

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	ix
List of contributors	x

Foreword: well-being and local resources as the basis for territorial attractiveness Benoît Parent	xv
--	----

1 Introduction: shifting resources, multifaceted well-being Jean-Christophe Dissart and Natacha Seigneuret	1
--	---

PART I DIVERSITY OF LOCAL RESOURCES

2 Territorial resources, proximity economics and new urban dynamics: the case of the city of Grenoble Bernard Pecqueur and Kirsten Koop	14
3 Reconsidering the ground: new opportunities for shrinking cities. Lessons from the cases of Dessau and Halle Charline Sowa	36
4 Mining the past? Alternative forms of heritagisation and local resources in mountain territories (France, 18th–21st centuries) Karine Basset, Caroline Darroux and Pierre Judet	58
5 Are outstanding cultural heritage sites useful territorial resources for community development? Jean-François Ruault and Magali Talandier	77
6 Implementation of tourism diversification in ski resorts in the French Alps: a history of territorializing tourism Emmanuelle George and Coralie Achin	100
7 Territorial energy transition strategies: new models for cooperation between actors and resource management? Gilles Novarina and Natacha Seigneuret	121

PART II MULTIFACETED WELL-BEING

8	Beyond monetary well-being: can sociabilities offset the effects of low income? A case study in the Grenoble metropolitan area Anne Le Roy and Fiona Ottaviani	144
9	Accessibility of urban public space: considering the diversity of ordinary pedestrian practices Rachel Thomas	162
10	The British “Healthy New Towns” initiative: a step towards reuniting planning and health? Stéphane Sadoux and Cecilia Di Marco	180
11	A framework for describing and analysing life course trajectories: taking a step towards studying residential migration factors Marlène Villanova-Oliver, David Noël, Jérôme Gensel and Pierre Le Quéau	204
12	Natural amenities and social justice Jean-Christophe Dissart, David W. Marcouiller and Yves Schaeffer	227
13	Conclusion: renewal of methods and multidisciplinary curiosity Natacha Seigneuret and Jean-Christophe Dissart	251
	Index	257