

Figures

1.1	A framework for programs, policies and practices for high-growth women's entrepreneurship	5
2.1	Distribution of enterprises by age, since their establishment (in months)	18
2.2	Kernel density estimate of sales and start-up capital among new business owners	19
3.1	Formal mechanism for female entrepreneurship	43
3.2	Informal mechanism for knowledge management in female entrepreneurship	44
3.3	Female entrepreneurship process in the PSA	46
4.1	Preliminary desktop mapping of supports for enterprising women in Melbourne	63
4.2	Refined map of supports for enterprising women in Melbourne	64
4.3	Preliminary desktop mapping of supports for enterprising women in North West Tasmania	67
4.4	Refined map of supports for enterprising women in North West Tasmania	68
5.1	Gender-specific development of full-time and part-time workforce participation in Australia	85
5.2	Gender composition and pay gaps in Australian industries, 2017	87
5.3	Female share of workforce across STEM-heavy industries and seniority levels in 2017	88
5.4	Development of female representation in tertiary education completions in STEM and medicine fields	89

5.5	Female entrepreneurship participation in G20 countries	91
5.6	Gender representation by student enrolments and academic level in STEM, Australia 2014	93
5.7	Number of start-up companies created from universities	94
6.1	Interaction between labor market regulations and gender on five-year job-growth aspirations	121
6.2	Interaction between credit market regulations and gender on five-year job-growth aspirations	122
6.3	Interaction between business regulations and gender on five-year job-growth aspirations	123
7.1	Conceptual research model	139
8.1	Probability of women's debt usage at the three different levels of policy awareness	172
9.1	A framework for programs, policies and practices for high-growth women's entrepreneurship	185