
Contributors

Thomas L. Baker (Ph.D. Florida State University). Dr. Baker's research focuses on consumer and employee interactions in service settings, service recovery efforts, and organizational approaches to maximizing service delivery. Dr. Baker has twice been named one of the "Best Reviewers" for the Journal of Marketing Theory and Practice. Dr. Baker's research has been published in a number of outlets including the Journal of Marketing, Journal of Retailing, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Business Research, Industrial Marketing Management, and the Journal of Personal Selling and Sales Management.

Sharon E. Beatty (Ph.D., Oregon, 1980) is Professor Emerita, the University of Alabama. She conducts mostly services and employee–customer interchange research (i.e. frontline focus) and has published over 85 articles in refereed journals such as the Journal of Marketing, Journal of Marketing Research, Journal of Consumer Research, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Retailing, Journal of Service Research, and Journal of Business Research, accumulating over 20,000 citations. In 1998, she was named AMS Distinguished Fellow, in 2001 SMA Distinguished Scholar, in 2014 SMA Distinguished Fellow, and in 2015 received the AMS Harold W. Berkman Distinguished Service Award.

Ruth N. Bolton is Professor of Marketing at the W.P. Carey School of Business, Arizona State University. She received the 2016 American Marketing Association / Irwin / McGraw-Hill Distinguished Marketing Educator Award in 2016 and the Christopher Lovelock Career Contributions to Services Award in 2007. She served as Executive Director (2009–2011) of the Marketing Science Institute and Editor of the Journal of Marketing (2002–2005). Dr. Bolton has published widely and served on many Editorial Review Boards, over the past three decades. She received her B.Comm. with honors from Queen's University (Canada), and her M.Sc. and Ph.D. from Carnegie-Mellon University.

Niloofer Borghei Razavi is a Doctoral candidate in Marketing and Reputation at Henley Business School. She holds a B.Sc. in Business Economics from Shahid Beheshti University in Iran and a M.Sc. in Marketing and International Management from Henley Business School in the United Kingdom. She is interested in topics such as customer engagement, customer rage and sabotage behaviors, service management and healthcare service research.

Kara Burns is an early career researcher in digital health service technologies and has a Ph.D. in Marketing (QUT) exploring patient engagement and patient-generated health data. She regularly consults with interdisciplinary startup founders, clinicians, technology developers and patients on digital platforms to improve patient outcomes. With 15 years of experience in healthcare and a fondness of entrepreneurship and innovation, Dr. Burns is also one of three founding executives of Hacking Health Queensland, a chapter of a global not-for-profit aimed at catalyzing local health innovation ecosystems. She seeks to collaborate nationally and internationally on digital healthcare services research over the next decade.

Bobby J. Calder is the Kellstadt Professor of Marketing, Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University. He is also a Professor in the Medill School of Journalism, Media and Integrated Marketing Communications. His work is primarily in the areas of brand strategy, consumer psychology, media, and content marketing. Currently he chairs the International Standards Organization's (ISO) committee on Brand Evaluation. At Northwestern he has served as Chair of the Marketing Department and Director of the MMM Program in the McCormick School of Engineering, focusing on design thinking. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Jennifer Chandler is Associate Professor of Management and Director of Graduate Programs at California State University Fullerton. Recognized as the 2017 MCBE Distinguished Faculty of the Year, Dr. Chandler is an international scholar studying service management and innovation in multi-sided markets, technology, and user-centric service systems. Her award-winning research is published in the Journal of Service Research (Best Paper Award 2015), Journal of Service Theory and Practice (Best Paper Award 2015), Journal of Service Management, and the Journal of Business Research, to name a few. Dr. Chandler holds a BA (UCLA), MBA (University of Hawaii Manoa), and Ph.D. (UC Irvine).

Dimitra Chasanidou is a postdoctoral researcher at the Centre for Technology, Innovation and Culture at the University of Oslo. She holds a Ph.D. in Innovation Research from the University of Oslo's Department of Informatics. In her Ph.D. research, Dr. Chasanidou investigated user participation in innovation platforms and the design of such platforms. Her primary research interests are in innovation studies and human-computer interaction.

