Contributors

Soroush Aslani is Associate Professor of Management at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. He received his PhD degree in Organizational Behavior from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois, USA. His research is primarily in the area of cross-cultural management, cross-cultural negotiations, and social movements. In particular, he studies the impact of culture on motives, emotions, and strategies of people in conflict situations.

Katalien Bollen is affiliated to research group Occupational and Organizational Psychology and Professional Learning at KU Leuven, Belgium. Her research focuses on conflict management, mediation, leadership, and coaching in both family and non-family businesses. Katalien also acts as consultant and mediator.

Donella Caspersz is Senior Lecturer and Director of United Nations Principles for Responsible Management Education at the University of Western Australia’s Business School. Donella is also Academic Advisor on the Board of Family Business Australia, Western Australia and co-convenes the annual Asia-Pacific Family Business Symposium. She researches in the area of family business studies, and human resource management and employment relations. Donella publishes extensively with her research in family business focusing on how non-financial factors influence operations and management in a family business.

Artemis Chang is Associate Professor at QUT Business School and Principal Supervisor of the Australian Taiwanese Chamber of Commerce – Queensland Chapter. Artemis is a first-generation migrant from Taiwan and is currently researching immigrant entrepreneurship activities in Australia. Artemis is a process researcher, focusing on the influence of time and context. She has published in journals such as Academy of Management Journal, Asia Pacific Journal of Management, European Management Review, International Journal of HRM, and International Journal of Project Management.

Hsi-Mei Chung is Professor of the Department of Business Administration, I-Shou University, Taiwan. She has served as Global Board Member for the STEP Project for Family Enterprise (2014–16), 2015 and 2016 International Family Enterprise Research Academy (IFERA) Best PhD Research Proposal Award Jury Chair, and Program Co-Chair of the 2017 IFERA Global Conference in Taiwan. She has published over 60 academic articles, book chapters, and magazine articles. Hsi-Mei aims to push the long-lasting plan of family businesses and keeps good collaborative relationships with multiple research and practical institutions.

Hung-bin Ding is Associate Professor of Entrepreneurship and Strategic Management. He is also Chair of the Department of Management and International Business in the Sellinger School of Business and Management at Loyola University, Maryland, USA. He received his PhD in Management from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Hung-bin’s research interests are in the areas of family business, family office, entrepreneurship, and corporate social responsibility (CSR). His recent research projects focus on family offices and CSR in family businesses.

Komala Inggarwati Efendy is Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Economics and Business at Satya Wacana Christian University, Indonesia. Komala heads the Centre for Family Business Studies, which seeks to promote the study of family businesses particularly in Indonesia and disseminate the results to academic communities of interest, family business owners and practitioners, and other interested groups. She has been an instructor in numerous entrepreneurship training programs for university students and for micro, small, and medium enterprises.

Martin C. Euwema is Full Professor in Organizational Psychology at KU Leuven, Belgium, Co-Director of the Leuven Center for Collaborative Management, and Chair of the research group Occupational and Organizational Psychology and Professional Learning. He is past president of the International Association for Conflict Management. Martin’s interests are conflict management and mediation, organizational change, and (international) leadership. He has wide experience as a consultant and mediator.

Stone Han received his PhD in management from I-Shou University, Taiwan. His research interests include cross-national studies, institutional theory, strategic management and family business.

Min-ping Kang is Associate Professor in the Graduate Institute of Global Business and Strategy at National Taiwan Normal University. Her research, drawing largely on transaction cost, resource-based, and learning perspectives, examines interorganizational relationships, managerial resources, and firm growth, and has been published in journals such as Strategic Management Journal, Management Decision, and NTU Management Review. Her current research focuses on the roles of female family members in family business.
Rong Pei is Full Professor at the School of Management and Economics, Beijing Institute of Technology (BIT) in China and Director of the Joint Research Center for Sino-Foreign Family Business at BIT. She is also the dissertation evaluation expert in the academic papers expert database of the Chinese National Education Commission, and the special expert at the Journal of China Family Business Review. Rong’s research interests include management communication, social networking and guanxi, family businesses, and entrepreneurship. She has rich practical experience as a management consultant.

