Acknowledgments

This book began life as part of two gatherings of academics and scholars – held in Sydney and Adelaide, Australia on 14–16 February 2018 – interested in the nature of freedom of religion or belief as found in various national constitutional frameworks. Those who met discussed this issue under the banner of ‘creating the constitutional space for other fundamental freedoms’. We are grateful to all those who joined us, and to the organisers of those gatherings: the International Center for Law and Religion Studies, J. Reuben Clark Law School, Brigham Young University, the Adelaide Law School and the Research Unit for the Study of Society, Ethics and Law, The University of Adelaide, and the School of Law, Sydney, The University of Notre Dame Australia. Our particular thanks go to the members of the Prime Minister’s Expert Panel, the Hon Philip Ruddock, Emeritus Professor Rosalind Croucher AM, the Hon Dr Annabelle Bennett AO SC and Professor Nicholas Aroney, who attended and conducted a roundtable during the Sydney gathering on issues relating to freedom of religion in Australia. Each of these contributions made this book possible.

We are especially grateful to W. Cole Durham, Jr, and Elizabeth Clark at the BYU J. Reuben Clark Law School, to Dean Michael Quinlan and Keith Thompson at The University of Notre Dame, and to Dean Melissa de Zwart and Bernadette Richards at the Adelaide Law School. Each provided invaluable assistance in support of our meetings and in bringing the final stages of this book to completion.

We are indebted to University of British Columbia Press for kind permission to republish the version published here of Jeremy Patrick’s “‘A la carte’ Spirituality and the Future of Freedom of Religion”, previously published in Jeremy Patrick, Faith or Fraud: Fortune-telling, Spirituality, and the Law (University of British Columbia Press, 2019).

The team at Elgar – Alex Pettifer, Luke Adams, Stephanie Tytherleigh, Saffron Watts and Sue Sharp – provided wonderful support, encouragement, and guidance throughout the transition from our gatherings to this book. We are deeply grateful to all those with whom we have worked in bringing this book to print.

Our student editors, Kyle Harvey and Sarah Belliston of the BYU J. Reuben Clark Law School and Kyriaco Nikias of the Adelaide Law School, brought their editorial skills to bear on the chapters, ensuring a consistent style throughout. We are very grateful to each of them.

Paul T. Babie, Neville G. Rochow QC and Brett G. Scharffs

31 October 2019