of the EU, he was EU Ambassador to South Korea (2017–2020), EU Ambassador to Switzerland and the Principality of Liechtenstein (2007–2011), Minister/Deputy Head of the EU Delegation to Japan (2002–2006), and Counsellor for the Asia–Europe Meeting.

Michiru Sakane is an Associate Professor at Sophia University. She received a PhD in Economics from Duke University. Her research fields are macroeconomics and international economics. Her publications include “Financial constraints, firm entry, and exchange rate pass-through” (Economics Letters, vol. 125(1), 143–147, 2014) and “News-driven international business cycles” (The B.E. Journal of Macroeconomics, vol. 13(1), 751–793, 2013).

Camille Van der Vorst is a PhD researcher in the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies and the Department of Japanese Studies, KU Leuven.
She has been researching international trade using computable general equilibrium (CGE) modelling with a focus on non-tariff barriers and rules of origin. Previously she has undertaken policy work on these subjects at DG Trade at the European Commission and the EU–Japan Centre for Industrial Cooperation. She holds an MA in Economics from Kobe University, Japan, and an MA in Japanese Studies from KU Leuven.

Dimitri Vanoverbeke is Professor and Director of the Department of East Asian and Arabic Studies at KU Leuven. His current research interests relate to law and society, policymaking, the function of legal institutions and the relationship between law, politics and society in modern and contemporary Japan in a domestic and international context. Recent books include: Global Constitutionalism from European and East Asian Perspectives (Takao Suami, Anne Peters, Mattias Kumm and Dimitri Vanoverbeke (eds)), Cambridge University Press, 2018; Developing EU–Japan Relations in a Changing Regional Context: A Focus on Security, Law and Policies (Dimitri Vanoverbeke, Takao Suami, Takako Ueta, Nicholas Peeters and Frederik Ponjaert (eds)), Routledge, 2017.

Ines Willemyns obtained her PhD in Law in 2019 after having worked as a PhD researcher in the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies, KU Leuven. Her dissertation discussed the international legal framework applicable to digital services trade. Upon completion of her doctoral research, Ines spent three months at the World Trade Organization’s Appellate Body as a legal intern. Ines researches various aspects of international economic law with a particular focus on digital trade issues.

Jan Wouters is Full Professor of International Law and International Organizations, Jean Monnet Chair ad personam European Union and Global Governance, Director of the Institute for International Law and of the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies (both a Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence and a University Centre of Excellence) at KU Leuven, and President of the University’s International Policy Council. He is an adjunct professor at Columbia University (New York) and a visiting professor at Sciences Po (Paris), LUISS (Rome) and the College of Europe (Bruges). A member of the Belgian Royal Academy and an Of Counsel at Linklaters, Brussels, he has published widely on international and EU law, international organizations and global governance, and corporate and financial law. He is Coordinator of a large Horizon 2020 Project, RECONNECT (“Reconnecting Europe with its citizens through democracy and rule of law”) and a six-year multidisciplinary research programme CONNECTIVITY (“Connectivity, contestation and cooperation in global governance”), funded by KU Leuven. Apart from his participation in international scientific networks, he advises international organizations and governments, trains international officials and is often asked to comment on international events in the media. In 2020–2021 he is a visiting professor at Université Paris2 Panthéon-Assas (Paris), Queen Mary University (London) and the World Trade Institute (Bern).