Phillip H. Phan holds a joint appointment in medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. His research focuses on the processes and barriers to the successful innovation of devices, therapies, services, and processes. Phillip is the Alonzo and Virginia Decker Professor of Strategy and Entrepreneurship in the Carey Business School at the Johns Hopkins University. He received his BBA from the University of Hawaii and his PhD from the University of Washington, USA. He joined the Carey Business School faculty in 2008.

Henry Shi is Senior Lecturer in Family Business and Entrepreneurship at the University of Adelaide. He has a PhD in Management from the University of Auckland. His research focuses on the strategic management and entrepreneurial undertakings of family firms and their interplay with the socio-economic context. His work has been published in multiple scholarly journals, including the Journal of Small Business Management, Journal of Business Ethics, Long Range Planning, and International Journal of Entrepreneurial Behaviour and Research.

Dina L. Taylor is Assistant Dean of Administration for the College of Architecture, Design, and the Arts at the University of Illinois in Chicago, USA. She received her Doctor of Business Administration in Management and Entrepreneurship from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. Her current research focuses on long-term orientation, entrepreneurial orientation, firm performance, family businesses, and small and medium-sized enterprises.

Salvatore Tomaselli is Associate Professor of Business Administration at the Università di Palermo, Italy and Visiting Professor of Entrepreneurship and Family Business at Zagreb University, Croatia. He was visiting professor of family business strategy and governance at the Beijing Institute of Technology, China in 2015. Salvatore is a founding member and fellow of IFERA and his research on family businesses focuses on strategy and governance, ethics, education, agreements, integrating family and business perspectives, and family-in-business model design. He is a member of the Real Academia Europea de Doctores, Barcelona, Spain.

Yong Wang is Professor of Family Business and Entrepreneurship at the University of Wolverhampton, UK. He previously served at IFERA as the board director and was elected as fellow in 2018. He is also Associate Editor for the Journal of Small Business Management. His research interests include family business, entrepreneurship, and business performance. His publications have appeared in journals such as the Journal of Small Business Management, Journal of Strategic Information System, Journal of Family Business Strategy, and International Journal of Entrepreneurial Behaviour and Research.

Ran Michelle Ye is currently Visiting Professor in the Faculty of Psychology and Educational Science at KU Leuven, Belgium. Michelle’s academic research explores the individual’s leadership behavior (managerial coaching), diversity in organizations, workplace generational differences, innovation ecosystems, and family business. Her research activities have equipped her with the latest research results and profound theories in areas in which she has hands-on working experience. She has published in several international peer-reviewed journals and presented her research at high-level international conferences.

Andy Yu is Associate Professor of Management in the College of Business and Economics at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. He received his PhD from Texas Tech University. His work has appeared in Family Business Review, International Small Business Journal, Advances in Entrepreneurship, Firm Emergence and Growth, Journal of Small Business and Entrepreneurship, and Asian Business and Management. He also co-edited The Landscape of Family Business (2013). His research interests include entrepreneurship, family business, and strategy.

Dexi Zheng is Director of Operations for DM Hoffbeck, PLLC, a public accounting firm. He has a Doctor of Business Administration from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater with an emphasis on entrepreneurship. His research interests include entrepreneurial orientation, market orientation, small and medium-sized enterprises, family businesses, and computer-aided text analysis.

Feihu Zheng is Associate Professor in the International Economics Department of Business School, Beijing Normal University (BNU). He is also Executive Director of the International Industrial Cooperation and Innovation Center of BNU and was Visiting Scholar for Haas, University of California Berkeley in 2012. His research interests include family firm governance, open innovation, and multinational corporation outsourcing. His research includes articles pub-

Roxanne Zolin is Adjunct Professor at the Noble International Business School in Ghana. Roxanne completed her doctorate at Stanford University and holds a Masters in Sociology, Master of Business Marketing, and Bachelor of Business. She published 50 papers on topics such as the entrepreneurial success of women, migrants, and seniors. Roxanne teaches entrepreneurship in developing nations such as the Congo, Mozambique, Papua New Guinea, and Kenya. She helped to establish a business center in the Congo and presents at entrepreneurship conferences in Kenya.