Contributors

Philip Alston is the John Norton Pomeroy Professor at New York University School of Law. From 2014 to 2020 he was United Nations Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights. Prior to that he was Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial executions (2004–10) and Chairperson of the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (1991–98).

Natalia Ángel-Cabo is a Professor of Law at Universidad de los Andes (Bogotá, Colombia) and Chief editor of Latin American Law Review. Professor Ángel-Cabo has been Deputy Justice of the Colombian Constitutional Court, founder and former director of the Action Program for Equality and Social Inclusion – PAIIS, and consultant in various human rights projects. In 2017 she was nominated as a candidate for Magistrate of the Colombian Constitutional Court and currently serves the Court as Associate Justice.

Sumudu Atapattu, LLM, PhD (Cambridge), Attorney-at-Law (Sri Lanka) is the Director of Research Centers and International Programs at the University of Wisconsin Law School and the Executive Director of the Human Rights Program. She serves as the Lead Counsel for Human Rights at the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law and is affiliated faculty at the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law, Sweden. She has published extensively on environmental rights, climate change and human rights, and sustainable development.

Antonio Barboza-Vergara holds a Masters in Political Science from Universidad de Antioquia, a Masters and a PhD in Law from Universidad Pompeu Fabra (Barcelona, Spain). He is an Assistant Professor of Constitutional Law at Universidad EAFIT School of Law in Medellin, Colombia. His areas of research include judicial review and social and economic rights, theories of justice and public health.

Simona Barbu is a human rights activist and researcher who has specialized in working with Roma communities in Romania, as well as across Europe. She has experience with academic ethnographic research, holding an MA in Anthropology of Education and Globalization (Aarhus University, Denmark) and from working as a research assistant at the University of Copenhagen. She works to defend and realize Roma rights, by contributing to reports and articles for organizations such as the RomArchive or Central European University (the Roma Civil Monitor project).

Moritz Baumgärtel is an assistant professor at the School of Law of Utrecht University and University College Roosevelt. He is also the senior researcher at the NWO research project ‘Cities of Refuge’ and a fellow of the Netherlands Institute of Human Rights. Baumgärtel’s research concerns the human rights of vulnerable migrants such as refugees, asylum seekers and undocumented migrants. He is the author of Demanding Rights: Europe’s Supranational Courts and the Dilemma of Migrant Vulnerability (Cambridge University Press, 2019).
Alfred Lahai Gbabai Brownell Sr. is Associate Research Professor and Distinguished Scholar in Residence at the Program on Human Rights and the Global Economy, Northeastern University School of Law, the Inaugural IIE-SRF Beau Biden Scholar, Tom and Andi Bernstein Human Rights Fellow and a Visiting Research Scholar at the Yale University Law School and the 2019 Goldman Environmental Prize Winner for Africa.

Ayşe Buğra received her PhD in Economics from McGill University. She is currently an Emeritus Professor at Bogazici University and an affiliate of the Bogazici University Research Center Social Policy Forum, which she co-founded in 2004. She has taught and published in the areas of development studies, social policy, state-business relations and the socio-economic history of modern Turkey. She is currently working on the political context of economic and social policy and different dimensions of inequality.

Andrew Byrnes is Professor of International Law and Human Rights, Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales, Sydney, Australia, a research associate of the Australian Human Rights Institute and the UNSW Ageing Futures Institute. He was inaugural legal adviser to the Australian Parliamentary Joint Committee on Human Rights, has acted as adviser to the Asia Pacific Forum of National Human Rights Institutions and GANHRI and as a consultant to the UN OIHCHR and the UN Department of Economic and Social Affairs on the human rights of older persons.

Meghan Campbell is an Associate Professor at the University of Birmingham and Deputy Director of the Oxford Human Rights Hub. Her monograph, Women, Poverty, Equality: The Role of CEDAW (Hart 2018) was shortlisted for the Socio-Legal Scholars Association-Early Career Research Prize. She is the executive producer of the OxFHRH documentary series Shaping the Future which explores the role of human rights and the Sustainable Development Goals in achieving women and girls’ sexual and reproductive health rights.

Esteban Hoyos-Ceballos holds an LLM and a JSD from Cornell Law School. He is an Associate Professor of Constitutional Law at Universidad EAFIT School of Law in Medellin, Colombia. His areas of research include judicial review and social and economic rights, clinical legal education and public interest law.

Sophal Chea currently serves as a Team Leader – Assessment and Stakeholders Engagement for ILO/BFC. He is an LLD student for the Doctor of Law Programme at Pannasastra University of Cambodia. He has contributed to a number of articles including Labour Rights and Trade Union, Labour Rights in Cambodia, and Practical Challenges for Maternity Protection in the Cambodian Garment Industry. The viewpoints expressed in this chapter are of the author, which are not necessarily those of the ILO/BFC.

