

Contributors

Lucila de Almeida is a Research Associate and Scientific Coordinator of the Online Executive Training on Regulatory Delivery at the Florence School of Regulation Energy & Climate, Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies, European University Institute. She joined the University of Helsinki in January 2017 as a postdoctoral researcher the External Dimension of the European Private Law Project (the FiDiPro), where she is also Lecturer in the LLM Internal Business Law, faculty member of the multidisciplinary center on sustainability science HELSUS, and collaborator in the InterTran Research Group for Sustainable Law and Business.

Christoph Busch is Professor of Law at the University of Osnabrück. He is a Council member of the European Law Institute (ELI), codirector of the ELI Digital Law Group and a member of the European Commission's Expert Group to the Observatory on the Online Platform Economy. His research focuses on digital platforms, standardization of services and personalized law. He is principal investigator of the research project 'Granular Society – Granular Law? Individuality and Normative Models in the Data Society' funded by the Volkswagen Foundation under a 'Momentum' grant (2019–24).

Marta Cantero Gamito is Assistant Professor of Law at CUNEF (Colegio Universitario de Estudios Financieros, Madrid) and part-time Associate Professor in IT Law at the University of Tartu. Prior to that, she was postdoctoral researcher at the University of Helsinki and Research Associate at the FiDiPro Project on the External Dimension of European Private Law, funded by the Academy of Finland (2015–18). She has taught European Union Law at the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). She obtained her PhD at the European University Institute (Florence), where she was also Research Associate an ERC-funded project on European Regulatory Private Law.

María Paz de la Cuesta de los Mozos is a PhD Candidate at the European University Institute. Her thesis discusses the legal definition of small businesses within the context of global value chains with a special focus on the European private law perspective. Some of her other research interests include behavioural perspectives into EU competition law, transnational legal theory and EU law in general. Recently, she has combined her academic interest in EU law with professional experience as an intern at the Court of Justice of the European Union.

Rob van Gestel is Professor of Law at Tilburg University. He was visiting professor at the academy of legal theory of the KU Brussels, professor of methodology of legal research at Leuven University, and Braudel fellow of the European University Institute in Florence, chairman of the Dutch Association of Legislation and member of the International Association of Legislation. Currently Van Gestel is director of the Tilburg Institute for Private Law. Van Gestel has published articles in the European Law Journal, Common Market Law Review, European Public Law, Cambridge International Law Journal, Legal Studies etc. His latest book is titled: In the court we trust. Cooperation, Coordination and Collaboration between the ECJ and Supreme Administrative Courts (Cambridge University Press 2019).

Teemu Juutilainen is Assistant Professor in Property and Financial Law at the University of Turku, Finland. At the University of Helsinki, Finland, he is Postdoctoral Researcher in the project 'The External Dimension of European Private Law'.

Peter van Lochem is a jurist and sociologist. He is the former director of the Academy for Legislation and the Academy of Government Lawyers. Currently he is Meijers Fellow at Leiden Law School and Associate Senior Researcher at Crisislab.

Antonio Marcacci has been Compliance Senior Associate in a leading European GSIB (Global Systemically Important Bank) since 2013. He is interested in the interface between academic research and professional banking and finance. He was awarded a PhD in Law by the European University Institute (EUI), Florence. During his PhD, Antonio interned at the World Bank in Washington, DC and was a visiting fellow at the Faculty of Law of Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin (Germany) and at the Law School of the University of Wisconsin-Madison (United States). Besides conducting professional training, he teaches EU and US Banking and Financial Law at the University of Passau (Germany) and at the University of Leipzig (Germany).

Mislav Mataija, LL.M. (Columbia Law School), PhD (EUI, Florence), is a member of the Legal Service of the European Commission, WTO & Trade Policy Team and a visiting professor at Sciences Po School of Public Affairs, Paris. As a member of the Commission's Legal Service, he litigates World Trade Organization disputes on behalf of the European Union and advises the European Commission on trade law matters. He also represents the European Commission in litigation before the European Court of Justice in various areas of European Union law. He published a monograph based on his PhD research, entitled Private Regulation and the Internal Market: Sports, Legal Services, and Standard Setting in EU Economic Law, with Oxford University Press in 2016. Prior to Sciences Po, he taught at the Catholic Universities of Lille and Lyon, worked as a researcher at the European University Institute Centre for Judicial Cooperation, and for a number of years as a lecturer at the Jean Monnet Department of European Public Law at the University of Zagreb. He was also a visiting professor at Columbia Law School.