Carolyn Costley is a freelance academic. She has held faculty positions in New Zealand (including 21 years at the University of Waikato), USA, and Canada. Her research and teaching experience is in consumer perceptions, branding, and responsible marketing. Her work has appeared in leading international journals, including the Journal of Marketing, Journal of Consumer Research, Consumption Markets & Culture, International Journal of Advertising, Journal of Service Marketing, and the Australasian Marketing Journal.

David Cox is CEO of Motivforce Marketing and Incentives, with offices in 11 countries providing specialized incentive, performance improvement and customer loyalty-marketing solutions to companies developing and implementing employee incentive and customer loyalty programs. David operates programs in over 130 countries across multiple sectors and has won over 50 awards for his marketing, incentive and loyalty programs. He received the MIAA Outstanding Marketer Award (1996 and 1997) and the University of Technology Postgraduate Teaching Award (2005). David's expertise is the fusion of learning, engagement and sales within the loyalty program structure and channel loyalty strategy.

Laurence Dessart is Assistant Professor in marketing at KEDGE Business School. Her research interests are primarily focused on consumer engagement and brand management, as well as digital environments. She has published in the International Journal of Research in Marketing, the Journal of Marketing Management, and the Journal of Product and Brand Management. She also has several book chapters and presented at numerous international conferences. She has received several international awards and funding for her work.

Michael Ehret is Reader in Technology Management/Marketing at Nottingham Business School. He has held positions at Freie Universität Berlin, Technical University Munich and Universität Rostock, Germany. His research interests include: Service Entrepreneurship, Business Model Innovation and Inter-Organizational Marketing. He publishes in the Journal of Marketing, Psychology & Marketing, Industrial Marketing Management, and the Journal of Business Research. He serves on the editorial review board of Industrial Marketing Management, Journal of Business Research and Journal of Business and Industrial Marketing. Michael has experience in applied research and consultancy work with Mercedes-Benz, BioCity Nottingham, Roland Berger Strategy Consultants, and Springer Publishing. His teaching focus is on promoting entrepreneurship development and progress.

Annita Fjuk received her Ph.D. in informatics at University of Oslo, with a focus on human-centered design, organizational change and learning. Her current research interests are design thinking, digital transformation and leadership. In addition to her position as Research Director in the Center for Service Innovation (NHH), she has had several Manager positions in Telenor Group building design thinking as a corporate capability for change and transformation. Currently, she is working for DigitalNorway, a national initiative driving Norwegian companies' digitalization and transformation.

Paul Fombelle (Ph.D. Arizona State University). Dr. Fombelle's current research interests examine service innovation, customer feedback management, customer loyalty and relationship marketing, and service experience management. His research has appeared in the Journal of Marketing Research, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Service Research, Journal of Interactive Marketing, and the Journal of Business Research. He currently serves on the editorial review board of the Journal of Business Research. Paul loves to collaborate with industry leaders. Paul's global research partners span a variety of sectors including technology, financial, health, food/fine dining, retail, and entertainment services.

Dhruv Grewal is the Toyota Chair in Commerce and Electronic Business and a Professor of Marketing at Babson College. His research and teaching interests focus on the broad areas of value-based marketing strategies, retailing, pricing and services. He currently serves on numerous editorial review boards, such as the Journal of Marketing (AE), Journal of Marketing Research, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science (AE), and the advisory board for the Journal of Retailing. He is listed in The World's Most Influential Scientific Minds, Thompson Reuters 2014. He has also coauthored a number of books: Marketing (McGraw-Hill, 2014) and Retailing Management (McGraw-Hill, 2013).

Calin Gurau is Professor of Marketing at Montpellier Business School, France. His present research interests are focused on consumer behavior, marketing strategies for high-technology firms, the Internet and sustainable development. He has published more than 70 papers in internationally refereed journals, such as Nature Biotechnology, Industrial Marketing Management, Small Business Economics, Group and Organization Management, and Information Sciences. He is a Marie Curie Research Fellow of Princeton University and works actively to investigate immigrant entrepreneurship.

Kristina K. Lindsey Hall (Ph.D. the University of Alabama). Dr. Hall's research focuses on organizational frontlines and services marketing, specifically frontline employee and customer interactions, services failures and recovery, and the influence of technology integration on service management.