Martha F. Davis is University Distinguished Professor of Law at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts, where she is a faculty co-director of the Program on Human Rights and the Global Economy. Davis’s publications include Human Rights Advocacy in the United States (co-author) and Global Urban Justice: The Rise of Human Rights Cities (co-editor). She is co-editor of the Human Rights at Home Law Profs Blog and an affiliated scholar of the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law.

Olivier De Schutter is professor at UCLouvain and SciencesPo and the United Nations Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights. He was formerly the UN Special Rapporteur on the right to food (2008–14) and a member of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (2015–20).

Leilani Farha is the former United Nations Special Rapporteur on the right to housing and Global Director of The Shift, an international movement to secure the right to housing. She has helped develop global human rights standards on the right to housing, including through her reports on homelessness, the financialization of housing, and informal settlements. She has worked to advance the right to housing around the world, including in Egypt, India, Indonesia, Nigeria, Philippines, Portugal, South Korea, Spain, and Sweden.

Alejandro Fuentes is a Senior Researcher at the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law (Sweden). He received his PhD (in International Law) and LLM (in Comparative and European Legal Studies) from Trento University (Italy), and Law degree from the University of Córdoba (Argentina). He is a regular lecturer at the Master’s Programme in International Human Rights Law at the Faculty of Law, Lund University (Sweden), where he directs a course on human rights and cultural diversity.

Ása Gunnarsson serves as professor of tax law and jurisprudence at Umeå University. She has coordinated the Horizon2020 project Revisioning the ‘Fiscal EU’: Fair, Sustainable, and Coordinated Tax and Social Policies (FairTax). She has written extensively on tax policy and the law, tax fairness, the tax/benefit interface, gender equality and taxation, social citizenship and gender equality law. Her approach to legal scholarship is cross-disciplinary, comparative and socio-legal.

Mette Hartlev is Professor of Health Law, PhD, LLD at the Faculty of Law, University of Copenhagen, Denmark. Her research is focused on patients’ rights, health and human rights, health disparities, public health law and regulatory and ethical strategies to ensure a non-discriminatory implementation and application of new technologies (such as PM and big data) in the health care services. She has extensive experience in interdisciplinary and international research and is a co-editor of the European Journal of Health Law.

Lisa Hilbink (PhD, UC-San Diego) is Associate Professor of Political Science and a member of the Human Rights Faculty at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities. Her research addresses a wide range of issues related to the changing role of law and courts in polities around the world, with a particular focus on Latin America and Iberia. Her ongoing work focuses on the origins of public perceptions of judicial institutions and their consequences for access to justice in the Americas.

Karolina Miriam Januszewski is currently working as political advisor on foreign affairs, human rights and migration for The Greens at the Austrian Parliament. She is a Lecturer in general international, humanitarian and human rights law at the Vienna Master of Arts in Human Rights. Her research focus and publications address political theory and human rights, questions of governance, state agency and the role of non-state actors in international human rights law.

Eleni Karageorgiou is the Ragnar Söderberg Postdoctoral Fellow at Lund University, Faculty of Law and a research affiliate at the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law. Previously visiting at the Danish Institute for Human Rights and the Refugee Studies Centre at University of Oxford, Karageorgiou’s work on international refugee law and European migration law and policy has been published in the Oxford Handbook of International Refugee Law and the Nordic Journal of International Law.

Diana Kasdan is the director of US Judicial Strategy at the Center for Reproductive Rights, where she leads the Center’s work with scholars, advocates and the broader legal community to articulate and advance the constitutional doctrines, principles, and values that protect reproductive rights as human rights in the United States. Previously she was Senior Counsel and Director of Foundation Relations at the Brennan Center for Justice and Senior Attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union, Reproductive Freedom Project.

Risa E. Kaufman is the director of US Human Rights at the Center for Reproductive Rights, where she leads the Center’s efforts to integrate international human rights norms and strategies to advance reproductive rights as human rights in the United States. Previously, she was Executive Director of the Columbia Law School Human Rights Institute. She is a lecturer-in-law at Columbia Law School, where she teaches US human rights advocacy, and a co-founding board member of A Better Balance.

Zafer Kizilkaya holds a PhD in Political Science at Free University of Brussels (VUB). His research interests are in the field of Ethics in International Relations, Non-state armed groups and Middle Eastern studies. He is currently teaching Conflict Resolution at Vesalius College. He also has previous professional experience at NATO, covering the conflicts in Iraq and Syria and preparing regular reports on the political, economic and security developments in the Middle East.

