Contributors

Taco Brandsen is Professor of Comparative Public Administration at Radboud University Nijmegen, the Netherlands; Secretary-General of the European Association for Public Administration Accreditation (EAPAA); and Editor-in-Chief of the journal Voluntas: International Journal of Voluntary and Nonprofit Organizations. His research has focused on the co-production of citizens in the delivery of services, social innovation, the interplay of third sector and the state, and the governance of social services, in areas such as education, housing and healthcare.

Gene A. Brewer is a longtime faculty member in the Department of Public Administration and Policy at the University of Georgia School of Public and International Affairs in the USA. He is also a Visiting Professor at Utrecht University in the Netherlands; Research Fellow at the Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium; Professor of Global Public Administration at the Georgian Institute of Public Affairs in Tbilisi, Georgia; and a Fulbright Specialist for the US Department of State. Professor Brewer has more than 40 years of work experience in the public and nonprofit sectors and regularly lectures, consults and conducts research in the US and abroad on a wide range of topics spanning public administration, management and the policy process. He is an internationally recognised public management scholar and current partner/science advisor on several large multi-year research projects in the US, the UK, continental Europe and East Asia.

Wolfgang Drechsler is Professor of Governance at Tallinn University of Technology’s Ragnar Nurkse Department, Estonia, as well as an Associate at Harvard University’s Davis Center, USA. In civil service, he has been Advisor to the President of Estonia, Executive Secretary with the German Wissenschaftsrat during reunification, and, as an American Political Science Association (APSA) Congressional Fellow, Senior Legislative Analyst in the United States Congress. His areas of interest include public administration, technology and innovation; non-Western public administration; and public management reform generally.

Patrick Dunleavy is Professor of Political Science and Public Policy at the London School of Economics and Political Science, UK. He has published widely in many associated fields and is a major research contributor in public choice theory, electoral systems, voting behaviour, government structures and institutional analysis, new public management and globalisation, urban politics and political sociology.

Claire A. Dunlop is Professor of Politics and Public Policy at the University of Exeter, UK. A public policy and administration scholar, Claire's main fields of interest include the politics of expertise and knowledge utilisation; epistemic communities and advisory politics; risk governance; policy learning and analysis; impact assessment; and policy narratives. She explores these conceptual interests at the UK and EU levels principally, and most frequently in relation to agricultural, environmental and LGBT (lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender) issues. Claire has published more than 40 peer-reviewed journal articles and book chapters – most recently in Policy and Politics, Policy Sciences, International Public Management Journal, Regulation and Governance and the Journal of European Public Policy. She is editor of Public Policy and Administration. Her recent co-edited volume (with Claudio M. Radaelli and Philipp Trein) is on Learning in Public Policy: Analysis, Modes and Outcome (Basingstoke: Palgrave, 2018).

Mark Evans, PhD, is the Director of Democracy 2025 at the Museum of Australian Democracy in Canberra, which has been established to help bridge the trust deficit between government and citizen in Australia. He is also Professor of Governance in the Institute for Governance at the University of Canberra and Editor of the international journal Policy Studies. His research focuses on the study and practice of democratic governance. Mark has consulted on change governance processes in Afghanistan, Australia, Brazil, China, Indonesia and the United Kingdom (among others) and for the European Union, the United Nations Development Programme and the World Bank. His most recent works include Evidence-Based Policy Making and the Social Sciences: Methods that Matter (Bristol: Policy Press, 2016) and Trust and Democracy in Australia (forthcoming), both with Gerry Stoker.

Max Halupka is an expert on contemporary forms of political participation, where he specialises in the relationship between technology and politics. An Institute of Government and Public Affairs Research Fellow, Max has published work on: political communication, new forms of political participation, internet activism, and the Church of Scientology. Max teaches public policy for the Institute’s Graduate Certificate and Master of Public Administration programmes.

Pan Suk Kim is Professor of Public Administration in the College of Government and Business at Yonsei University, South Korea. He is a Fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration in the USA. He was the Minister of Personnel Management of the Republic of Korea from July 2017 to December 2018. He was the President of the International Institute of Administrative Sciences (IIAS) in 2010–2013 and the Asian Association for Public Administration (AAPA) in 2014–2017.

Sabine Kuhlmann is Professor of Public Administration and Organization at the University of Potsdam in Germany. She also is the Vice-Chair of the German National Regulatory Control Council at the German Federal Chancellery and she serves as the Vice-President for Western Europe of the (International Institute of Administrative Sciences, European Group for Public Administration) and the Vice-President of the European Group for Public Administration (EGPA). She is also deputy editor of the International Review of Administrative Sciences. She has published in Public Administration Review, International Review of Administrative Sciences, Public Management Review and Public Administration, among other...

G. Zhiyong Lan is Professor of Public Administration at Tsinghua University, China, and at Arizona State University, USA. He has published a large number of monographs, newspaper articles, research reports and academic papers, and serves on editorial boards of a dozen English and Chinese academic journals. He is engaged in working with governmental bodies at a range of levels.

