

Preface

This volume contains 11 cutting-edge essays by leading legal scholars and philosophers to explore the transformations of jurisprudence in a globalized world. These essays offer a wide variety of views and stimulating debate on jurisprudence's three central issues: meta-jurisprudential questions about modifications of legal methodological approaches spurred by globalization, analytical inquiries about the concept of law in a globalized context and the conceptual tools required to account for putative new forms of legal phenomena, and normative or politico-moral issues relating to the legitimacy and democratic character of these legal orders. The Introduction sets the stage by justifying this division and providing a summary of the chapters. We hope that this volume helps to shape the agenda for future research in transnational and global legal theory.

This project would not have been possible without the support of Research Project 'Filosofía del Derecho Contemporánea' of Grupo de Investigaciones Sociales y Jurídicas del Programa de Derecho of Fundación Universitaria Tecnológico Comfenalco-Cartagena. I would like to thank the Universidad de Cartagena and the Fundación Universitaria Tecnológico Comfenalco-Cartagena in Cartagena de Indias (Colombia) for funding and hosting a meeting to discuss the papers. Yezid Carrillo, Sally Barón, María Fernanda Nova, Luis Fernando Bermeo, Claudia Ibañez, and Yucelis Garrido deserve special mention for their logistical support. In addition to the contributors, Brian Collins, Carlos Galvez, Jose Luis García Guerrero, Matthias Goldmann, Lando Kirchmair, Ralf Michaels, Catherine Valcke, and Neil Walker participated in this meeting and contributed to the discussion of papers. Enrique Caceres Nieto supported a follow-up session in November 2016 under the auspices of the Institute of Legal Research of the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México and the Society Emerging Paradigms in Law and Legal Theory. I am also grateful to Stephen Gutierrez, Saffron Watts and Kaitlin Gray for their superb editorial support. Last, but not least, special thanks are owed to all of the contributors for their patience and forbearance during the editorial process.