Morten Kjaerum is Director of the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law, Lund, Sweden and Adjunct Professor at Aalborg University, Aalborg, Denmark. He was the first director of the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights, and Executive Director at the Danish Institute for Human Rights. He was member of the UN Committee on Elimination of Racial Discrimination from 2002–08. He is Chair of The Board of the European Council on Refugees and Exiles (ECRE) and Chairs the Board of Trustees for the UN Voluntary Fund for Technical Cooperation in the field of Human Rights appointed by the UN Secretary General. He is a frequent author on human rights issues.

Miloon Kothari is an independent expert on human rights and social policy based in New Delhi, India. He is President of UPR Info. He was the first Special Rapporteur on adequate housing with the UN Human Rights Council (2000–08). As Special Rapporteur he led the creation of the UN Basic Principles and Guidelines on Development-based Evictions and Displacement. From 2013–14 he was appointed Dr. Martin Luther King Visiting Scholar at MIT. In 2017 he received an honorary Doctor of Laws from Simon Fraser University.

Tally Kritzman-Amir is a Visiting Assistant Professor of Law in Boston University School of Law, a Visiting Associate Professor at Harvard University Department of Sociology, an Honorary Research Associate at the Hadassah Brandeis Institute and a Senior Lecturer at the College of Law and Business, Israel. She holds an LL.B and a PhD from Tel Aviv University School of Law.

Domingo A. Lovera-Parmo is the Associate Professor of Law at Universidad Diego Portales (Chile). He holds a PhD from Osgoode Hall Law School (2016) and LLM from Columbia University (2007, Human Rights Fellow – Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar). His research focuses on the right to protest and constitutional law, social rights and constitutional rights of children and adolescents. He teaches constitutional law at Universidad Diego Portales, where he is also a researcher for the Public Law Program.

Amanda Lyons, JD, is the Executive Director at the Human Rights Center at the University of Minnesota Law School, where she teaches on Poverty and Human Rights. Her research and advocacy work has focused on human rights and development, the human right to water and gender justice. Prior to joining the University she worked with human rights organizations in Brazil, Colombia, and the United States.

Gillian MacNaughton, JD, MPA, DPhil, is Associate Professor of Human Rights in the School for Global Inclusion and Social Development at the University of Massachusetts Boston. She works on economic and social rights and their relationship to equality rights, as well as human rights-based approaches to social justice. Her research has been funded by the World Health Organization and the Law and Society Association, and she has consulted for WHO, UNDP, UNICEF and the UN Special Rapporteur on the Right to Health.

Víctor Madrigal-Borloz (Costa Rica) is the UN Independent Expert on protection against violence and discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity and a senior visiting researcher at Harvard Law School’s Human Rights Program. He is the former Rapporteur on Reprisals for the UN Subcommittee on the Prevention of Torture. He previously led human rights work at the International Rehabilitation Council for Torture Victims, the Inter-American Commission and Court of Human Rights, and the Danish Institute for Human Rights.

Margareta (Magda) Matache is a justice activist and scholar, director of the FXB Center for Health and Human Rights’ Roma Program, and a Harvard instructor. In 2017, with Jacqueline Bhabha and Andrzej Mirga, she co-edited Realizing Roma Rights, a volume investigating anti-Roma racism in Europe. With Jacqueline Bhabha and Caroline Elkins, Matache co-edited Time for Reparations, a volume exploring the issue of reparations across a broad range of historical and geographic contexts.

Gay McDougall is Adjunct Professor at Fordham School of Law. She served for eight years on the UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination and six years as UN Special Rapporteur on minorities. She received a JD from Yale Law School and an LLM from the London School of Economics and Political Science and has Honorary Degrees from nine universities. She has taught at Georgetown University School of Law and Oxford University’s Masters of International Human Rights Law Program.

Khulekani Moyo is a Lecturer at the School of Law, University of the Witwatersrand. Khulekani received his doctoral degree in Public Law from Stellenbosch University, his LLM in Public International Law from the University of Oslo, and his LLB (Hons) from the University of Zimbabwe. Khulekani’s research interests include general international law, human rights law, business and human rights, constitutional law and regional integration law.

Hellen Mukiri-Smith is a barrister, and development and human rights specialist. She is currently a PhD Researcher on an ERC funded Global Data Justice project at Tilburg Law School, Tilburg University. She is researching governance, regulation and the impact of financial services technologies and biometric technologies in Kenya. She has an LLB from the University of Northampton, an LLM in Commercial and Corporate Law from King’s College London and an MSc in Development Studies from the London School of Economics.

Manfred Nowak is Professor of Human Rights at Vienna University, Secretary General of the Global Campus of Human Rights (a network of 100 universities, based in Venice) and Independent UN Expert leading the Global Study on Children Deprived of Liberty. His past UN expert functions related to enforced disappearances, torture (Special Rapporteur on torture) and a human rights-based approach to poverty reduction strategies. He held professorships at various universities and is author of more than 600 academic articles and books.