Wafa Hammedi is Associate Professor of service innovation and marketing at the faculty of Economics and Management (University of Namur, Belgium). She is also an academic Scholar at Cornell University, USA. She received her Ph.D. from the Institute for Management Research of the Radboud University Nijmegen, the Netherlands. Her primary research interests are service innovation and marketing. Her work focuses on virtual communities, customer engagement and customer co-creation experiences. She published in highly recognized journals, among others, in the Journal of Product Innovation Management, Industrial Marketing Management, Journal of Service Management, Decision Management, Journal of Business Research, and several book chapters. She won several prestigious awards for her research papers. She is also the co-founder and co-chair of the international conference Let's Talk about Service (LTAS) empowered by SERVSIG of the American Marketing Association (AMA).

Maik Hammerschmidt is Professor of Marketing, Chair in Marketing and Innovation Management, and Executive Director of the Department of Business Administration at the University of Goettingen, Germany. He earned his Ph.D. from the University of Mannheim, Germany. His research interests include marketing performance, service innovations, social media marketing, and stakeholder management. He has edited four books on marketing performance and marketing efficiency and his work has been published in journals such as the Journal of Marketing, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Service Research, and Journal of Business Research. He received numerous awards for academic achievements, including an Overall Best Paper Award of the American Marketing Association and a Best Paper Award of The Sheth Foundation.

Bieke Henkens is a doctoral student at the Center for Service Intelligence at Ghent University. Her doctoral research centers on complex technological service innovations, including services provided through technology-enabled platforms and robots.

Linda D. Hollebeek is Senior Associate Professor at Montpellier Business School and Full Professor (Adj.) at Tallinn University of Technology. Her research, which centers on customer/consumer engagement, has been published in the Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Service Research, Industrial Marketing Management, Journal of Business Research, European Journal of Marketing, and Journal of Interactive Marketing, among others. She is currently guest-editing Special Issues/Sections in the Journal of Service Research and International Journal of Research in Marketing, and has been appointed Associate Editor of the European Journal of Marketing.

Antonio Hyder is Director of Research of Hackers and Founders, the world's largest community of technology founders, based in Silicon Valley. He is also Senior Lecturer of Digital Marketing at the Open University, UK. He obtained an International Marketing Ph.D. at the Universities of Valencia and Nottingham, an MBA at Middlesex University London, and a degree in electronics engineering at Valencia Polytechnic University. His postdoctoral studies in tech-marketing were conducted at Stanford University. His main research interests are technology marketing and e-tourism, and he is a scientific advisor to the European Commission in the field technology-marketing applied research.

Ingita Jain, MBA-MA (Marketing-Economics) has been teaching marketing management, consumer behavior, retail management, international marketing and managerial economics since 1998. She designed and delivered MOOC courses for Government of India's television broadcast. Her teaching is blended with her corporate experience exceeding half a decade with blue chip pharmaceutical companies in India. Her business case on a natural water brand is a part of IIM, Ahmedabad's teaching pedagogy. She is currently pursuing her Ph.D. research on psychographics in the Private Label domain.

Lester W. Johnson is Professor of Marketing at Swinburne University of Technology, Australia. He holds a PhD in econometrics from the University of Connecticut. He was elected as one of three inaugural Fellows of the Australia New Zealand Marketing Academy in 2004, and in 2008 was also elected as a Fellow of the Australian Market and Social Research Society. His research interests lie broadly in the area of marketing modeling. Recent work includes models investigating consumer brand equity, consumer brand engagement, celebrity endorsement, and luxury consumption.

Kim A. Johnston is Associate Professor at QUT, Brisbane, Australia, an active researcher, board member, and educator, focused on communication issues associated with engagement, social impact and social license to operate across government, private, and the non-profit sectors. Kim leads the stakeholder engagement research group, as part of the QUT Social and Business Engagement Research Centre, and teaches in the QUT Business School in the areas of community engagement, issues management, media strategy and public relations. Kim is co-editor of the Handbook of Communication Engagement (July 2018) and her work has been published in a number of peer-reviewed journals and handbooks.

