About the editors

Rhiannon Pugh is a senior lecturer in innovation studies at CIRCLE (Centre for Innovation, Research and Competence in the Learning Economy) at Lund University. With a background in economic geography, she previously worked at Örebro and Uppsala Universities in Sweden and Lancaster University in the UK. She is interested in researching policies and programmes for regional economic development, innovation, and entrepreneurship. She is also an editor of the early career section of the journal Regional Studies, Regional Science.

Jana Schmutzler is Assistant Professor of Economics at the Universidad del Norte in Barranquilla, Colombia. She holds a PhD in economics from the Schumpeter School of Business and Economics at the Bergische Universität Wuppertal, Germany. Her research interest centers on innovation processes and entrepreneurial behavior with a focus on developing countries. Specifically, she explores the role a context plays in fostering (or hindering) these vital economic behaviors. She has published in internationally recognized journals in the field of entrepreneurship and innovation such as Entrepreneurship: Theory and Practice and Industrial and Corporate Change. In addition, she has co-edited the book Innovation in Developing and Transition Countries published by Edward Elgar Publishing.

Alexandra Tsvetkova is Economist and Policy Analyst at the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) Trento Centre for Local Development, Italy, where she manages activities of the Spatial Productivity Lab. Before joining the OECD, Alexandra was affiliated with the Ohio State University and George Mason University. Her research on drivers of regional and local growth in the United States has appeared in Small Business Economics, Energy Economics, Regional Science and Urban Economics, Economic Development Quarterly and other journals. She is co-editor of the book Innovation in Developing and Transition Countries published by Edward Elgar Publishing.