About the contributors

Mikael Andéhn is an Associate Professor at the School of Business and Management of Royal Holloway, University of London, UK. His research interests include issues pertaining to brands, critical marketing and management studies, international marketing, tourism, and the commercial relevance of place. His work has been featured in journals such as Journal of Travel Research, Marketing Theory, Tourism Management, Organisation, and International Marketing Review.

Boris Bartikowski is Professor of Marketing at Kedge Business School in Marseille, France. His research emphasis is in the areas of cross-cultural consumer behavior, online marketing, and brand management. He serves as an Associate Editor of the Canadian Journal of Administrative Sciences. His work has been published in journals such as Journal of Business Research, British Journal of Management, Journal of Business Ethics, Psychology & Marketing, and European Journal of Marketing.

Fabian Bartsch is an Associate Professor in Marketing at IESEG School of Management, France. His research interests include cross-cultural consumer behavior, the country of origin effect, and global consumer culture(s). To date, his work has been published in the Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of International Marketing, International Marketing Review, and Journal of Business Research.

Mark Cleveland is Dancap Private Equity Chair in Consumer Behavior at the University of Western Ontario (London, Canada). He is an Associate Editor for the International Marketing Review. Mark’s research interests are interdisciplinary and centre on globalization, cross-cultural consumer behavior, and green marketing. With more than 50 published articles and chapters, his work has more than 5000 Google Scholar citations and has appeared in prominent media, such as The New York Times. His numerous commendations include Western’s Faculty Scholar Award and the AMA’s Hans B. Thorelli Award.

Alia El Banna is Profesor Ayudante Doctor at Universidad Francisco de Vitoria in Spain, before which she worked as a Senior Lecturer in Marketing and Head, Centre for International Business and Marketing Research, at the University of Bedfordshire Business School in the UK. Her research focuses on the multidimensional construct of ‘place’ and how the images of countries and other places affect domestic and foreign consumers, influence the attraction of tourists, investors, and skilled workers, and interact with culture, identity, belonging, and heritage.

Magdalena Florek is Associate Professor at the University of Economics and Business in Poznań, Poland. Co-founder and board member of the International Place Branding Association. Co-founder and member of the board of “Best Place – The European Place Marketing Institute”. Senior Fellow at the Institute of Place Management. Consultant and co-author of numerous branding and promotion strategies for towns, cities, and regions in Poland. Member of the Editorial Boards of, for example, Place Branding and Public Diplomacy and Journal of Destination Marketing and Management.

Robert Govers is the author of the award-winning book Imaginative Communities: Admired Cities, Regions and Countries (2018). He is an independent government advisor, founding chairman of the International Place Branding Association, co-editor of the quarterly journal Place Branding and Public Diplomacy, and a contributor to Apolitical, the World Economic Forum Agenda and the Economist Intelligence Unit Perspectives.

Jonathan Grix is a Professor of Sports Policy in the Business and Law Faculty at Manchester Metropolitan University, UK and leads the Faculty’s Sport Policy Unit. He is a global academic leader in the area of sport politics. His latest books include Sport Politics (2016) and Entering the Global Arena: Emerging States, Soft Power Strategies and Sports Mega-Events (with Paul Brannagan and Donna Lee, 2019). Jonathan is the Editor-in-Chief of the leading International Journal of Sport Policy and Politics.

Henrik Halkier is Professor of Tourism and Regional Development at Aalborg University, Denmark, and Dean of the Faculty of Humanities. He has published on the politics of regional development policy, knowledge dynamics in regional innovation and tourism development, and on policies and governance of tourism destination development. His publications include contributions on Denmark, Britain, and Europe, and his current research interests are place branding, sustainable destination development, and synergies between food and tourism in local and regional development.

Anna M. Hersperger, Prof. h.c. Dr, heads the Land-Use Systems Group at the Swiss Federal Research Institute WSL where she is also a member of the WSL Directorate. Her work focuses on landscapes as changing human-environmental systems and, specifically, on understanding the role of spatial planning and land-use policies in changing metropolitan regions by evaluating planning and policy instruments and processes. She holds Master’s degrees from the ETH Zurich and Arizona State University and a PhD from Harvard University.

Andrea Insch’s research expertise is inter-disciplinary, connecting marketing, urban studies, and tourism. Designed to contribute to the debate on the role and impacts of place branding for cities, nations, and their stakeholders, her main research activity is focused on several sub-themes – the interplay of cities branding and urban development, resident engagement with city branding, and value derived from country-of-origin images. Andrea is on the Editorial Advisory Board of the Journal of Management History and is the Book Review Editor for the journal Place Branding & Public Diplomacy.

Laura James is Associate Professor of Tourism and Regional Change at Aalborg University, Denmark. Her research interests include destination development and regional change, tourism policy, and sustainability in tourism. She has previously written about ‘green’ place branding and policy tourism in Sweden and the use of the SDGs in place branding. Laura is currently working on a collaborative project that explores the social, economic, and environmental impacts of cruise tourism on communities in Greenland, Iceland, Norway, and Russia.

Mihalis Kavaratzis is Associate Professor of Marketing at the University of Leicester School of Business, UK and holds a PhD on City Marketing. Mihalis is co-founder of the International Place Branding Association and a Senior Fellow of the Institute of Place Management. He has published some of the most-cited work in the field and has co-edited (amongst others) Inclusive Place Branding (with M. Giovanardi and M. Lichrou, 2017) and Rethinking Place Branding (with G. Warnaby and G.J. Ashworth, 2015).