Amela Karahasanović is Senior Scientist at SINTEF Digital and an Associate Professor in the Department of Informatics at the University of Oslo. She holds a Ph.D. degree in Computer Science from the University of Oslo. Karahasanovic has more than 30 years of experience in industry and academia and has published numerous journal articles, conference papers and book chapters in the areas of human–computer interaction, software engineering and innovation studies. In various projects, she worked on the understanding of users' requirements, behavior and experience.

Cynthia Kazanis, MBA (Eastern Michigan University) has been deeply involved with customer engagement research during her Master's studies, which she earned in 2016. While pursuing her Master's degree she researched customer, partner, and student engagement. Cynthia has also served as Chapter Representative (2015–2017), President (2017), and Past-President (2018) of the Ann Arbor Chapter of the American Statistical Association. She is employed as a digital marketing analyst at Pure Visibility, Inc. in Ann Arbor, MI, USA.

Debbie Isobel Keeling is Associate Dean of Engagement and Professor of Marketing at the University of Sussex, UK. Previously, she held positions at Loughborough University and the University of Manchester. Her research focuses on two core areas: envisioning health and social care service for the twenty-first century, and future proofing sales and enablement strategy in B2B channels. Her research has been funded by public institutions, for example, the European Science Foundation and NIHR, and commercial organizations. Debbie is Regional Editor (Europe) for the European Journal of Marketing and serves on academic Editorial Boards and Research Advisory Boards for commercial organizations.

Su Jung Kim is Assistant Professor in the Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism at the University of Southern California. She received her Ph.D. degree in the Media, Technology, and Society program in the School of Communication, and was a postdoctoral research associate in the Spiegel Center for Digital and Database Marketing at Northwestern University. Before joining USC, she was an Assistant Professor in the Greenlee School of Journalism and Communication at Iowa State University. Her research centers on the use of big data in communication, advertising, and marketing communications. Her research interests include cross-platform media use and its effects, social media and electronic word-of-mouth (e-WOM), and mobile customer engagement. Her current projects examine how online product reviews influence the perceptions and behaviors of consumers.

V. Kumar (VK) is Regents Professor, Richard and Susan Lenny Distinguished Chair, and Professor of Marketing, the Executive Director of the Center for Excellence in Brand and Customer Management (CEBCM), and the Director of the Ph.D. Program in Marketing, J. Mack Robinson School of Business, Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30303-3989. Email: vk@gsu.edu. VK is also honored as the Chang Jiang Scholar, Huazhong University of Science and Technology, China; Distinguished Fellow, Indian School of Business, India; and Distinguished Fellow, MICA, India.

Cristiana R. Lages is Associate Professor in Marketing and Service Management at Henley Business School at the University of Reading. Previously, she was a Senior Lecturer at Loughborough University and a Lecturer at the University of Leeds. She held visiting positions at National University of Singapore, Boston College, University of Cambridge and Hanken School of Economics. She holds a Ph.D. from the University of Warwick. She has published in the Journal of Service Research, Journal of Business Research, International Journal of Human Resource Management, Journal of Services Marketing, Journal of International Marketing, International Marketing Review, and European Journal of Marketing, among others.

Anne B. Lane is a researcher and educator at QUT Business School. Anne's research interests focus on engagement and dialogue, and how organizations use them to navigate the increasingly-complex environments in which they operate. Her research has been used by public relations practitioners and organizations to better understand the processes and outcomes of stakeholder engagement. Anne's research experience has extended across multiple organizations in a range of practice contexts including government and the not-for-profit sector. Her research has informed organizational policy, been published in peer-reviewed journals, and been presented at international conferences.

Civilai Leckie is Senior Lecturer at Swinburne Business School, Swinburne University of Technology, Australia. Her research interests include business-to-business (B2B) marketing, customer brand engagement, consumer behavior, services marketing and sports marketing. Civilai has published in marketing journals such as the Journal of Business Research, European Journal of Marketing, Journal of Marketing Management, Journal of Business and Industrial Marketing, Journal of Services Marketing, and Journal of Strategic Marketing, among others.

