Contents

About the editors ix
List of contributors xii

1 What we wish we had known: lessons learned to keep your doctorate on track
Rebecca Loudoun, Emily A. Morrison, Mark N.K. Saunders and Keith Townsend

PART I GETTING INTO IT

2 Choosing your topic: a supervisor perspective
Jimmy Donaghey

3 ‘Begin at the beginning’: identifying ideas for a PhD
Graeme Dobson

4 ‘I want to do it because I want to do it’: boarding flight PhD
Jemma J. Saunders

5 Asking “the” question
Emily McDonald

6 Whose doctorate is it anyway? How students and supervisors can work well together
Carol Atkinson and Keith Townsend

7 When an orchestra misses its harmony (or how I learnt to work with my supervisors)
Mai Khanh Tran

8 ‘How much time do I get??????’
Peter J. Jordan

9 Views from the top and views of the valley: the paths of dissertation literature reviews
Maria Cseh

10 Critically reviewing the literature: the ghosts of literature present, past and future
Linzi McKerr
Reading academic papers: visiting and re-visiting old friends
Jennifer Robinson
74
Research philosophies and why they matter
Natasha S. Mauthner
76
Getting your research philosophy clear
Rosanna Cole
87
Changing philosophy (aka the only PhD is a finished PhD)
Brian Harney
95
Designing and conducting a quantitative study: lessons learned from work, home, and school
Kim Nimon
97
Strategies for analysing qualitative data: how to get started with making sense of all that material you’ve collected
Anette Hallin
107
Discovering statistics and developing a quantitative research design
Ursula Furnier
117
Mirror, Mirror, on the wall, how am I making sense of it all?
Merrel Knox
125
Too much of a good thing – tradeoffs between training and completion?
Keith Townsend
135

PART II GETTING ON WITH IT

Critical feedback: transforming criticisms into indispensable insights
Emily A. Morrison
142
‘They think I’m stupid’: dealing with supervisor feedback
Amanda Lee
159
No book or resource has all the answers
Rebecca Loudoun
167
“Ok Google … since when did you join my supervision team?”
Adam Robertson
169
Embracing research ethics: from cognitive walk-through to reflexive journey
Rebecca Whiting
171
Gaining ethical approval
Nora Pillard Reynolds
182
PART III GETTING IT FINISHED AND MOVING ON

42 Eat, sleep, redraft, repeat
   Ana Lobo

43 Challenges in writing up qualitative findings
   Victor Oyaro Gekara

44 The power to write
   Melika Shirmohammadi

45 Writing your thesis quickly and well
   Tara Gray

46 Rewriting and overcoming writer’s block
   Grace Henry

47 Overcoming writer’s block (and submission anxiety)
   Fiona Archontoulis

48 The final mile: avoiding and overcoming viva trip-ups
   Dawn C. Duke

49 My viva voce examination: a rollercoaster!
   Zeineb Djebali

50 Let me defend myself (or at least my thesis)
   Qian Yi Lee

51 Networking with academics to solve your PhD puzzle
   Adam Robertson

52 Are conferences worth attending as a graduate student?
   Reflections and lessons from a former graduate student
   Tomika W. Greer

53 A tale of three dissertations: experiences of transforming mentored research into an article
   Jamie Callahan

54 How can you publish from your dissertation?
   Katherine Rosenbusch

55 Publishing from your thesis
   Dennis Nickson

56 Getting the first academic job
   Oliver S. Crocco

57 Beyond the doctorate: getting your first job
   Holly Prescott

58 Publications, what publications?
   Mark N.K. Saunders

59 Balancing act
   Polly Watson Black

Index