Hans-W. Micklitz is Professor for Economic Law at the European University Institute, Florence. He is the Finland Distinguished Professor at the University of Helsinki, 2015–20 and Head of the Institute of European and Consumer Law (VIEW) in Bamberg. He has held consultancies at OECD, UNEP and CI (Consumers International). Hans-W Micklitz was a visiting professor at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and at the Somerville College at the University of Oxford.

Kinanya Pijl is a PhD researcher in law at the European University Institute, exploring under what circumstances commercial banks in Europe can bank responsibly. Kinanya was part of a team that has conducted a study on increasing leverage for responsible business conduct in service of the parties to the Dutch Banking Sector Agreement on Human Rights. In addition, Kinanya works for the consultancy firm Principia Advisory on improving organizational ethics in a large bank.

Gerald Spindler is a full tenured Professor for Civil Law, Commercial and Economic Law, Comparative Law, Multimedia and Telecommunication Law at the University of Goettingen/Germany, where, among other topics, he is mainly occupied with legal issues regarding e-commerce, such as internet and telecommunication law. He was elected as a full tenured Member of the German Academy of Sciences, Goettingen, 2004. Apart from teaching, various books and commentaries, more than 300 articles in law reviews and expert legal opinions have been published by Professor Spindler. He has been elected as general rapporteur for the bi-annual German Law Conference regarding privacy and personality rights on the Internet. He is editor of two of the most renowned German law reviews covering the whole area of cyberspace law and telecommunication law as well as coeditor of various international journals on copyright law, and also founder and editor of JIPITEC, an open access-based journal for intellectual property rights and E-Commerce. The EU commissioned him to review the E-Commerce Directive in 2007 and as an expert for data economy for the single market (2017). In June 2018 he was appointed as High Level Expert for legal issues of artificial intelligence, namely liability. Regarding data protection, Prof. Dr Spindler was involved in the negotiations on the General Data Protection Regulation as an external consultant for the German government.

Rodrigo Vallejo is a PhD candidate at the Department of Law, European University Institute, Florence. He holds a Bachelor in Law (LLB), summa cum laude, from Universidad de Chile. As a Fulbright fellow, he completed a Masters of Laws (LLM) in legal theory at New York University, where he collaborated with the Global Administrative Law programme at the Institute of International Law & Justice as an affiliated researcher. Rodrigo joined the European University Institute after being granted the Hans Kelsen doctoral fellowship in law.

Paul Verbruggen, PhD (EUI, Florence), is Associate Professor of Private Law at Tilburg University. He writes on the design and operation of regulatory regimes (both public and private), focusing on questions of legitimacy, accountability and enforcement. His research interests concern comparative private law, EU law, regulatory policy and risk regulation. Dr. Verbruggen has held visiting positions in Oxford and London (LSE) and is a NWO-Veni grant laureate (2017–20). His work on regulation concerns the broad field of product safety and has appeared in the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, European Law Review and Regulation & Governance. He is the author of the monograph Enforcing Transnational Private Regulation: A Comparative Analysis of Advertising and Food Safety (2014) and (co-)editor of the collections Hybridization of Food Governance: Trends, Types and Results (2017) and Regulating Private Regulators: Understanding the Role of Private Law (2019).

Barbara Warwas currently works as Lector (Professor of Practice) at The Hague University of Applied Sciences (THUAS). Barbara is also Lecturer in Arbitration and Coordinator of the Minor in Dispute Resolution at the LAW Programme at THUAS. Barbara is the author of The Liability of Arbitral Institutions: Legitimacy Challenges and Functional Responses (Springer, 2016). In 2014 she worked as a drafter, researcher and administrator for the groundbreaking study on the Legal Instruments and Practices of Arbitration in the EU and Switzerland, commissioned by the European Parliament. Barbara has a PhD in Law from the European University Institute. Prior to The Hague University, Barbara worked as Visiting Counsel in the litigation department at GE Oil & Gas in Florence and at the Italian law firm Studio Legale Calabresi Guadalupi.