Thomas Leclercq is Assistant Professor of Marketing at IESEG School of Management (Lille, France). He received his Ph.D. in Economics and Management Sciences from the Louvain School of Management (Belgium) in 2017. His research interests are in the field of service, innovation and digital marketing. His work mainly concerns topics related to value co-creation, online communities, customer engagement and gamification. He presented his works in numerous prestigious conferences and won several awards for his research communications. His publications can be found in highly recognized journals such as the Journal of Interactive Marketing, Technological Forecasting and Social Change, Journal of Service Management, and International Journal of Electronic Commerce.

Sara Leroi-Werelds obtained her Master's degree in Business Engineering from Hasselt University in 2008. She obtained a doctoral scholarship from the Research Foundation Flanders (FWO Vlaanderen) and defended her Ph.D. in May 2013. Currently she works as an Assistant Professor at the Department of Marketing and Strategy at Hasselt University. Her research mainly focuses on customer centricity and patient centricity. Topics include customer value, patient value, tech versus touch in service encounters, and value co-creation. Her research was published in the Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, and the Journal of Service Management, among others.

Keith Macky currently serves as Postgraduate Programme Manager, Whitireia New Zealand. Prior, he was Foundation Associate Professor of Business and Enterprise at the Music and Audio Institute of New Zealand, and Associate Professor at Auckland University of Technology School of Business, where he also served as Associate Dean (Undergraduate and Teaching & Learning). His research interests are eclectic, including the future of work in the Fourth Industrial Revolution (Industry 4.0) and the interface of employee–customer engagement. He has published five books, over 35 peer-reviewed journal articles, and multiple book chapters.

Edward C. Malthouse is the Theodore R and Annie Laurie Sills Professor of Integrated Marketing Communications and Industrial Engineering and Management Science at Northwestern University and the Research Director for the Spiegel Center for Digital and Database Marketing. He was the co-editor of the Journal of Interactive Marketing between 2005 and 2011. He earned his Ph.D. in 1995 in computational statistics from Northwestern University and completed a post-doc at the Kellogg marketing department. His research interests center on customer engagement and experiences; digital, social and mobile media; big data; customer relationship management and lifetime value models; predictive analytics; unsupervised learning; and integrated marketing communications.

Julia Marbach is an entrepreneur and freelance researcher in Management, Marketing and Reputation from Henley Business School at the University of Reading in the UK. Her research interests include customer engagement behavior, digital marketing, customer value and customer experience. Julia has published in the Journal of Marketing Management and presented at several international conferences.

Ewa Maslowska is Assistant Professor in the Amsterdam School of Communication Research, University of Amsterdam, where she also earned her Ph.D. degree in persuasive communication programs. She completed a post-doc in the Medill IMC Spiegel Digital and Database Research Center, Northwestern University. Her research interests center around consumer behavior, advertising and digital consumer environments. She conducts experimental and data-driven research into the dynamics of consumer engagement.

Julie Napoli is Senior Lecturer at Curtin University's School of Marketing in Perth, Australia. Her work has been published in (among others) the Journal of Product and Innovation Management, Journal of Business Research, Journal of Marketing Management, Journal of Small Business Management, Industrial Marketing Management, and the Journal of Advertising Research. Her research interests include brand management, consumer empowerment and sustainability.

Daria Novikova obtained her BA and MA in Economic Sciences at Lobachevsky State University, Russian Federation. After graduation, she worked as a research assistant of the Business Administration Department at Lobachevsky State University and as marketing management trainee for Colgate-Palmolive Russia. She is currently in her first year of her Ph.D. titled "Taking the customer perspective: understanding gamified learning experiences through the lens of service logic" at the Department of Marketing and Strategy at Hasselt University.

Munyaradzi W. Nyadzayo is Associate Professor of Marketing at the University of Wollongong in Dubai, UAE. His research interests include business-to-business (B2B) marketing, brand management, luxury branding, retailing, franchising, services marketing and entrepreneurial marketing in emerging markets. Munyar's research work has been published in leading marketing journals such as Industrial Marketing Management, Journal of Business Research, Journal of Marketing Management, Journal of Services Marketing, and Journal of Strategic Marketing, among others.

