

Preface

The contributions forming the different chapters in this book were first presented and discussed at the Eleventh Uddevalla Symposium on Spatially Dispersed Production and Network Governance held at Kyoto International Community House, Kyoto, Japan, May 15–17, 2008.

The aim of this international conference was to explore and analyse further the challenges of transmission of knowledge and the assumptions for creating regional innovations. The contributions cover a significant range of topics within the field of entrepreneurship and regional economic development in a global market context.

The symposium was hosted and organised by Kyoto University, Japan, in co-operation with the School of Public Policy, George Mason University, Fairfax, VA, USA, Jönköping International Business School, Jönköping, Sweden and the University West, Trollhättan, Sweden.

The symposium was sponsored by CESIS (Centre of Excellence for Science and Innovations Studies), Stockholm and Jönköping, Sweden, Kyoto University, Japan, The School of Public Policy, George Mason University, Fairfax, VA, USA, University West, Trollhättan, Sweden, The Bank of Sweden Tercentenary Foundation, Stockholm, Sweden, the Municipality of Uddevalla, Sweden and VINNOVA (Swedish Governmental Agency for Innovation Systems), Stockholm, Sweden.

The organizers of the symposium thank Swedbank, Uddevalla, Sweden for sponsoring the Best Paper Awards program.

The authors and the editors thank Ms Iréne Bernhard, University West, Sweden for editorial assistance.