Gerard Quinn is the UN Special Rapporteur on the rights of persons with disabilities. He was the founding director of the Centre for Disability Law & Policy at the National University of Ireland and now holds the Wallenberg Chair at the Raoul Wallenberg Institute and a research chair at the University of Leeds. He has authored studies for the UN OHCHR and the European Commission on disability and was a drafter of the UN disability convention. A graduate of Harvard Law School, he holds three lifetime awards for his international disability law work.

Valentina Salas is a PhD Candidate in Political Science at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities. She holds a Master of Arts degree in Political Science from the Universidad Católica in Chile. Her research interests are access to justice, legal mobilization and rights consciousness in Latin America. She has previously worked as a researcher for the United Nations Development Programme in Chile, where she conducted policy research on the quality of democracy in Chile.

Hans-Otto Sano is Research Director at the Danish Institute for Human Rights. He has worked at the Institute for more than 20 years. He joined the World Bank for 2010–13. Earlier, Dr. Sano worked in Denmark and Sweden and conducted research in several African countries. His expertise is in human rights and development; he has written extensively on human rights indicators, human rights-based approaches, research methodology, social accountability and poverty.

Kaitlin Schwan is Director of Research at The Shift, an international movement to secure the right to housing. She is a Senior Researcher at the Canadian Observatory on Homelessness. She teaches social policy at the University of Toronto’s Faculty of Social Work, where she is appointed Assistant Professor, Status Only. Her research focuses on homelessness prevention, particularly for women and youth. She uses research to build bridges between evidence, advocacy, policy and lived expertise in order to advance housing justice.

Magdalena Sepúlveda Carmona is the Executive Director of the Global Initiative for Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. She is a member of the Independent Commission for the Reform of International Corporate Taxation (ICRICT) and the High-Level Panel on International Financial Accountability, Transparency and Integrity for Achieving the 2030 Agenda. From 2008–14 she was the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Extreme Poverty and Human Rights. From 2013–17 she was a member of the High-Level Panel of Experts on Food Security and Nutrition.

Luisa Sotomayor is an Assistant Professor and the Coordinator of the Graduate Programs in Planning in the Faculty of Environmental and Urban Change at York University in Toronto, Canada. Her research and teaching interests are focused on the various dimensions of urban inequality and their connections to urban and regional planning practice, particularly in the Latin American context.

Lee Swepston is a Visiting Professor at the Raoul Wallenberg Institute and School of Law of the University of Lund (Sweden). He teaches a course in the Lund Masters Programme on international human rights and labour. He was an official of the International Labour Organisation (ILO) for 34 years and was Senior Advisor on Human Rights. He has written extensively on human rights and international labour law, child labour, forced labour, freedom of association, discrimination and Indigenous and Tribal Peoples.

Linnet Taylor is an Associate Professor at the Tilburg Institute for Law, Technology, and Society (TILT). Her research focuses on digital data, representation and democracy, with particular attention to transnational governance issues. She leads the ERC Global Data Justice project, which aims to develop a conceptual framework for the ethical and beneficial governance of data technologies on the global level. The research is based on insights from technology users, providers and activists around the world.

Constance Thomas, JD, is a Visiting Professor at the Lund University School of Law and Raoul Wallenberg Institute Human Rights Masters Programme in Sweden. She previously worked at the International Labour Office (ILO) as the Director of the Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work Department and the Director of the International Programme to Eliminate Child Labour (IPEC), among other roles. Her research and writing focus has been on international labour standards, non-discrimination and equality, and child labour.
Wouter Vandenhole is a human rights and law-and-development scholar. He holds the human rights chair at the Law Faculty of the University of Antwerp and is a member of the Law and Development Research Group. Between 2007 and 2018 he also held the UNICEF Chair in Children’s Rights. His research interests include children’s rights, economic, social and cultural rights, and the relationship between human rights law and development.

Lucy Williams is a law professor at Northeastern University, faculty director of its Center for Public Interest Advocacy and Collaboration and co-director of its Program on Human Rights and the Global Economy. Her activism and scholarship have focused on domestic and global inequality. She founded and has coordinated for 15 years the International Social and Economic Rights Project, a group of academics, judges and activists primarily from the Global South working to encourage transformative thinking about social and economic rights.

Volkan Yilmaz is an Associate Professor of Social Policy and the Director of the Social Policy Forum Research Centre at Bogazici University. Yilmaz completed his PhD in Politics at the University of Leeds after receiving his bachelor degrees in Political Science and Sociology from Bogazici University. Yilmaz’s research has been published in the Journal of Social Policy, Disasters, and Gender Work & Organization. Yilmaz’s expertise lies in social policy, healthcare policy, humanitarian assistance, welfare politics, human rights and discrimination.