Robyn Ouschan is Senior Lecturer at Curtin University's School of Marketing in Perth, Australia. Her work has been published in (among others) the European Journal of Marketing, Journal of Service Theory and Practice, Journal of Services Marketing, Addiction, Accident Analysis and Prevention, Journal of the Australasian College of Road Safety, Journal of Public Affairs, Australasian Journal of Marketing, and the Health Promotion Journal of Australia. Her research interests include customer engagement, online brand engagement, customer loyalty, consumer empowerment, social marketing and advertising policy.

Valentina Pitardi is Lecturer at the University of Portsmouth. Her research interests are in the domain of consumer behavior and psychology, with specific focuses on consumer engagement, brand narrative, and mobile marketing. Her works have been published in the Journal of Service Theory and Practice, and the Journal of Micro and Macro Marketing. She also has written book chapters and presented her work at several international conferences.

Ingrid Poncin is Professor of Marketing at Catholic University of Louvain and a member of Center of Excellence on Consumers and Marketing Strategy (CCMS). She is in charge of the IPM Digital Marketing Chair. She completed her Ph.D. in Marketing at Louvain School of Management (Belgium) for which she received the “Gouverneur Cornez Award.” She is a qualified researcher (HDR) from Lille II University, France. Her research interests concern use and measurement of affects in marketing, attachment toward brand and company, digital marketing, gamification, multichannel consumer behavior, avatars, adoption of new technologies, and consumer behavior in the digital world. She has published in international journals such as the Journal of Advertising, Journal of Retailing and Consumer Services, Information & Management, Technological Forecasting and Social Change, and Journal of Business Research.

Nancy M. Puccinelli is Professor of Marketing and Head of Division-Research at University of Bath, and Associate Fellow at Oxford University. Her research centers on consumer behavior focusing on affect, interpersonal communication, and psychological factors driving customer retail behavior. Her research has been published in journals such as the Journal of Marketing, Journal of Retailing, and Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science. She serves on several editorial boards. Her ability to translate her research into meaningful recommendations to industry is demonstrated by her award-winning teaching as well as invitations to speak on national media broadcasts.

Zillur Rahman earned his Ph.D. at Aligarh Muslim University, India and is currently the Professor in the Department of Management Studies, Indian Institute of Technology Roorkee, India. Dr. Rahman has more than 20 years of experience in academia. His publications have appeared in reputed international journals, including the Journal of Cleaner Production, Journal of Services Marketing, Telematics and Informatics, International Journal of Information Management, and Management Decision, among others.

He was the recipient of the Emerald Literati Club Highly Commended Award in 2004, Emerald/AIMA research fund award in 2009, and Highly Commended Paper in Emerald Literati Network Awards for Excellence, 2016/2018.

Otto Regalado-Pezúa is Associate Professor of ESAN Graduate School of Business, Universidad ESAN. Doctor in Management of Organizations from the Université de Nice – Sophia Antipolis, Nice, France; Master in Quantitative Marketing from the Université Pierre Mendes France, Grenoble, France; Master in Business Administration from Universidad ESAN and a degree in Administrative Sciences from the Universidad de Lima.

Anne L. Roggeveen is the Charles Clarke Reynolds Professor of Retailing and Marketing at Babson College. She serves on the American Marketing Association's Academic Council and is co-editor for the Journal of Retailing. Her research interests are in the areas of retailing and pricing. Her research has been widely published including in the Journal of Marketing, Journal of Marketing Research, Journal of Consumer Research, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Consumer Psychology, and Journal of Retailing. She has won numerous awards for her research and teaching.

Blake Runnalls (Ph.D. Michigan State University). Dr. Runnalls' research interests include personal selling and sales management with a focus on sales training, organizational learning, and the customer–firm interface. Prior to earning his doctorate, he spent five years working in the corporate sector for companies such as Progressive Insurance, Credit Suisse, and General Electric. His dissertation titled “The impact of social networks on sale training transfer and performance” won the 2017 American Marketing Association Sales SIG Doctoral Dissertation Proposal competition. Dr. Runnalls also won the 2017 Organizational Frontlines Research Young Scholar Research Competition.

Ko de Ruyter is Professor of Marketing at King's College Business School in London and Adjunct Professor of Marketing at UNSW Business School in Sydney. His research focuses on customer loyalty, marketing strategy and the digital transformation of the organizational frontline. He has published widely in flagship academic business journals, such as the Journal of Marketing, the Journal of Consumer Research, and Management Science. Professor de Ruyter has been awarded a life-time achievement by the American Marketing Association. He is passionate about the practical relevance of his research and its value for businesses and their customers.

