Acknowledgements

In the first place, we warmly thank our authors. We are pleased that so many accepted our invitation to contribute to this volume, economists as well as philosophers/theologians and in some cases other social scientists. Furthermore, we are grateful for the enormous help we received from Haroon Akram-Lodhi, Gani Aldashev, Marcel Becker, Daniel Bell, Jos de Beus, Jeroen van Bouwel, Bé Breij, Geoffrey Brennan, Irene Breugel, Andries Broekhuijsen, Vivienne Brown, Maurizio Bussolo, Cara Beed, Clive Beed, Satya Chakravarty, Charles Clark, Gerhard Clever, William Clohesy, David Crocker, Charles Dannreuther, Lei Delsen, Steven DeLue, Severine Deneulin, David Dequech, Wilfred Dolfsma, Peter Dorman, Richard Dougherty, Sheila Dow, Stavros Drakopoulos, John Dupré, Zohreh Emami, Ben Fine, Russell Arben Fox, David George, Michele Gilman, Floris Heukelom, Susan Himmelweit, Geoff Hodgson, Toine Van de Hoogen, Andre van Hoorn, Bernd Irlenbusch, Zamir Iqbal, Richard Jolly, Steve Keen, Theo van de Klundert, Tony Lawson, Michelle Luijben, Patrick Mardellat, Charles McCann, Julie Nelson, Herman Noordegraaf, Mark Peacock, Renee Prendergast, Jack Reardon, Geert Reuten, Donna Rowen, Kala Saravanamuthu, Gerhard Scherhorn, Jan Aart Scholte, Nathalie Sigot, Peter Söderbaum, Ulrich Thielemann, Henk Tieleman, Kea Tijdens, Gaute Torsvik, Thanh-Dam Truong, Rudi Verburg, David Vogel, Jana Vyrastekova, Anthony Waterman, Patrick Welch, Charles Wilber, Jon Wisman, Stuart O. Yoak Stefano Zamagni and Eyal Zamir.

We are grateful to Cambridge University Press for the permission to include an edited extract of chapter 7 ‘Religion, the Protestant Ethics, and Moral Values’ from Sacred and Secular, by Pippa Norris and Ronald Inglehart (Cambridge University Press, 2004).

Finally, we are grateful for the financial support of the Department of Economics of Radboud University Nijmegen which made this Handbook possible.