About the editors

Aura Reggiani

University of Bologna, Italy

Aura Reggiani is Full Professor of Economic Policy at the University of Bologna (Italy). She has a PhD from Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam (the Netherlands). She is a specialist in spatial economics and modelling, focusing on the study of network evolution, complexity, resilience/vulnerability and the associated models and policies. Aura Reggiani has been President of NECTAR (Network for European Communications and Transport Activities Research) and Editor of the NECTAR Series on Transportation and Communications Networks Research (Edward Elgar), and is currently Editor of the journal Networks and Spatial Economics. She has been elected Fellow of the Netherlands Institute of Advanced Study in the Humanities and Social Sciences (NIAS), Fellow of the Regional Science Association International (RSAI), member of the Academia Europaea and life member at Clare Hall (University of Cambridge, UK).

Laurie A. Schintler

George Mason University, USA

Laurie A. Schintler, PhD, is Associate Professor in the Schar School of Policy and Government at George Mason University (USA), where she also serves as Director for data and technology research initiatives in the Center for Regional Analysis. Dr Schintler received her PhD in urban and regional planning from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign (USA). Her teaching and research interests include big data, science and technology, spatial complexity, critical infrastructure, regional science, ethics and governance and analytics and visualisation. In these areas she has numerous peer-reviewed publications, reports, conference proceedings and co edited volumes.

Daniel Czamanski

Ruppin Academic Center, Israel

Professor Daniel Czamanski has three degrees in economics. He was a faculty member at the Ohio State University (USA). After more than 30 years, he recently retired from the Technion – Israel Institute of Technology. Currently he serves as the head of the real estate economics and land assessment program at Ruppin Academic Center in Israel. Czamanski is Chairman of Czamanski Ben Shazar and Co., the leading consulting firm in real estate economics in Israel. For ten years Czamanski served as Chairman of the Haifa Center for the Promotion of Entrepreneurship. He was a member of the education committee of the Small Business Administration and of the board of Israel Junior Achievement, and he has been Deputy Chair of the Haifa–Boston Partnership.

Roberto Patuelli

University of Bologna, Italy

Roberto Patuelli has degrees from the University of Bologna (Italy), George Mason University (USA) and Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam (the Netherlands). He has worked in Belgium, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Switzerland and the USA, concentrating over the years on topics such as neural networks and regional employment forecasting, complex networks in telecommunications and commuting, regional unemployment differentials and spatial econometrics, as well as on local innovation processes and entrepreneurial determinants. He was one of the founding editors of REGION, the journal of the European Regional Science Association (ERSA).