Carmel McGregor, PSM, is an Adjunct Professor with the Institute of Governance and Policy Analysis at the University of Canberra, Australia. She was formerly a Deputy Secretary in the Department of Defence and the Australian Public Service Commission. She is a member of the Australian Human Resources Institute (AHRI) Board and deputy president of the Institute of Public Administration Australia (IPAA), Australian Capital Territory. She is also a private consultant specialising in organisational reviews, culture, leadership and human resources.

Andrew Massey is Professor of Politics at the University of Exeter, UK. He has published widely in the fields of comparative public administration and public policy. He has been a visiting professor and academic in various countries and has advised public sector organisations with regard to a range of issues of change and reform. He was for a time seconded to the UK civil service. He is currently Editor-in-Chief of the International Review of Administrative Sciences and also of Public Money and Management. He is a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences in the UK.

Christopher Pollitt was Emeritus Professor at the Public Governance Institute, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium. He undertook consultancy and advice work for a wide variety of organisations, including the European Commission, the Organisation of Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), the World Bank, HM Treasury and five national governments. Christopher was author of more than 60 refereed scientific articles and many scholarly books. His Public Management Reform: A Comparative Analysis has become a standard text internationally, with more than 6000 scholarly citations to date (4th edn, Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2017, co-authored with Geert Bouckaert). He was winner of the 2004 Hans Sigrist International Prize, and was one of a small number of Europeans who are Fellows of the US National Academy of Public Administration.

Claudio M. Radaelli is Professor of Public Policy, University College London, UK. A comparative policy analyst, Claudio has published 80 articles and written or edited 18 books and special issues of academic journals. His main interests lie in the theory of policy learning, regulatory accountability, impact assessment, Europeanisation and research design. His recent co-edited volume (with Claire A. Dunlop and Philipp Trein) is on Learning in Public Policy: Analysis, Modes and Outcome (Basingstoke: Palgrave, 2018).

Tiina Randma-Liiv is Professor of Public Policy at Tallinn University of Technology, Estonia, where she currently also acts as Vice-Dean for Research of the Faculty of Business and Governance. Her research interests include the impact of fiscal crisis on public administration, transitional public administration, civil service reforms, policy transfer and small states. She has published in Public Administration Review, International Review of Administrative Sciences, Public Management Review, and American Review of Public Administration.

R.A.W. Rhodes is Professor of Government (Research) at the University of Southampton, UK and Adjunct Professor, Centre for Governance and Public Policy, Griffith University, Queensland, Australia. He is the author or editor of 42 books including, most recently, Networks, Governance and the Differentiated Polity: Selected Essays, vol. I (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2017), Interpretive Political Science: Selected Essays, vol. II (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2017) and the Routledge Handbook of Interpretive Political Science (Abingdon/New York: Routledge, 2015, with Mark Bevir). He is a Fellow of the Academy of the Social Sciences, Australia, and a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences, UK. In 2015, the European Consortium for Political Research awarded him their biennial Lifetime Achievement Award for his ‘outstanding contribution to all areas of political science, and the exceptional impact of his work’.

Külli Sarapuu is Associate Professor at Tallinn University of Technology, Estonia. Her research interests include public sector coordination, governance of public organisations, civil service and public administration in small states. Her current research focuses on public sector collaboration and the capacity of governments to address complex policy problems. She has published in Public Management Review, International Review of Administrative Sciences and International Journal of Public Administration.

Trui Steen is Professor of Public Governance and Co-production of Public Services at KU Leuven Public Governance Institute, Belgium. She is co-chair of the IIAS Study Group on ‘Co-production of Public Services’. She is co-editor of Co-Production and Co-Creation: Engaging Citizens in Public Services (New York: Routledge, 2018) and published in various academic journals, including Public Administration, Public Management Review, American Review of Public Administration, International Review of Administrative Sciences, Local Government Studies and Review of Public Personnel Administration.

Bram Verschuere is Associate Professor of Public Administration and Management in the Faculty of Economics and Business Administration at Ghent University, Belgium. He is co-chair of the EGPA Study Group on ‘Civil Society, Citizens and Government’. He is co-editor of Co-Production and Co-Creation: Engaging Citizens in Public Services (New York: Routledge, 2018) and published in various academic journals, including Voluntas, Public Management Review, Nonprofit and Voluntary Sector Quarterly, International Review of Administrative Sciences, Local Government Studies and Administration & Society.

David Walker is Contributing Editor, Guardian Public. A former member of the Economic and Social Research Council, he chairs Understanding Society, the UK longitudinal panel study, and is on the editorial advisory board of Public Money & Management. His books include Sources Close to the Prime Minister (with Peter Hennessy and Michael Cockerell), The Times Guide to the New British State, Municipal Empire, Media Made in California (with Jeremy Tunstall) and, with Polly Toynbee, Dismembered: How the Attack on the State Harms Us All and The Verdict: Did Labour Change Britain?
This book is dedicated to our friend and colleague Christopher Pollitt. Christopher passed away while this publication was in production. He was an outstanding scholar of his generation, who contributed immensely to our discipline. But he was much more than that, he was a kind and gentle man who contributed greatly to the world in which we live.