Nina Kramareva holds a PhD in Sport Politics from the University of Birmingham, UK. She studies sports mega-events in so-called non-liberal states and in Russia in particular. She is also interested in the role of sport in ideology and national identity formation processes.

Jean-Noël Patrick L’Espoir Decosta is an Associate Professor at the Australian National University Research School of Management. His research interests include interdisciplinary approaches to the study of tourism, an evidence-based approach to management, tourism education and research, and destination branding. His work has been featured in journals such as Annals of Tourism Research, Journal of Travel Research, Tourism Management, International Marketing Review, and Journal of Consumer Culture.

Peter Magnusson (PhD, Saint Louis University) is Professor and Chair of the Department of Marketing at The University of Texas Rio Grande Valley, USA. His recent research topics include consumer animosity, country of origin marketing, and export marketing strategy. Peter has published in, for example, Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, and Journal of International Marketing.

Michela Matarazzo is Professor of International Business at G. Marconi University of Rome, Italy. She has been an elected board member at the Società Italiana Management (2013–2018). Her research interests include international business with a special focus on consumer behaviour, country image, international corporate reputation, and SMEs’ internationalization and market entry modes, also in relation to the digital context. She has authored and co-authored 100 publications, including journal articles, conference papers, book chapters, and three books on firms’ internationalization and cross-border M&As.

Dominic Medway is a Professor of Marketing in the Institute of Place Management at Manchester Metropolitan University, UK. Dominic’s work is primarily concerned with the complex interactions between places, spaces, and those who manage and consume them, reflecting his academic training as a geographer. He is extensively published in a variety of leading academic journals, including: Environment and Planning A, European Journal of Marketing, Journal of Environmental Psychology, Marketing Theory, Mobilities, Space and Culture, Tourism Management, and Urban Geography.

Eduardo Oliveira studies place branding and spatial planning processes, and the embedding of both in governance. His current research focuses on analysing the effectiveness of place branding as a strategic spatial planning instrument in supporting the social and economic development of metropolitan regions, whilst assessing its effect on environmental sustainability. His works have been published in several academic journals and books. Eduardo is a postdoctoral research associate at the University of Kiel, Germany and guest researcher at the WSL in Switzerland.

Nicolas Papadopoulos is Distinguished Research Professor of Marketing and International Business at the Sprott School of Business of Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada. His research focuses on international strategy and buyer responses to it and includes international expansion, place images and branding, and global market systems. He has over 340 publications including 15 books and over 90 journal articles and book chapters, he serves on nine editorial review or senior advisory journal boards, and his work has been recognized through numerous distinctions.

Ioana S. Stoica is a PhD candidate and Lecturer at the University of Bedfordshire Business School in the UK. Her research addresses the concepts of co-creation, identity, and residents’ participation in the context of branding places with a negative reputation. Her teaching expertise involves international business and marketing, digital marketing, and marketing analytics.

Anette Therkelsen is Associate Professor of Tourism and Market Communication at Aalborg University, Denmark, and Vice-Dean of Research at the Faculty of Humanities. Her research interests focus on place branding at different geographical scales and various aspects of place-related consumer practices. Anette has published internationally on these topics and has acted as PI on several research projects on tourism-related place development. She is currently working on a research project on sustainable tourism development.

Gary Warnaby is Professor of Retailing and Marketing, based in the Institute of Place Management at Manchester Metropolitan University, UK. His research interests focus on the marketing of places (particularly in an urban context), and retailing. Results of this research have been published in various academic journals in both the management and geography disciplines. He is co-editor of Rethinking Place Branding: Comprehensive Brand Development for Cities and Regions (Springer, 2015) and Designing with Smell: Practices, Techniques and Challenges (Routledge, 2017).

Stanford A. Westjohn (PhD, Saint Louis University) is Associate Professor of Marketing in the Culverhouse College of Business at the University of Alabama, USA. His research interests include international marketing strategy and consumer behavior particularly as it relates to global branding and positioning. Stan’s research has been published in Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of International Marketing, and Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science.

Candace L. White is a Professor in the School of Advertising and Public Relations at the University of Tennessee, USA, where she teaches international public relations. Her research interests include the role of global corporations as non-state actors in public diplomacy, and how corporate social responsibility and CSR communication affect the image and national reputation of the country with which the corporation is associated. She is a Faculty Fellow of the Howard H. Baker, Jr. Center for Public Policy in the area of global security.

Rick T. Wilson, PhD, is an Associate Professor of Marketing at Texas State University, USA. His research interests include place branding, investment promotion, out-of-home advertising, and creativity in advertising. Dr Wilson’s research has been published in journals such as the Journal of Advertising, Journal of Advertising Research, International Journal of Advertising, and Journal of Place Management and Development. Before becoming a professor, he worked in the fields of marketing and international business for 12 years as a senior product manager for AT&T, Vodafone Group, and TelePacific Communications.

Sebastian Zenker, PhD, is Professor (with special responsibilities) at the Copenhagen Business School (CBS), Department of Marketing, Denmark. He is widely considered one of the pioneering scholars in the field of place marketing and branding. His current research interests are in place brand management with the special target groups of residents and tourists, as well as conflicts and crises in places. His work has been presented at various international conferences, book chapters, and prestigious peer-reviewed journals, including Environment and Planning A, Tourism Management, International Journal of Research in Marketing, and Psychological Science.

Katharina Petra Zeugner-Roth is an Associate Professor in Marketing at IESEG School of Management, France. Her research interests are centered in cross-cultural consumer behavior topics such as consumer dispositional variables, the country of origin effect, and ethical considerations. To date, her work has been published in journals such as Marketing Letters, Journal of International Marketing, Journal of Retailing, Management International Review, and Journal of Business Research.