About the editors

Stuart Allen (PhD, Organizational Leadership) is a Professor of Organizational Leadership at Robert Morris University, Pittsburgh, PA. He currently teaches in the Department of Organizational Leadership and Doctor of Science in Information Systems and Communications programme. He is an active researcher, dissertation adviser, author, and editor in leadership and management, leadership and management education, workplace pluralism and diversity, workplace post-traumatic stress, and sustainability. Originally from South Africa, he previously worked as an industrial psychologist, chief executive officer, coach, consultant, and entrepreneur.

Kim Gower (PhD) is an Assistant Professor of Management in the College of Business at the University of Mary Washington (UMW) in Fredericksburg, VA. At UMW she teaches management, leadership and organizational behaviour, leadership and social justice, and leadership theory and application in the undergraduate and MBA programmes. She enjoys instilling a love for learning and service in her students and is the 2019–2020 Chair of the Management Education and Development (MED) Division of the Academy of Management.

Danielle K. Allen (PhD) is an experienced author, adjunct instructor, and editor with a focus on cultural geography and the workplace. Her current research interests include migration, identity, space and place, and belonging. Danielle has worked as a Senior Research and Administrative Officer. She has published in journals such as the International Journal of Management Education and Urban Forum.