Thomas P. Scholdra is a Doctoral Candidate in Marketing at the University of Bremen, Germany. His primary research interests lie in consumer behavior over the business cycle and digital marketing. His work has been presented at conferences such as the ISMS Marketing Science Conference and the Marketing Dynamics Conference. He received a Master's degree in Marketing and Channel Management from the University of Goettingen, Germany and at the Turku School of Economics, Finland. He gained practical experience with internships in leading FMCG companies.

Elisa B. Schweiger is a Ph.D. candidate conducting research at the University of Bath (UK) and a visiting scholar at Babson College (US). Her research interests focus on the areas of multisensory marketing and pricing in retail environments. She combines insights from psychology, consumer behavior, and retailing to study how sensory marketing impacts decision making. Her main teaching activities lie in consumer psychology, consumer behavior, and research methods. Her research is supported through numerous awards (e.g. Santander Mobility Award) and scholarships (GRS and URSA Graduate Scholarships).

Njål Sivertstøl holds a Ph.D. from the Norwegian School of Economics (NHH). He is currently working as user experience researcher for Sopra Steria and has previously held positions, including Research Scientist at Telenor, User Experience Researcher at Telenor Digital, and Assistant Professor at NHH. He conducts applied and academic research on digital customer experience, customer co-creation and engagement in online communities, and customer behavior across different cultures. He also lectures and gives presentations at universities and business conferences.

Dale Smith is CEO of Capri Hospital in Auckland, New Zealand. He has 20 years of experience in managerial roles as well as working with clients and is a government-registered social worker. His research interest is in stakeholder engagement in health organizations. His work to date has been published in the Journal of Services Marketing.

David E. Sprott is Dean and Professor at the College of Business at the University of Wyoming. Dr. Sprott served on faculty at Washington State University for over two decades and is also on faculty at the University of St Gallen in Switzerland. He received his Bachelor's and MBA from Kent State University and a Ph.D. in Marketing from the University of South Carolina. Professor Sprott's research interests include retailing, branding, influence strategies, and marketing public policy. His research has been published in journals such as the Journal of Consumer Research, Journal of Marketing, and Journal of Marketing Research.

Sandra Streukens obtained her Ph.D. in Marketing (2005) from Maastricht University. Currently, she is an Associate Professor at the Department of Marketing and Strategy at Hasselt University. Her main research interests include return on marketing, customer engagement through gamification, service employee management, and PLS-SEM. Her work has been published in various journals such as the Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Service Research, European Management Journal, Industrial Marketing Management, and Long Range Planning. Her teaching activities focus on quantitative research methods in business and marketing.

Takashi Taguchi is Professor of Business Administration at Ibaraki Christian University (Japan), specializing in marketing and consumer behavior. His professional experience includes the roles of business consultant, corporate executive, and educator. His research focuses are on customer engagement, experience, and value co-creation, and S-D logic. He is a graduate of Meiji University Graduate School of Commerce in Tokyo, Japan.

Jay Turkington is a former Masters in Marketing student at the Curtin Business School, Curtin University. He also has a Bachelor of Arts with a double major in digital design and screen arts. He is the Digital Marketing Coordinator for a major property development company in Australia. The primary purpose of the position is to support the national marketing team as a central digital resource.

Sven Tuzovic is Senior Lecturer in Marketing at QUT Business School. Previously, he was tenured Associate Professor at Pacific Lutheran University (2007–2015). In addition, he was Visiting Professor at Griffith University, Murray State University, and the University of New Orleans. His research focuses on services marketing, customer loyalty and wearable technology. Dr. Tuzovic has published in the Journal of Services Marketing, Journal of Service Management, Journal of Retailing and Consumer Services, and Business Horizons. He serves as Associate Editor of the Journal of Services Marketing and on the Editorial Review Board for the Journal of Business Research, Journal of Service Theory and Practice, and TQM Journal. He has won two Best Paper Awards and a Faculty Research Award at Pacific Lutheran University.

Jamid Ul Islam is Assistant Professor at Prince Sultan University, Saudi Arabia. His work to date, which has centered on customer–consumer engagement, is published in journals including Management Decision, Internet Research, Telematics and Informatics, and Marketing Intelligence and Planning, among others. His areas of interest are customer engagement, online brand communities, social networks, and consumer behavior.

Allard van Riel obtained a Ph.D. in Service Innovation Management (2003) from Maastricht University in the Netherlands. In the past, he worked at Maastricht University, the University of Liege, and Radboud University (Nijmegen). Since 2018, he works as a full professor of Service Innovation Management at Hasselt University in Belgium. He teaches service and service research related courses. His research focus is on how service users experience innovative healthcare, education, public and commercial services. In his research, he uses mixed methods to investigate the user experience in technology-mediated service environments and to link this experience to service design choices.

Katrien Verleye is Assistant Professor in Service Innovation in the Center for Service Intelligence, Ghent University (Belgium). Her research centers on service innovation, with a special focus on engagement, networks/ecosystems, and technologization. Her research has been published in – among others – Journal of Service Research, Journal of Service Management, and Journal of Service Theory and Practice.

Nicholas Vijverman is researcher in the Technology and Operations Management Area at Vlerick Business School and also affiliated with the Center for Service Intelligence at Ghent University. His research centers on circular economy, Industry 4.0 and technology-enabled platforms.

Vijay Viswanathan is Associate Professor and Department Chair for IMC at Northwestern University. His research focuses on consumer decision making, especially in the realm of branding, pricing, cross-media consumption and social influence. His research has important implications for the economic impact of managerial decisions related to brand architecture, loyalty programs, consumer engagement and omnichannel strategy. He uses a wide array of research methods, ranging from designing and analyzing surveys to developing sophisticated quantitative models to maximize the ROI of various marketing actions. His work spans a broad range of industries such as automobile, chemical and pharmaceutical, e-commerce, entertainment, financial services, luxury, media and retail. He teaches courses related to marketing research, marketing management and integrated marketing communications across various programs and has been recognized as one of the Top 100 faculty and staff at Northwestern.

Shiri Vivek, Ph.D. (University of Alabama), is Professor of Marketing and Supply Chain Management, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, MI. Dr. Vivek has published several research articles in the areas of customer engagement, outsourcing, supplier alliances, and related areas. Dr. Vivek has published over 40 research articles in journals across the world. These include the Journal of Operations Management, International Marketing

Review, Journal of the Marketing Theory and Practice, Journal of World Business, and Journal of Services Research, among others.

Clay Voorhees (Ph.D. Florida State University). Dr. Voorhees' research focuses on the explanation and management of the dynamics of social exchange and social influence. Within this theoretical umbrella, he focuses on projects related to customer experience management and relationship marketing, often in service contexts. In 2016, Clay received the "Best Services Marketing Article" award from the American Marketing Association. His research has been published in the Journal of Marketing, Journal of Marketing Research, Journal of the Academy of Science, Strategic Management Journal, Journal of Retailing, Journal of Service Research, among others.

Welf H. Weiger is Assistant Professor of Digital Marketing at the University of Goettingen, Germany, where he earned his Ph.D. His research interests lie primarily in social media marketing, customer engagement, and gamification. Among others, his work was presented at conferences such as the ISMS Marketing Science Conference and AMA Academic Conferences. His work has been published in the Journal of the Association for Consumer Research, Journal of Service Management, and HICSS Proceedings. He received various awards for academic achievements, including a Best Paper Award of the American Marketing Association.

Jochen Wirtz is Vice Dean, Graduate Studies and Professor of Marketing at the NUS Business School, National University of Singapore. Dr. Wirtz has published over 200 academic articles, book chapters and industry reports, including five features in Harvard Business Review. His books include Services Marketing: People, Technology, Strategy (World Scientific, 8th edition, 2016), Essentials in Services Marketing (Pearson Education, 3rd edition, 2018), and Winning in Service Markets (World Scientific, 2017). For free downloads of his recent work and selected book chapters see www.JochenWirtz.com, and follow his work on LinkedIn (<https://www.linkedin.com/in/jochenwirtz>).

